ALPHABETICAL INDEX to SCHOOLS, according to Localities, ... 193

EDUCATIONAL CENSUS OF IRELAND.

INTRODUCTION.

At the very first meeting of the Commissioners, on 19th February, 1868, it was suggested that, following the precedent of the late Scottish Education Commission, information should be specially collected concerning the number of children actually receiving elementary education in Ireland, and the schools through which such education was dispensed to them. Independently of general reasons for such a proceeding, it was rendered specially advisable on account of the questions which had been raised concerning the accuracy and authenticity of the numbers annually returned by the Commissioners of National Education as being inscribed on the rolls of the schools connected with the National Board, or as having made an average attendance at school during the year. Moreover there was no other reliable way by which it could be ascertained how many children were being educated in elementary schools not connected with the National Board.

Having considered the matter, the Commissioners made application to the Chief Secretary for Ireland to allow the attendance, at a meeting of the Commission, of the Inspector-General of Constabulary, or any officer deputed by him, in order that the Commissioners might inquire of him whether the men under his control can undertake the duty of collecting such information.

Accordingly, on 10th March, 1868, Mr. Brownrigg, Assistant Inspector-General of Constabulary, waited upon the Commissioners, and conferred with them upon the taking of an Educational Census, through the Constabulary. Mr. Brownrigg suggested :—

(1.) That the names of all existing elementary schools should be furnished by Constabulary districts, giving the names of parishes and townlands.

(2.) That the Inspector-General should send a general order to County Inspectors, to furnish information; and the Secretaries of the Royal Commission should send, direct to the County Inspectors, forms for the collection of the required information.

(3.) That, as regards taking the Census of attendance on some given day, the orders should be issued, for security of secrecy, by the Inspector-General of Constabulary.

These suggestions having been approved by the Commissioners, the Secretaries were directed to procure the necessary authority, and to take such other steps as might be requisite for carrying out the proposed Educational Census.

The Government at once gave authority that "Statistical Returns, with respect to Primary Schools in Ireland, should be procured through the medium of the Constabulary."

But the details of the arrangements by which the proposed Census of elementary schools and their scholars should be carried out required, it was found, careful consideration in order to be effective. The proceeding was, in many respects, without precedent. On former occasions, when an Educational Census of the country was taken, the enumerators were not obliged to exclude from their visits any schools whatsoever. They visited all indiscriminately of whatever kind, being only solicitous about the accurate reckoning of the children actually present in the school, and indifferent as to the quality and subjects of instruction. The separation of the different classes of schools was a later process, not performed by the local enumerators on the spot, but the result of inquiries carried out in a central office in Dublin. Now, however, the Constabulary were called upon to count up all the elementary schools in the country—a task which involved on their part the discrimination of those schools that limited their efforts to primary only from others of a higher character. Under these circumstances the preparation of the forms, according to which the proposed information should be collected by the Constabulary, was a matter of much care and some anxiety. One of the Secretaries was in almost daily communication on the subject with the Constabulary office; and it was chiefly owing to the attention, and the interest taken in the matter by the Constabulary authorities, and especially by the Inspector-General and Mr. Browning, the Chief Clerk, that the result has been so satisfactory.

The first step towards an accurate Educational Census was, obviously, to ascertain the actual number of elementary schools. The Constabulary organization furnished an easy method of doing this. The whole of Ireland is distributed among thirty-five County Inspectors.* The command of each of those officers is subdivided into a varying number of "Constabulary Districts" in the charge of so many Sub-Inspectors. Each Constabulary district comprises a certain number of Constabulary stations, within the area assigned to some one or other of which every inch of ground in the district must be found. It thus appears that every school-house in Ireland must be within the area of some Constabulary station, and must, within every twenty-four hours, be passed by a Constable in the regular routine of his "Beat." This at once suggested an easy method of reckoning the schools. The Constables at every station must be acquainted with the school-houses within their respective areas. The only point about which it was necessary to be careful was, that in their enumeration, they should reckon those schools only that were of an elementary character. But, here again, it may be observed that the condition of the members of the Constabulary themselves would be, at the same time, a help and a safeguard in the performance of their task; for the schools which they were called upon to number and return as "Primary Schools," were precisely those which professed to give an education similar to that which they themselves, or at least most of them, had received.

There is another consideration bearing upon the enumeration of schools by Constabulary districts, which it may not be out of place to mention here. In Ireland, the parish has ceased to have any importance as a civil topographical division; indeed, its corresponding ecclesiastical value is scarcely appreciable. The Presbyterian congregational arrangements are not defined by territorial limits and do not profess to embrace the whole island. The Roman Catholic parochial system, although essentially territorial, has, in its present settlement, ignored the old standing boundaries, and in most cases overstepped them. The peculiar circumstances of the Established Church led long since to the adoption of such an amalgamation of parishes as quite superseded the ancient parochial distribution of the country. Thus, all the ecclesiastical systems were of accord in their neglect of the old traditional parish boundaries; and as the civil importance of the parishes depended upon their ecclesiastical character, it disappeared as this became obsolete. The striking illustration of how much the parishes had fallen out of the recollection of men, as topographical divisions of practical utility, was afforded by the difficulty experienced by the officers engaged upon the Ordnance Survey of Ireland, of acquiring trustworthy local information as to the parochial boundaries. It is hardly possible to imagine such a case occurring in England, where the parochial system is so interwoven with the habits, traditions, and fiscal arrangements of the people. Perhaps, after all, this is but a confirmation of a theory often promulgated, that the parochial system is not indigenous in Ireland, but was introduced, with other changes, subsequent to the English invasion, and never acquired a hold upon the feelings or respect of the people.

There was, however, an ancient territorial division adopted by the rulers of later times—that, namely, according to baronies and townlands. These exist in full force and public recognition at the present day, precisely as they did in the time of Elizabeth and James, and usually under the same, or at least corresponding designations, by which they were known fourteen centuries back. They are eminently civil divisions; and the Constabulary authorities, in distributing their forces, have endeavoured to adhere to them as much as possible. Thus it frequently happens that a barony and a Sub-Inspector's district are conterminous; and, where grave reasons overrule this arrangement, the district boundary is made to follow that of a townland, so that the same townland is never found to be divided between two or more districts. Again, the unity of parishes is never regarded in the Constabulary arrangements; portions of the same parish are frequently found in different districts, but a townland is never divided, not only between different districts, but even (except in a very few special cases) between different stations. Unbroken townlands form the areas of the several stations, and consequently of the several districts.

Thus, an enumeration of schools by the Constabulary, while following the special territorial division which has been adopted for the purposes of the force, would, at the same time, be arranged according to the civil topographical divisions which are in force throughout the whole island. The advantages of this were apparent, not only for the temporary purpose of the Commission, but also with a view to further comparison and inquiry.

After much deliberation, the following form was agreed upon, as that according to which, in the first instance, the return of the number of the Primary Schools, actually existing in Ireland, should be made out.

_____*Constable in Charge of Sub-District*

To every Sub-Inspector throughout Ireland there were forwarded, in the last week of April, 1868, such a number of copies of the preceding form, as in the opinion of the authorities in Dublin would be amply sufficient to meet all the requirements of the stations, or sub-districts under his command. Moreover, he was instructed to apply to the Secretaries of the Commission for a further supply of the forms should he find it necessary. As the object of this first enumeration was only to ascertain the number of Primary Schools actually existing, there was no necessity that the enumeration should be made simultaneously. It was proposed that each Constable, in charge of a station, should transmit the return of the schools within his own sub-district, when completed, to his Sub-Inspector. Then all the returns for the district, when collected together, were to be consolidated and entered upon a large sheet, which was nothing more than the form given above, printed upon a sheet of paper sufficiently long to include a very considerable number of schools. This larger form, when completed and authenticated by the signature of the Sub-Inspector, was to be transmitted to the Secretaries as the official return.

For clearness sake, the smaller form to be used by the Constables in their local enumeration was called "Form No. II.," and the larger form to be used by the Sub Inspector for the consolidation of the local reports was called "Form No. I."

At the same time that the forms were transmitted to the Sub-Inspectors, the Inspector General issued the following circular to the Officers and Men of the Force.

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle, 22nd April, 1868.

"The Royal Commissioners of Inquiry into the state of Primary Education in Ireland having obtained the sanction of Her Majesty's Government for the collection by the Royal Irish Constabulary of certain Statistical Returns connected with the Primary Schools in Ireland, the attention of the Officers and Men is particularly requested to the following Instructions:—

"1. The Sub-Inspector is requested to furnish to each Constable in charge of a Sub-district one of the enclosed Forms, No. II., with directions to have it correctly and carefully filled up and returned to him with as little delay as possible.

"2. On receiving the Sub-district Returns, the Sub-Inspector will be good enough to have the information contained in them consolidated and entered on the large Return, Form No. 1., which is then to be forwarded to the Secretaries of the Royal Commission, 46, Upper Sackville-street, Dublin, in the enclosed printed envelope.

"3. Should any more Returns of either Form I. or Form II. be required, or should any further information be desired, a letter addressed to the Secretaries of the Royal Commission on Primary Education, 46, Upper Sackville-street, Dublin, will have immediate attention.

"4. In filling up these Returns, it will be well to bear in mind that under the name of "Primary School" will be included the following classes of Schools:—

(a) All Schools for the Poor, of whatever kind.
(b) All National Schools.
(c) All Schools connected with the Church Education Society, the Christian Brothers, or similar bodies or institutions.
(d) All Schools, whether private or public, in which the course of instruction is similar to that followed in the National Schools.

"5. In the last column the Constable will set down all information touching the School which has not been included under the preceding heads, and which he may deem useful.

"6. The Returns from the Sub-districts, on the Forms No. II., will be filed and preserved for six months in the office of the district, in order to facilitate further reference if necessary.

"J. Stewart Wood, Inspector-General."

The enumeration of the schools was soon effected, the returns being completed by the middle of May. It is unnecessary here to examine those returns at any length, or to characterize the information which they contain; a more suitable opportunity for doing this will present itself when the enumeration of the children in attendance shall be described.

This numbering of the children in actual attendance at the schools was not by any means the simple operation that one might at first suppose it to be. In the first place, the time when the numbers should be taken could not be easily determined. On the occasion of the general Census in 1861, the taking of those numbers was twice essayed. The first effort was as follows:—

In the Census forms left at each house, and in which were supposed to be entered the names and circumstances of all persons in Ireland on the night of 7th April, 1861, was a column setting out those who were "attending school" at the time. The following form* was also left at the several schools, to be filled up by the "Head of the Institution:"

* This form, it will be observed, is most elaborate and complete; but it fails to express on its face the distinction between schools of primary education and those which profess to give a higher class of instruction. A statistician might deduce from its information the number of children in the former class of schools; but the form itself does not authentically give such a return.

Before the returns collected according to those forms could have been examined, the Census Commissioners determined to institute a fresh enumeration of school children, under the following circumstances :—

"The supplemental school forms . . . were issued in consequence of a communication addressed to us by the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, to the effect that the returns for the week ended April 13th, 1861, did not represent the true average attendance of pupils at the National Schools, as the Easter holidays had only just then terminated, and the pupils had not generally resumed attendance. Considering it right, under the circumstances, to afford not only to the schools in connexion with the National system of education, but to all schools whatsoever an opportunity of furnishing a return, we distributed—with the sanction of the Government—and after due notice to the clergy of the various denominations and the heads of the several educational systems, these additional forms."*

* The Census of Ireland for the year 1861, Part II., Vol. I., pp. 11, 12.

Thus, it appears that, in connexion with the Census of 1861, there are three different sources of information from which we may estimate the number of children attending schools in Ireland. These are (1) the "family returns,"* in which the head of each family was assumed to set down how many members of the family were "attending school;" (2) the "school returns," under form L, which were supposed to state the number of children "attending school during the week ending 13 April, 1861;"† (3) the "school returns" under form L 2, which were supposed to state "the number attending school on May 17th, 1861."† Perhaps it is not surprising that the information derived from these three sources is not only not identical, but is notably different. We give the summary "total of Ireland," as given in the Report of the Census Commissioners.†

Upon those returns, as set out in the preceding comparative tables, the Census Commissioners make some observations which—as bearing on the method of taking an educational census—are here quoted:—

"The family returns for the year 1861, represent 645,695 persons to have been under instruction, either at home or at school, on the 7th April in that year. The returns upon the form L No. 2, given in pursuance of due notice, represent the number of pupils in actual attendance at the schools which supplied those returns, to be 466,818 on the 17th May, 1861, or less by 178,877 than the number taken from the family returns. The number returned as attending school during the week ended April 13th, 1861, was

* See Census, Part II., Vol. I., p. 32, passim. † Ibid., p. 33, Table XIX.

‡ All the figures, headings, &c., in this extract are exactly copied from Table XIX., as it stands in page 33 of Part II., Vol. I., of the Census for Ireland for the year 1861. The arrangement has been slightly altered in order to admit of the extract being conveniently brought within the limits of the page, and also for facility of reference to the subsequent Summary Tables of the Census carried out under this Commission.

436,873, or less by 29,945 than the numbers shown by the forms L No. 2, for a single day (the 17th May), and less by 208,822 than the number derived from the family returns.*

"The returns upon 'Form L No. 2,' furnished for a single day, may be regarded as giving an exceedingly high average, or more than an average for a day's attendance, because the managers and masters of the various schools having had ample notice of the date for which the return was to be made, in all probability exerted themselves to procure a full attendance for that day."†

One or two conclusions obviously follow from the consideration of the summary return quoted above, and the observations upon it of the Census Commissioners. In the first place, no reliance can be placed on "Family Returns" for the purpose of forming even a loose estimate of the number of children actually "attending school." Secondly, returns "furnished for a single day may be regarded as giving an exceedingly high average, or more than an average for a day's attendance, because the managers and masters of the various schools having had ample notice of the date for which the return was to be made," will, "in all probability" have "exerted themselves to procure a full attendance for that day." In other words, returns of attendance at school prepared upon family authority, as well as those furnished by managers or teachers of schools for a single day of which they have had ample notice beforehand, and for which they have had opportunity of procuring a special attendance, are equally untrustworthy.

This reference to the Educational Census of 1861 shows that there were three things to be carefully borne in mind in taking the enumeration of the children in primary schools for the purposes of the Royal Commission. In the first place, it was essential that the enumeration of attendance in the schools should be made through some responsible agency specially deputed for the purpose, and of whose impartiality there could be no suspicion.

One of the objections frequently made to the National Board's annual returns of "average attendances," is that they are not simple statements of facts, but compilations of inferences deduced from certain arithmetical data, and are consequently liable to the double error of mistakes of calculation, and of fallacious induction. It was of great consequence that those annual returns of average attendances should for once be confronted with an authentic return of actual attendance. This, however, implied as a necessary condition that such attendance should be reckoned by persons not only quite independent of the individual schools, but also unconnected with the National System of Education. This is the more plain, if one reflects that the attendance was to be reckoned, not only in National schools, but in all primary schools, of whatever kind, so that the whole value of any comparisons which may be founded upon the return of such attendance depends upon the recognised impartiality and independence of the machinery through which they shall have been collected. In other words the numbering of the children, to be really trustworthy, must be an act of personal observation of some impartial authority, wholly independent of all influences of managers, teachers, or parents.

In the second place it was also essential that this enumeration of attendance in the schools should be carried out rigidly by a simultaneous reckoning, otherwise it would be impossible to compare the numbers attending the different kinds of schools; but to secure a satisfactory result it was indispensable that the day chosen should not be one which could be generally, or even largely complained of as unsuitable for the purpose, as was the case with the time chosen for the first enumeration of school attendance in 1861. That is to say, it was essential to the fairness of the enumeration that the day selected for taking the actual attendance should be a day upon which a fair attendance of pupils might be generally expected.

* See Census, Part II., Vol. I., p. 32, passim.

There were, however, circumstances which facilitated the selection of the day. The schools of the National Board are not only the most numerous, but have also the largest proportion of scholars: moreover, they are spread all over the country. They exist in places where there is no other school; whereas in whatever localities other Societies or organizations possess schools, side by side with them are to be found the schools of the National Board. Hence the seasons or circumstances which would favour or diminish attendance in the National schools throughout the country, might safely be considered to affect in like manner all other primary schools of whatever kind. And yet there seemed to be but little room for choice. It was very desirable that the returns of attendance should be collected in sufficient time to allow them to be tabulated for the information of the Assistant Commissioners, in order to assist them in their inspection of the schools within their several districts. As the Royal Commissioners were desirous that this inspection should commence with the beginning of July, it was clear that the enumeration should take place sometime during the month of June. Fortunately the inquiries which were made at the Education Office in Marlborough-street, indicated that June could not be regarded as an unfavourable month for attendance; on the contrary, there was reason to believe that in three-fourths of the country the attendance during that month was usually above the average. It also appeared, through the same inquiries, that the day to be selected ought to be about the middle of a week, Mondays and Fridays being, commonly, days of bad attendance, and Saturdays being in most schools vacant days.

Preliminary to fixing definitively upon a day, it was necessary to arrange the form according to which the return of attendance should be compiled. This required very great consideration, in order to anticipate any possible errors into which the Constables might fall through misapprehension. When the form had at last been settled, it was necessary that a sufficient interval should be allowed before the day for taking the Census, in order to admit of the printing of the forms and their despatch to their several destinations.

The third lesson taught by the educational Census of 1861, was that the managers and teachers should not have notice beforehand of the day upon which the numbers of their scholars were to be reckoned, and consequently should not have an opportunity of exerting themselves "to procure a full attendance for that day." In order to prevent the possibility of any such fraudulent attempts to get up a factitious attendance in the schools, every precaution was taken to secure secrecy as to the day fixed upon for the enumeration which was to be made under the authority of the Royal Commission. Following out the plan which had been suggested at the interview of Assistant Inspector-General Brownrigg with the Commissioners, the day was privately arranged between the Chairman and the Inspector-General. No other persons were made aware of the date except Mr. Browning, the Chief Clerk of the Constabulary Office, and Mr. Dunne, the Secretary of this Commission. The packets enclosing the forms for despatch to the several Constabulary districts, were made up in the offices of the Commission, under the personal superintendence of Mr. Dunne. But he alone enclosed and sealed the circulars announcing the date. For greater security, and also to insure their confidential treatment, forms and circulars were enclosed in the official envelopes of the Constabulary office, and were forwarded to the Post Office from Dublin Castle, and not from the offices of the Commission.

In order to impress the more clearly on the Constables that the numbering of the children was but the completion of the work already partly accomplished by the enumeration of the schools, the forms, upon which the returns of attendance should be made, were of the same kind as those used on that occasion. Following the course then taken, two forms were issued:—one, Form No. III., upon which each enumerating Constable was directed to set down the desired information for the several schools assigned to his "beat;" the other, Form No. IV., was the same as Form No. III., only printed on a long sheet of paper, was to be used for the consolidation of the returns of the whole Constabulary district, as had been done in the enumeration of schools. This larger form, when completed and authenticated by the signature of the Sub-Inspector, was to be transmitted to the Secretaries, as the official return of the number of children in actual attendance in primary schools in Ireland, on 25th June, 1868.

Some little delay occurred in the transmission of the larger forms, No. IV.; but this was not of the slightest influence upon the accuracy of the enumeration. For, since the actual attendance in the several schools was to be set down by the enumerating Constables on the smaller form No. III., and the larger one was to be employed not for any original proceeding, but for consolidating the information collected by the local returns, any delay in the transmission of the former could not have a retrospective effect on the correctness of these latter. The delay, however, was but of a couple of days.

The following was the form on which the enumerating Constables made their several local returns :—

Together with the forms, a large number of copies of the following "Confidential Circular" and Memoranda, issued by the Inspector-General, were transmitted to the Sub-Inspectors, to be by them distributed among the Constables charged with the duty of taking the attendance :—

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle, 22nd June, 1868.

"The Royal Commissioners of Inquiry into the State of Primary Education in Ireland having obtained the sanction of Her Majesty's Government for the collection by the Royal Irish Constabulary of certain Statistical Returns connected with the Primary Schools in Ireland, the attention of the Officers and Men is particularly requested to the following Instructions :—

"1. The completion of the Inquiry requires that on the same day (Thursday, 25th June), in every School throughout the country, the number of children should be exactly counted, and the Religious Denominations should be taken.

"2. The Sub-Inspector is requested to furnish to each Constable in charge of a Sub-District as many copies of the enclosed Form No. III. as there were Schools enumerated in such Constable's previous Return (Form No. II.), already filled up and filed in the Office of the District; and he will direct the Constable to have the present Returns, No. III., correctly and carefully filled up and returned to him with as little delay as possible.

"3. On the 25th June, the Constable in charge of each Sub-District, or the Men selected by the Sub-Inspector for the duty, will visit every Primary School within his Sub-District, and will personally count all the children present, and will enter the number of Boys, of Girls, and of Infants, in the proper column.

"4. He will then ascertain the number of children of the Established Church, of the Roman Catholic children, of the Presbyterian children, and of the children of all other Denominations; and he will enter these respective numbers in the corresponding columns of the Returns.

"5. One way in which this might be accomplished would be by the Constable asking the children of each Religious Denomination to severally hold up one hand, and then counting them. But the Constable will take such way of counting as he will consider in his discretion most trustworthy.

"6. On receiving the Sub-District Returns, the Sub-Inspector will be good enough to have the information contained in them consolidated and entered on the large Return, Form No. IV., which is then to be forwarded to the Secretaries of the Royal Commission, 46, Upper Sackville-street, Dublin, in the enclosed printed envelope.

"7. Should any more Returns of either Form III. or Form IV. be required, or should any further information be desired, a letter addressed to the Secretaries of the Royal Commission on Primary Education, 46, Upper Sackville-street, Dublin, will have immediate attention.

"8. In filling up these Returns, it will be well to bear in mind that under the name of "Primary School" will be included the following classes of Schools:—

(a) All Schools for the Poor, of whatever kind.
(b) All National Schools.
(c) All Schools connected with the Church Education Society, the Christian Brothers, or similar bodies or institutions.
(d) All Schools, whether Private or Public, in which the course of instruction is similar to that followed in the National Schools.

"9. In the last column the Constable will set down all information touching the School which has not been included under the preceding heads, and which he may deem useful.

"10. The Returns from the Sub Districts, on the Form No. III., will be filed and preserved for six months in the Office of the District, in order to facilitate further reference if necessary.

"11. The Returns from the Sub-Districts on the Form No. II., which have been already completed and filed in the Office of the District, will continue to be preserved until the 31st December next, in order to facilitate further reference if necessary.

"J. Stewart Wood, Inspector-General."

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle, 22nd June, 1868.

"Memorandum.

"I have to direct the special attention of the County and Sub-Inspectors to the Confidential Circular of this date, headed 'Primary Education Inquiry,' and to beg that the greatest pains may be taken, by the selection of suitable men to discharge the duty in question, to ensure the enumeration being made faithfully and accurately, as particularly desired by Her Majesty's Government.

"J. Stewart Wood, Inspector-General, Royal Irish Constabulary."

"Owing to an unforeseen delay, the large District Form, No. IV. (to which the separate Returns collected in the Sub-Districts, and entered on the smaller Form, No. III., will be transferred), cannot be made ready for transmission on the present occasion.

"This, however, will not cause any inconvenience in making the enumeration required. The requisite number of copies of Form No. III., which are herewith forwarded, will be distributed through the Sub-Districts, and the enumeration will be punctually made upon the day already fixed in the Confidential Circular.

"In two or three days the necessary copies of the large Form, No. IV., will be sent; and then the Sub-District Returns can be transferred and consolidated upon them, as described in the Confidential Circular.

"In all other respects the instructions contained in the Confidential Circular will be carefully complied with.

"Particular attention is directed to the necessity of keeping strict secrecy as to the day fixed upon for making the enumeration of the Children present in the several Schools.

"J. Stewart Wood, Inspector-General, Royal Irish Constabulary."

The "Dublin Metropolitan Police District," comprising the city of Dublin and the south-eastern portion of the county as far as Dalkey, does not come within the jurisdiction of the Inspector-General of Constabulary, but is subject to the Commissioners of Metropolitan Police. Arrangements were concerted with one of those gentlemen, Colonel Attwell Lake, for having the Educational Census taken within the Metropolitan district by the men under his command. In this way was secured that the enumeration throughout the whole of Ireland should be perfectly simultaneous, as well as made by an independent and responsible authority—conditions hitherto wanting in all attempts of the kind. The Returns came in with the most satisfactory promptness. Those for 192 districts reached the office by the morning of the 30th June, that is within five days from the taking the Census. All with a single exception were received by the 13th July.

The preparation of the Returns for the Metropolitan districts was a very heavy task. The enumeration of schools, which had been performed by the Constabulary in April for all the rest of the country, had to be made by the Dublin Police for the Metropolitan district, simultaneously with the operation of counting the children in attendance. Then all the information thus collected had to be transcribed and consolidated upon the large Forms I. and IV. already described. Notwithstanding the complexity and voluminous nature of the information, the Returns for the Metropolitan district, comprising 397 schools, were forwarded to the offices of the Commission on the 3rd July, only a week after the Census.

According as the Returns had been received they were copied exactly, and then printed. The proofs were carefully compared with the original Returns. They were next examined for the purpose of tracing any errors which, from one cause or another, might have crept into the Returns themselves. One or two examples will explain the nature and object of this operation.

Two of the Royal Commissioners had, at the request of their colleagues, undertaken to visit and examine the several Model Schools, and, as far as time would permit, all conventual schools which might be in existence in places where Model Schools were established. In the discharge of this duty they visited Galway early in July, 1868. Among the convent schools in that city connected with the National Board, there is one in the well-known suburb, the Claddagh, conducted by the Sisters of Mercy. This school figured in the Board's list of schools as a "Mixed" school, that is one in which there were children of different religions. Struck by the strange fact—if fact it really was—that a school taught by nuns should have Protestant pupils, and this in a place where there was abundant denominational provision made for them, the Royal Commissioners considered it a duty to visit this school. Upon inquiry it turned out that over a year before ONE child, a member of the Established Church, had been entered upon the rolls of the school. She made a solitary attendance on the day upon which her name was entered, and never came again. Yet the application of the rigorous logic of the Board's rules instantly stamped the school as a "Mixed School" for two years.*

Upon their return to Dublin the Commissioners asked for the Galway Police Return of the Census. They had made a point of reckoning the children present in the several schools which they visited; and they wished to see whether the numbers set down in the Return as having been counted by the Constable on the 25th June differed materially from their own reckoning. But, while the number corresponded almost identically, they were amazed at finding that the Constable had set down as actually present on the

* There could not be a clearer illustration of the inconvenient working of the rule referred to. This solitary child who made one appearance, figured for thirteen weeks as one of the regular pupils of the school. In making the summary of the rolls for the year, she was again reckoned as one of the pupils in virtue of her single appearance. Her name appearing on the rolls at the end of 1868 as a pupil of the year, it was entered afresh on those for 1869; and did not disappear until the April of this latter year. Nay, the exactness which compels this most delusive return is such, that the number of pupils for 1869 will have been swelled by this imaginary one, who never crossed the threshold since the early part of 1868.

25th of June one "Established Church" child. Now, they had been told at the school that this child had attended only once, and that a long time previously. It was plain that either the Constable had not himself counted the children, but had been content to take his information at second hand, or else that the Nun who gave the information about this solitary Protestant child to the Commissioners had grossly misrepresented matters. It was clearly necessary to have the matter cleared up at once. Accordingly the following letter was written to the Sub-Inspector in charge of the Galway Constabulary District:—

"Royal Commission of Primary Education,
"Offices, 46, Sackville-street, Upper,
"Dublin, 6th July, 1868.

"Sir,—Will you ascertain from the Constable who took the numbers on the 25th June at the Claddagh National school under the Sisters of Mercy, and the Claddagh National Piscatory school, whether he actually himself counted the children present, or whether he took the numbers from the teachers?

"Your obedient servant,
(Signed), "D. B. Dunne, Secretary.

"Sub-Inspector Cullen, Galway."

To this letter the following answer was received :—

"Galway, 7th July, 1868.

"Sir,—In reply to your communication of the 6th inst., I have to state that the Sub-Constable who took the numbers on the 25th June last, at the Claddagh National school under the Sisters of Mercy, did not count the children, but took the numbers from the Sisters of Mercy, he counted the boys at the Claddagh National Piscatory school, about which you also required information.

"I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant, (Signed), "Francis N. Cullen, First Sub-Inspector Royal Irish Constabulary.

"D. B. Dunne, esq., Secretary."

It was necessary to bring to the notice of the Inspector-General this plain disregard of No. 3 of the instructions given above (page 14). This was done by the following letter :—

"Offices of Royal Commission of Primary Education,
"46, Sackville-street, Upper,
"Dublin, 8th July, 1868.

"Sir,—I have been directed by the Royal Commissioners of Inquiry into the state of Primary Education in Ireland to forward to you copies (enclosed) of a correspondence which we have had with Sub-Inspector Cullen of Galway.

"This correspondence arose out of a remarkable discrepancy between the numbers returned as having been present in those schools on the 25th June last, and the numbers observed by some of the Commissioners on the occasion of a visit to the schools a few days later.

"It is scarcely necessary to point out to you that the fact of the constable taking the numbers of the children from any person instead of counting them himself quite frustrates in the case of these schools the object the Royal Commissioners proposed to themselves in instituting this enumeration. They no longer have the independent personal guarantee of the officers of the Constabulary as to the number of children actually present on the 25th June last.

"I remain, Sir, your obedient servant, (Signed), "D. B. Dunne.

"To Colonel J. Stewart Wood, C.B.,
"Inspector-General Royal Irish Constabulary,
"Dublin Castle."

The following letters tell their own story :—

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle,
"9th July, 1868.

"Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, from which I discover with much regret that the sub-constable who took the numbers of the children at the Claddagh National school neglected to attend to the clear instructions issued at your instance in that regard; and I have to state for the information of the Commissioners of Primary Education Inquiry, that I shall institute further inquiry into the case, and deal with it as the result of that inquiry shall indicate. And I beg you will say to the Commissioners that should they wish that any other steps be taken in the matter I shall be happy to carry them out.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,
"Your obedient servant,
(Signed), "J. Stewart Wood,
"Inspector-General, Constabulary.

"The Secretary, Primary Education Commission, &c., &c.,
"46, Sackville-street, Upper."

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle,
"15th July, 1868.

"Sir,—Referring to your letter of the 6th instant, I beg to transmit the accompanying file that the Commissioners may see the steps taken to punish the neglect complained of, and have to request that you will be good enough to return it at your earliest convenience.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,

(Signed), "J. Stewart Wood,
"Inspector-General.

"D. B. Dunne, esq., Secretary Primary Education Commission,
"46, Sackville-street, Upper."

"Offices of Primary Education Commission,
"16th July, 1868.

"Sir,—We are directed by the Royal Commissioners of Inquiry into Primary Education in Ireland to acknowledge the receipt of your communication, dated 15th instant, enclosing file of correspondence relative to the case of sub-constable —— of the Galway district, and which we have the honour to return herewith.

"We are instructed to say that the Commissioners in returning the file of papers to the Inspector-General trust that he will give all the consideration in his power to the recommendation of the County Inspector favourable to sub-constable —— in consideration of his previous good character.

"We have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servants, (Signed), "George A. C. May.

"D. B. Dunne.

"Colonel J. Stewart Wood, C.B.
"Inspector-General, Royal Irish Constabulary,
"Dublin Castle."

The file of papers which accompanied the preceding letter included a strongly worded minute by the Inspector-General, directing a charge to be preferred against the Constable for his misconduct, and calling upon the Sub-Inspector for an explanation of his conduct in the transaction. It appeared from the other papers of the file that the Sub-Inspector in order to call special attention to the importance of the matter, had marked with the letter "A" the 3rd section of the confidential circular given above, which contained the direction to personally count the children. The Constable had no alternative but to admit the charge of having disobeyed the instruction, pleading however that he "did not do it wilfully." Having been "called on for any explanation he may have to offer," the Constable stated that he had never before been at a convent school, and the Ardagh school of the Sisters of Mercy was the first one visited by him on the day of taking the census. He continues:—"The scholars were playing at the time, and I thought that they may not all be there, so I asked one of the nuns how many scholars were in the school on that day, and she told me 194, and then I was bashful to ask her to call them in till I count them myself, as I thought she told me the proper number."

When returning the file of papers, the Commissioners expressed their trust that the Inspector-General would "give all the consideration in his power to the recommendation of the County Inspector, favourable to" the Constable "in consideration of his previous good character." The following letter will explain how the affair terminated.

"Constabulary Office, Dublin Castle,
"17th July, 1868.

"Gentlemen,—Referring to your communication of the 16th instant, returning the file of papers relating to sub-constable ——, and interceding for leniency in dealing with his case, I have to inform you in reply that although the very serious neglect of duty of which the sub-constable has been guilty deserves dismissal, yet, that taking into consideration the recommendation of the Royal Commissioners, and his previous unsullied character, the Inspector-General has only imposed on him a fine of one pound.

"I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

(Signed), "G. E. Hillier,
"Deputy Inspector-General.

"Messrs. G. A. C. May and D. B. Dunne, Joint Secretaries,
"Royal Commission of Primary Education,
"46, Sackville-street, Upper."

His Sub-Inspector and County Inspector reported his "previous conduct very good"; and the latter begged the Inspector-General's "merciful consideration for this good man."

Scattered inquiries which were made personally in various parts of the country by some of the Royal Commissioners and others, showed that the Claddagh case stood alone, and that there was no reason for suspecting that in any other instance the constables, through "bashfulness" or any other cause were induced to forego a personal reckoning of the children, and to take the numbers upon the report of other persons.

A curious circumstance occurred with regard to one group of schools, which illustrates not only the difficulty of taking a satisfactory educational census, but also other matters bearing upon the relations of the State and the clergy towards education. In all the Roman Catholic primary schools, within the Roman Catholic parish of Blackrock, Booterstown, and Dundrum (near Dublin), the Constables were refused permission to ascertain the religion of the children. In each school the teacher stated that the Manager had given orders to this effect. The Manager of all those schools was practically the Very Rev. Canon Forde, D.D., the parish priest of the district, and Vicar-General of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Dublin.

The constables were obliged to content themselves with counting the children actually present in those schools at the time of their visit. The return states, "Religion of pupils refused."

These facts having been brought under the notice of the Royal Commission, the following letter was addressed to the Secretaries of the National Board.

"Offices of Primary Education Commission,
"July 10th, 1868.

"GENTLEMEN,—We have been instructed by the Royal Commissioners to state for the information of the Commissioners of National Education that on the occasion of making an enumeration of the children actually present at school on the 25th ult., the enumerating Constable was refused the religion of the children in the schools given in the accompanying schedule.

"The Royal Commissioners instruct us to request that you will be so good as to ascertain through the District Inspector the religion of the children actually present in attendance in those schools on that day—25th June last.

"We remain, gentlemen, your obedient servants, (Signed), "GEORGE A. C. MAY, } Secretaries.

"D. B. DUNNE, }

"The Secretaries National Education Board,
"Marlborough-street."

With their answer to this letter, the Secretaries of the Board forwarded the following communication from the Inspector within whose district those schools were situated :—

"District 38.

"July 20th, 1868.

"GENTLEMEN,—I enclose the returns of the attendance in the Blackrock, Booterstown female, and Killorgan schools, on the 25th ultimo. The Constabulary return for the Blackrock schools is incorrect. It gives only sixty as the attendance in the infants' school on that day, whereas the real attendance was 151. It also gives forty-five as the attendance in the male school, whereas it was eighty-four. It gives eighty for the female school, whereas it was seventy-three. The teachers inform me that they do not know how the police got the return, as in those schools the information sought for was refused by the direction of the Manager, Very Rev. Canon Forde. The policemen called about a quarter past ten, an hour at which few schools in the city or county are assembled. To have the full school they should have waited till eleven.

"I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

(Signed), "F. F. O'CARROLL, District Inspector.

"To the Secretaries."

The last remark in the letter of District Inspector O'Carroll, might at first appear to discredit the accuracy of the reckoning of the Constabulary. But further consideration will show that this is not the case. The Constables went into the schools, as any other persons might have done in accordance with the Board's rules (Part I., Sect. viii., 1), "during the hours devoted to secular instruction." If it happened that a majority of the children, who would be entered in the attendance book as present on the 25th June, 1868, was absent at the time of the constables' visit, this only proves the irregularity of practice as to attendance which prevails in National schools. The entry of attendance on a particular day, is no guarantee as to the time during which an individual child may have been actually present in the school on that day.

From the rapidity with which the Returns were prepared and forwarded to the office, it was natural to expect that errors of detail should have crept in. The following classes of cases include all the most important errors.

I. Schools omitted in the Census of attendance which had been returned upon Form I., of the enumeration of the schools.

II. Schools returned in the Census of attendance which were not mentioned in Form I., of the enumeration of the schools.

III. Wrong description of schools, e.g.

(a) Schools in connexion with the National Board returned as being not so connected.

(b) Schools not in connexion with the National Board returned as being in connexion.

(c) Church Education or other classes of schools returned as private schools, &c.

IV. Wrong return of Religious Denominations, such as putting the return of the number of Roman Catholics in the column for Presbtyerians, or vice versâ.

V. Describing a girl's school as a "mixed school" because of the presence of some male infants.

VI. Entry of "boys" in the column for "girls," or vice versâ.

VII. Mistaking one number for another.

VIII. Setting down schools as having some endowment, or receiving aid of some kind, which were not so aided, and the contrary.

The mistakes included under categories III., IV., VI. and VII., arose in almost every case during the consolidation of the Local Returns (Form III.) upon the large District Return (Form IV). The person employed in each district in doing this work had the entries in the former read out to him as he wrote, and may have easily misplaced an entry horizontally or vertically, or mistaken one number for another similar to it in sound.

The Returns concerning the Census have been printed in the form in which they were supplied by the Constabulary. They have not been re-arranged according to any order, as it was considered advisable that the information should be given to the public in the exact way in which it was communicated to the Commission. In order to bring the information contained in the District Tables within the size when set up in type of a page of this volume, a number of abbreviations had to be made. During the preparation in this way of the Returns for the press many of the errors above referred to were detected. Some of these errors were very trifling, and were capable of being easily and safely corrected in the office of the Commission. When this could not be done with certainty or whenever there was any doubt as to the correctness of a Return, a communication was at once addressed to the Sub-Inspector of the District calling his attention to the error, and requesting its correction. As was naturally to be expected new errors crept in during the preparation of the Census for the press. These errors which we may call office errors are all embraced under the same categories as the original errors. When the whole of the Census was set up in type and revised from the original Returns the preparation of the Summary and Analytical Tables commenced. In the progress of this work the Census underwent a thorough revision, and most of the original errors which had escaped observation previously as well as the new or office ones which had crept in were detected. The errors thus discovered were corrected in the same way as before. When the means for their correction were within the reach of those engaged in preparing the tables, they were corrected, otherwise a communication was addressed to the Sub-Inspector on the subject. The correspondence relating to the correction of errors from first to last extended over a long period, and, with the exception of a few which were detected in making the School Index, which we shall refer to hereafter, it is believed that this Census is free from important errors, and certainly from mistakes arising from causes within the control of the Constabulary or Police.

As most of the errors, whether made in taking the Census or in preparing and printing the Returns, have been it is believed eliminated, it is not necessary to discuss them further, except so far as some of them may present special interest either in connexion with the general question of education, or with the Summary and Analytical Tables. In noticing such exceptional cases, we shall follow the order laid down above.

I. Schools omitted in the Census of ATTENDANCE, which had been returned upon Form I. —Five causes may be assigned for the omission in the Returns of Attendance of Schools mentioned in Form I.—1. The omitted schools may have been entered upon Form I. under another name ; 2, they may have been left out because the constables found them closed ; 3, they may have been omitted through oversight of the constables ; 4, they may have been given up in the interval ; or, 5, because they were found to be Secondary or Intermediate Schools. The first cause need not be noticed, but the number of cases accounted for by the second cause affords, to some extent, a criterion of the probable error in this Census, arising from omission of schools ; while the number of cases accounted for by the third gives us a glimpse of the changes which take place in the course of a couple of months in the localities of schools. The following table gives the number of schools returned on Form I. and omitted on Form IV., arranged according to counties and provinces, and classified according to causes of omission :—

Of the 13 schools discontinued, according to the foregoing Table, 4 were National Schools, 1 Church Education, and 8 Private.

II. Schools which were returned in the Census of Attendance, but which were not mentioned in the Enumeration of Schools.—The appearance of schools in the Census of attendance which were not mentioned in the first returns (Form I.) may be accounted for chiefly by :—1, oversight or the discovery of schools which escaped notice the first time ; and 2, the setting up of new schools. The number of cases under the first head serve to show, like those under the third cause assigned above for the omission of schools in Form IV. which were in Form I., the extent to which returns like those of the present Census made by the Constabulary themselves may be relied upon for completeness ; while those under the second head give us further information of the same kind as those under the fourth cause in the preceding table, namely, as to the growth of schools and the change in the localities of school-houses. The following table gives the number of schools returned in Form IV. which were not enumerated in Form I., arranged and classified as in the preceding table :—

Errors arising from the Description of Schools.—The observations which we propose to make under this head have chiefly reference to the principles upon which the schools in the Summary and Analytical Tables were grouped together.

In making out the Summary of Convent Schools, some difficulty was experienced in determining under which of the heads the several Convent Schools should be placed, namely, "Convent National," if the schools were in connexion with the National Board, and "Convent not National," if the schools were unconnected with the National Board. Several Convent Schools, which at one time received aid from the National Board, and then ceased to be connected with that Body, were still locally reputed to be National Schools. A few of those schools were, accordingly, returned as National Schools. A further difficulty arose when the schools of the Marist Brothers came to be dealt with. It should be stated here that the term "Convent Schools" is popularly applied to schools conducted by religious orders of women; but in the sense in which it is used by the Board of Education, and in the Summary Tables, it includes a few schools conducted by a religious order of men; because the rules under which aid is granted to the few Monks' Schools, which still remain in connexion with the Board of Education, are the same as those under which it is granted to Nuns' Schools. It appeared scarcely proper to include the Marist Schools referred to, in which a higher education is sometimes given, along with the ordinary schools. A new column, "Religious Orders," was accordingly introduced into the Summary Tables. Under this head are placed the Marist Schools, in Louth, St. Joseph's Blind Asylum, and St. Mary's Asylum, Dublin, for Industrial teaching only; the Cabra Deaf and Dumb School, the Inchicore School, under the Oblate Fathers, one school in Kerry under the Dominican Fathers, and the St. Vincent de Paul's Schools, Waterford. These schools have been classed together, not because they have much in common, that would naturally bring them under one head, but because they have a certain common religious character, and differ in some respects from ordinary schools.

With regard to Convent Schools, it may still further be observed that some difficulty arose from the fact that certain Convents, and notably those of the Loretto Order, have two classes of Schools, namely, Intermediate or Superior Schools for Ladies, and Poor Schools. The Census in many cases failed to distinguish between them, and it was only from other sources that it could be ascertained whether the school given in the Census belonged to the Primary or Intermediate class. Thus, the Loretto School, Stephen's-green, is described (p. 112, No. 220), as "Loretto Day," a name which might properly belong either to a Ladies' or a Poor School. In this particular instance, a reference to the Report of the National Board showed that the Poor School was not meant, as the latter is in connexion with the National Board, and is returned as the Leeson-lane National Girls' School in the Census (p. 111, No. 211). The Loretto Day School was accordingly included in the list of "Schools not Primary."

Some schools that have been included in the list of "Convent not National," presented difficulties of another kind, as, for instance, the St. Bridgid's Catholic School in Crow-street (p. 113, No. 252), and St. Brigid's School, Great Strand-street (p. 113, No. 275). Nothing could be ascertained about these schools from the usual sources as to whether they should be classed as ordinary poor schools or as Convent schools. In these cases, and in others of a similar kind, the text of the Census was followed, which gives the Crow-street School as under some Society or Order of St. Bridgid, and Strand-street School as under the Sisters of Holy Faith, which is apparently only another name for the Order of St. Bridgid, although the existence of such an Order in Dublin is not generally known.

Some schools, which in the Census appear peculiar, have not in the Summary Tables been included under a peculiar heading. Thus, the Trinity Church School, Lower Gardiner-street (p. 113, No. 260), has been referred to the head "Private Assisted," although from the Census it appears to be under some special government. The Smithfield Prison School (p. 115, No. 362) and the Drummond Institution (p. 115, No. 367) have been placed under the head "Miscellaneous," to which reference will be presently made. The first, although not a National school, is visited and reported on by the Inspectors of the National Board. The second is a special institution for the daughters of soldiers, and properly comes under the head "Miscellaneous."

The schools grouped under the head "Not Primary" in Tables V. and VI. ought not to have been included at all in the Returns; but, having been once included, they could not conveniently be left out in the Summary Tables. They are most of them outside of Dublin, and include several schools managed and taught by clergymen, which perform the functions of Diocesan Seminaries. Although elementary instruction is given in them, and they so far perform the functions of Primary schools, they are, strictly speaking, Grammar Schools, in which instruction in Latin, Greek, and Mathematics is regularly given. The schools of this group in Dublin are for the most part under the management of Religious Orders; several are, however, private schools, in which Classics, French, Music, &c., are taught.

Generally speaking, a school in this Census means a school-house; but there are some important exceptions. Thus, the Central Model School in Dublin is returned as eleven distinct schools, while in the Report of the National Board it is divided into ten departments. The Model School at Belfast has been returned by the Constabulary as one school; whereas in the classification of the National Board it is made up of four distinct schools. In the same way the large establishments of the Christian Brothers appear in the returns as single schools, although in truth they are distinct schools, carried on within the same building. The tables include returns for twenty-one Convent Schools in Dublin; whereas in the Report of the Commissioners of National Education the number of Convent Schools in connexion with the Board is given as fifteen. This discrepancy is explained by the fact that in the Census the Baggot-street Convent, for instance, is returned as having seven National Schools under it—each class in fact being returned as a separate school. It was deemed better not to disturb those arrangements, either in the case of the Baggot-street, King's Inns-street, or George's-hill schools, as it was considered that the information was worth having in the form presented by the Police, and that the inconvenience, if any, arising from this arrangement, could be remedied by a note like the present. In making out the average attendance, however, the Baggot-street and George's-hill Convent schools are each considered as a single school, and the Central Model School as ten schools.

Of the categories of errors enumerated above, those under III. were found to be the most numerous. Hence in drawing up the table (VIII. p. xlv.) of boys', girls', and infant schools, regard was necessarily had rather to the nature of the attendance in each case than to the description contained in the Returns, and the schools classed according as the character of the school was determined by the presence of male, female, or infant pupils. Some schools that were returned in the Census as "boys'" or "girls'," and which had a mixed attendance of boys and girls, are returned as mixed; and so also some are returned as infants' that are described in the returns as "boys and girls." The rule followed was that where the attendance was exclusively of one kind, the school was returned as of that kind; where the attendance was mixed, the school was returned as mixed, even though put down in the Returns as "boys'," "girls'," or "infants'." Thus, in the case of Antrim, only six schools were specially returned as infant schools, while following the rule just stated the number should be twelve, because in twelve schools the attendance consisted of infants only on the day of visit. In order, however, to make the Summaries and Returns harmonize as much as possible, every discrepancy of the kind just stated, as well as any other discrepancy or supposed error was, as we have already stated, referred back to the Constabulary. In no case was any attempt made to correct the returns in important matters of this kind in the office of the Commissioners; as now printed, the returns accordingly correspond with the summary in Table VIII. constructed upon the principle above stated.

A glance at the attendance of children in Irish Primary Schools, as given in the Census, will at once show that, except in a few cities and large towns, there is no room for schools specially set apart for infants in Ireland. Outside the Model Schools, and some of the larger towns, they are not known. Indeed the term "infant" has not in Ireland the definite technical meaning which it has in the English educational system. The return of infants is probably therefore much below the truth; so that it would have been better perhaps if a separate column for infants had not been introduced into Form IV. at all. On the other hand, from what we have said above, we may look upon the schools returned as having an attendance of infants only on the 25th June, 1868, as being practically if not strictly infant schools. Table VIII. may therefore be considered to fairly represent the relative numbers of separate male, female, and infant schools, and of mixed schools, that is, schools attended by both boys and girls.

The absence of any uniform principle as regards the classification of infants, by which the constabulary might be guided, affected the description of schools in another way. In many cases schools are returned as "boys' schools," even where there are more girls than boys, and vice versâ; thereby showing that the character of a school was not supposed to be affected by the presence of infants of a different sex from what the school was designed to accommodate. For the sake of uniformity, and to make the Summaries really represent what appeared on the face of the Census, the rule was adopted of classing the schools in this respect according to the description given of them by those who made the Returns.

Whilst in general it may be said that the Returns of National, Church Education, and Convent Schools were made upon definite and uniform principles, it is to be feared that the same observation does not apply to the "Private assisted" and "Private unassisted" schools. Indeed it must be obvious to any person who peruses the Census that in some cases the heading, "if maintained by private individuals," was taken to include the maintenance by the fees of scholars, whereas it really was intended to ascertain the number of cases in which contributions, independent of fees, were made for the support of the teachers by the landlord, the parish, or out of some more general fund. The consequence has been that whilst reliance may be placed upon the number of schools returned as "unassisted," none, or very little, can be attached to the column of "assisted schools." Although it is certain that in a great proportion of cases the heading "maintained by private individuals" was interpreted in the sense already referred to, and in a large number of cases a special note was added to signify the source of such aid, yet it is more than doubtful whether the large number of schools returned in the Summaries as "assisted" ought to be regarded in the light of aided schools. Still it was thought right to preserve the distinction for the sake of the return of "unassisted schools," which appears to be sufficiently reliable, and also because the return of "assisted schools," if not accurate, will supply data for conjecture that would not exist if the two classes of schools had been included in the same Summary.

This is perhaps the best place to make some further observations on the class of schools grouped together in the Summary Table III. under the head "private unassisted." Many of these private adventure schools were described in the Constabulary Returns as "Hedge Schools." In page 164 of the Census it is said that all the private schools of the district of Kilfinnane in the county of Limerick are of this class. In some cases, as in the instance just referred to, this description was printed, but in perhaps the majority of cases it was unfortunately not. The term "Hedge School" did not necessarily imply originally any intellectual or literary incapacity of the teacher for his office, but merely that owing to the legal disabilities of Roman Catholics the school could only be kept in some miserable cabin in winter, and under a hedge or other sheltered place in fine weather. Fifty years ago, several masters of "Hedge Schools" in the south of Ireland enjoyed considerable local reputation as classical and mathematical scholars. On the establishment of the National System of Education the more competent of the "Hedge" schoolmasters received salaries from the National Board, and their "Hedge Schools" were transformed into National Schools, the mud cabins being gradually, though not yet entirely, replaced by slated stone-built school-houses. Yet, notwithstanding the growth of National and other schools in which the school fee is not more than one penny a week, and the payment of even this small fee is not always enforced, the Constabulary have returned under the name of "Hedge Schools" 117 schools in Munster, 43 Leinster, and 44 Connaught, and in all Ireland 207 schools, the teachers of which depend for their livelihood on school fees. Whatever may have been the character of the original schools known under the designation of "Hedge Schools," there can be no doubt that the term now implies incapacity in the teacher as well as unfitness in the school-house.

In consequence of the omission from the printed Census in so many cases of the word "Hedge School," we think it desirable to preserve so curious an educational record, and give accordingly in the following table a list of all the schools described in the District Returns of the Constabulary as Hedge Schools, and the attendance at each on the 25th of June, 1868.

It will be seen from this list that the term "Hedge School" has been applied to city and town schools as well as to rural schools. This extended application of the term explains the sense in which it is now to be understood. With the exception of three in the county of Cavan, no "Hedge Schools" are returned for Ulster. The term was never however much used in the north of Ireland, and consequently fell into desuetude there more rapidly than in Munster. Whilst the use of the term "Hedge School" leaves no room for doubt as to the kind of school meant, the term "Private" affords no information as to the character of the school-house, or the capacity of the teacher. It is probable therefore that many of the Private schools in Ulster might be truly described as "Hedge Schools," and that the foregoing list does not contain all of the Private schools which ought to be included in the same category. As the list stands it informs us of the curious fact that 17·7 per cent. of the Primary schools not aided by the State, or under the management of Public Bodies, could be still described in 1868 as "Hedge Schools," and that there are still some poor people willing to pay for the education of their children, even where facilities are offered of obtaining a much superior education gratuitously in National and other schools.

Summary and Analytical Tables.—After what has been said above respecting the Summary and Analytical Tables in connexion with the correction of the errors of the Census, we need not say much more in explanation of those tables. Indeed, with the exception of the column "Others" in Tables III. and IV., the analysis of it in Tables V.

and VI., and Table XVI., to which reference will be made further on, the Summary Tables require no special description.

A glance at the list of abbreviations used in the eighth column of the Educational Census Returns, p. liii., will show the impossibility of giving separate columns in Tables III. and IV. to each class of school named in the Returns. Some of these classes comprise not more than half a dozen schools. All schools not coming under the heads "National," "Convent," "Church Education," "Christian Brothers," and "Private," were accordingly included under the head "Others" in Table III., and the attendance at them in Table IV. Table V. gives an analysis of the classes thus grouped together, and Table VI. gives a corresponding analysis of the attendance. So numerous are the classes of schools included under the head "Others," that a separate column could not be given to each even in the special Analytical Tables V. and VI., and it was accordingly found necessary to group a number of schools under the head "Miscellaneous." This group comprehends some schools under the management of the War Office, others under the Irish Relief Society, and generally such as are managed by a special body, but are so few that even were it possible to give to each a distinct column it would not be worth while doing so.

Out of the 8,627 schools visited, or attempted to be visited, by the Constabulary and Police for the purpose of counting the children present, no returns of attendance were obtained from 577 schools. This number, forming 6·6 per cent. of the whole, gives us the number of schools inoperative on the 25th of June, 1868. Does this number represent the average number of schools inoperative throughout the year, or an approximation to it? This is a very important question, but one which we have no data to enable us to answer. It seemed, however, desirable to analyse the causes assigned by the Constables for the several schools being closed, and to give in a table the number of schools under each head. Table VII. gives the result of this inquiry. In order not to multiply too much the number of headings, a column headed "Closed, various causes," was introduced. Under this head are included 89 schools, of which 30 were in Connaught, 24 in Ulster, 21 in Munster, and 14 in Leinster. In the majority of these cases the cause assigned was the holding of a fair in the neighbourhood of the school, which prevented the attendance of the children. In a few cases the cause assigned was the attendance of the children at the Roman Catholic church, or that they were being prepared for confirmation. The teachers were found to be absent in twenty schools, in some cases without any cause being assigned, and in others an explanation is added that he was attending Quarter Sessions, or at chapel. It was not deemed necessary to introduce a column for each of these separate reasons, and as the general principles upon which the table was constructed is sufficiently apparent from what we have just said, there will be no difficulty in distinguishing the individual instances in case they should be required by anyone making use of the Census for statistical purposes.

So much importance is attached to the question of how far the Primary Schools in Ireland, especially those under the National Board, have a mixed attendance, that is, are attended by children of different religious denominations, and how far they are denominational, that is, attended by children of one religious denomination only, that it was deemed desirable to prepare an analytical table, for the purpose of showing the number of schools attended by children of one religious denomination only, and of those attended by persons of different religious denominations. Grouping the different denominations of Presbyterians under the one head of "Presbyterians," and all other Dissenters under the head of "Others," we get four denominational elements of mixture or combination, which are found to give rise to eleven different mixtures. Thus, Roman Catholics and Episcopalian Protestants attend the same schools in some places; Episcopalian Protestants and Presbyterians in others, and so on—or, in other words, any two, any three, or all four, may mix in the same school. The extent of this variable mixture is fully shown in Table IX.

A National School attended by Roman Catholic children would be made a "mixed school" for one year, in the sense in which the word "mixed" is used, to indicate that the children attending a given school belong to different religious denominations by a single attendance of a Protestant child. As we have seen in the instance of the Galway Convent School, it might be thus made in exceptional cases a mixed school even for two years. In the same way a Protestant school might be made a mixed school by a single attendance of a Roman Catholic child. It is plain, therefore, that the relative proportions of the different religious denominations which make up the mixed attendance of "mixed" schools should always be given, as nothing can be more fallacious than a bare statement of the number of mixed and unmixed schools, without any indication of the character and proportions of the elements which constitute the "mixture." In the analytical Table XI. all the schools in connexion with the National Board having a mixed attendance are divided into two groups, according as the minority consists of Protestants or of Catholics; the schools of each group are there classified according to the number of children forming the minority. Tables XII. XIII. give the schools of the Church Education Society, and of the Board of Erasmus Smith respectively classified in the same way; and Table XIV. all other schools not belonging to either of the preceding categories.

In making up the Summary Table of attendance six schools in Sligo,—five National Schools, and one Church Education School; two Church Education Schools in Roscommon; and two Incorporated Society's Schools in Tipperary were struck out, because the returns were made from an average supplied either by the managers or teachers and not from personal observations.

Alphabetical Index of Schools.—The returns having been printed, as we have already stated, in the form in which they were supplied by the Constabulary, and without arranging them in any order which would facilitate reference, it was deemed necessary to append an Alphabetical Index of the schools enumerated in the Census, arranged according to localities. Without this Index the Census itself would have been deprived of much of its utility, by reason of the difficulty of searching out in the Census a school the particulars of which it might be desired to investigate.

This is the first attempt, so far as is known, to compile a Primary School Index. It is needless to say that, while its compilation has been beset with much difficulty, it does not pretend to be perfect. Indeed a very slight consideration of the materials available will satisfy anyone that the preparation from them of a complete Index was an impossibility.

The schools have been placed in the alphabetical order of the localities where the Constabulary reported they were held. It was soon found that in many cases these reported localities were the townlands in which the schools were held, while the actual place of the school bore a different name. Thus, "Parksgrove" is the name of a townland in the parish of Aharney, barony of Galmoy, county of Kilkenny. The Constabulary have returned Parksgrove as the locality of two National schools; but the place where these schools are held is properly the village of Ballyragget, which is within the townland of Parksgrove, and the schools are actually known as the Ballyragget National Schools. In the same way Ballycatteen, a townland in the parish of Templetrine, barony of Courceys, and county of Cork, was reported as the locality of two schools which are usually known by the name of Ballinspittle Schools, from a village of that name within the townland where the schools are held.

Obviously, were the Index to mention only the names of the townlands given by the Constabulary as the places where those schools were held, persons even most familiarly acquainted with the schools might fail to recognise them. Hence it has been thought well to give both sets of names—as well that of the locality reported by the Constabulary, as that of the actual place in connexion with which the school is commonly known. Ballyragget, therefore, will be found in the Index as well as Parksgrove, and Ballinspittle as well as Ballycatteen.

But the references to the place in the Census where the details of information connected with the schools will be found is only given in connexion with the name of the locality returned by the Constabulary, and a reference to the Constabulary name is made when the more usual name is given. Thus, at the name Ballyraggett will be found "see Parksgrove," at Ballinspittle will be found "see Ballycatteen; and in connexion with the names Parksgrove and Ballycatteen will be found the references to those places in the Census where the details of information concerning those schools are given.

A further column in the Index gives the description of the school as set out in the Census. But in doing this it has not been considered necessary to give the full description contained in the Census, but only the head or general classification, such as "National," "Church Education," &c. The word "Convent" or "Workhouse" has been added where it was proper, in order to assist the identification of such schools.

It was obviously a matter of convenience, at least, if not of importance, that the several National schools as returned by the Constabulary should be identified from the Lists annually published by the Commissioners of National Education. In this way anyone could supplement the information concerning those schools contained in the Census by reference to the Reports of the Commissioners of National Education. The plainest and most simple way of indicating such identity was to give in a separate column the Board's Roll Number for each school. This seemed at first sight an easy task. The list of National schools which is annually published in the Appendix to the Report of the Commissioners is arranged according to counties and parishes, and the several schools which may happen to be within the same parish are distinguished by their proper designations, usually drawn from the places where the schools are situated. Now, in the Census the locality, barony, townland, and parish of each school are given, so that it seemed a very simple matter to identify the corresponding schools in the two lists. But it was soon found that the identification was anything but an easy task.

It has been stated already, that in the nomenclature of the National Board "school" and "school-house" are not necessarily synonymous. A boy's and a girl's school, though held in two rooms in the same building and under the same roof are reckoned as two schools, with separate roll numbers which are not always consecutive. Thus, to take an example at random, Blackwatertown School, in the county of Armagh, has the roll numbers 384 and 7,954. On the other hand, as the most cursory glance at the Census will show, "school" and "school-house" with the Constabulary were in almost all cases synonymous. It accordingly happens that in many instances a single school as returned by the Constabulary is equivalent to more than one school according to the classification of the National Board. This difference in nomenclature and the non-consecutiveness of the roll numbers of the school departments in the same building was a difficulty, but by no means the greatest.

The name by which the school is designated in the list of the National Board was not always the same as that under which it had been returned by the Constabulary. A glance at the Index, in which the names printed in italics are those of the Board's List, will show how extensive this discrepancy was; and yet numerous as are the instances of difference of name which have been printed in the Index, they form but a portion only of the cases of this difference which really exist.

In some instances the difference of name was traceable to a corruption of spelling which could be easily accounted for by a correct phonetic spelling of the Irish name, as it was heard pronounced, or by an imperfect attempt to represent the common Anglicized name.

Generally, the difference between the Ordnance Survey names and those of the National Board's List of schools is not so great that the corresponding names cannot be easily recognised. The following examples of variation in the orthography of school names, taken from many hundreds, show the necessity of an organic orthography of school names, and of a more careful revision of the Board's List of schools while passing through the press:—

County.	Ordnance Survey Name.	National Board Name.
Armagh,	Annagelliff,	Annagcliffe.
	Castleterra,	Castletara.
	Drumlumman,	Drumlumma.
Cavan,	Drumgoon,	Drumgood.
Cork,	Ballyhay,	Ballyhairy.
Donegal,	Aughnish,	Aughinish.
	Aghanunshin,	Aghuninshun.
	Desertegny,	Dysertgeney.
	Kilteevoge,	Kiltyvoge and Kiltevock.
	Killymard,	Killynard.
	Templecarn,	Templecairne.
Down,	Ballytrustan,	Ballytustan.
	Ballycutter,	Ballyculter.
Mayo,	Ballyovey,	Ballycroy.

Sometimes, however, the alteration attributable to the causes above specified is so great as almost to defy identification. Thus, Glasdrumman can with difficulty be deciphered out of Glostermin; and Lackbrooder scarcely suggests Loughfouder.

We have already referred to two cases (Parksgrove and Ballycatteen) where the names were quite different. Instances of such differences are very numerous. In some cases, a reference to the Ordnance Survey maps was sufficient to decide the identity of the school, with the aid of the topographical data given in the Census. But the number of cases in which all these various circumstantial sources of information were insufficient to fix the identity of the school were very numerous. When this happened, the course almost invariably adopted was to procure through the Constabulary information as to the Board's Roll Number of the school, the surest means of identification. Upwards of 200 letters have been written on this point alone.

While on this subject, it is right that we should return our special thanks to the Constabulary and Police. In the Introduction to the General Report, the Royal Commissioners have expressed themselves in terms of commendation of "the efficient way in which the statistics required by the Commission had been collected throughout the country by the Constabulary." Similar commendation has been merited by that body for their conduct in connexion with the inquiries which were subsequently addressed to their officers, in order to procure further information or the correction of the inaccuracies which had been discovered. These inquiries have extended over a very long period; they were necessarily desultory, involving often petty and intricate details. It would not be possible to exceed the courtesy and attention which those inquiries received from those gentlemen; and much of the completeness of the Index to the Schools is owing to the assistance thus rendered.

The difference of name was not the only, nor in some cases at least the greatest difficulty in the way of identifying the National schools. After the identity of a school had been fully ascertained by obtaining official information of its roll number, it has been sometimes found that it was not situated in the parish in which it is placed by the Board's List, nor even in the neighbourhood. In some cases the parish set down in the Board's List does not exist in the county to which it is assigned, nor even in any other part of Ireland.

In other instances the parish assigned to the school is not to be found among the civil parishes of the country as marked upon the maps of the Ordnance Survey, but is an ecclesiastical parish (generally Roman Catholic) made up of several civil parishes, or portions of parishes. An example of this is the National school of Ballynamona, in the county of Cavan, and parish of Moybolgue. The parish given in the list of the National Board is Kilmainhamwood. There is no civil parish of this name in Ireland, although there is a Protestant ecclesiastical union so named in the county of Westmeath. There is also a Roman Catholic ecclesiastical parish named Moybolgue and Kilmainham. A case was given in evidence before the Commission of a school (Broughshane) in the county of Antrim, which according to the Board's List was in two parishes, the upper storey of the house in which the girls' school is held being described as situated in the parish of Skerry, and the lower storey, or boys' school, in the parish of Racavan. This curious duality of parochial designation existed down to the Report for 1868 ; and the reduction to a single parish appears for the first time in the Appendix to the Report for 1869 which was not published until after the appearance of the evidence taken before the Commission.

A similar case is that of Cahersherkin, in the parish of Clooney, barony of Corcomroe, and county of Clare, which the Constabulary returned as a single school (i.e., school-house), attended by boys and girls. In the Board's Lists this school has two roll numbers, viz., 5,186 for the boys' school and 8,500 for the girls'. In the list for 1868 the boys' school is placed in the parish of Clonlea, and the girls' in that of Clooney, two parishes being thus assigned to the one school-house. In the list for 1869 the parochial duality disappears, both schools being described as situated in the parish of Clonlea, the nearest point of which parish is, as a matter of fact twenty-one miles distant from the place where the school is held.

The case of the Ballymacarrett Schools is an instance of the trouble which will often attend an attempt to identify the schools that appear in the National Board's List of Schools. Ballymacarrett is a suburb of Belfast, and at first sight it would seem that there, if anywhere, the exact locality of every school would be surely ascertained. The following table, giving the localities of the National schools, as reported by the Constabulary, and as set down in the Board's List for 1868, will best show whether this is the case or not.

The contradiction of the two authorities seemed to be complete. The Board's list reported the "Bridge End" School as under Roman Catholic management, but the police reported that of 114 children present on the 25th June, 1868, in the Bridge End School, only 2 were Roman Catholics, while 69 were Presbyterians, and 41 Episcopalians. Several communications were had with Mr. Owen, the Sub-Inspector of the Belfast East Constabulary District, in order to determine with certainty the localities of the schools. That gentleman took great pains to procure accurate information on the subject, and made personal inquiries of the teachers of the several National schools. The result of those inquiries is contained in the preceding table, which gives, on the authority of the Constabulary, the locality where each school is held, the corresponding Roll Numbers of which has been obtained from the principal teachers.

The following additional instances have been selected out of many as illustrations of the difficulties of this class :—

Locality of School according to Constabulary.	County.	County No. in Census.	Name of School in List of National Board.	Roll Number.	Parish, according to Ordnance Survey.	Parish, according to Board's List.	Observations.

Bonlysallagh,	Cork,	733–4	Goleen,	5,656, 5,657	Kilmoe,	Kilmore,	There is no Parish named Kilmore in Cork. Elsewhere in the Board's list of National Schools in the County of Cork the Parish of Kilmoe appears quite correctly.

Culnaman,	Londonderry,	108	Drumeen,	4,191	Desertoghill,	Lissan,	Lissan is a Parish in a different Barony. Its nearest point is 18 miles distant from the place where the school is held.

Another instance of difficulty of identification, from a different cause, may also be cited.

Among the Queenstown (co. of Cork) schools is one thus described in the National Board's "List of schools in operation on the 31st December, 1868":—

Roll Number.	Parish.	School.	Management.
10,038.	Clonmel.	Queenstown.	Established Church, Clerical. Inoperative.

When preparing the Index, it was found that the only school corresponding to this description was one returned by the Constabulary as a "Presbyterian" National school, and having an attendance on the 25th June, 1868, of 15 Established Church children and 6 Presbyterian children. It seemed so strange that a school under the management of an Episcopalian clergyman could be correctly described as a "Presbyterian" school, that a communication was addressed to the Sub-Inspector of Constabulary at Queenstown. This officer made personal inquiries on the subject, and reported that the school having the roll number 10,038 is attached to the Presbyterian Meeting-house at Queenstown, and that he was informed by the Presbyterian clergyman that he is the manager, and that the school has never been "in operation," i.e., has never had the requisite number (thirty) of scholars. Under these circumstances it is clear that it must have been through error that this school was described in the list for 1868 as under Established Church clerical management. The error was repeated in the list for 1869, with the additional observation that it was "closed."

School Accommodation.—In several of the Returns the Constabulary have noted the fact that large districts exist in many parts of the country which are either wholly destitute of schools or but scantily provided with them. The Royal Commissioners intended to prepare a set of maps, upon which should be marked the sites of all rural Primary Schools, the several classes of schools being indicated by colours or other distinctive marks. These maps would have shown at a glance the geographical distribution of school-houses, where they were too numerous, if there be any districts in which this is the case; where they are too few; and lastly, the districts wholly unprovided with schools. In any scheme for the division of the country into School Districts, with the view of local taxation for the maintenance of schools, as well as for other purposes connected with the better organization of Primary Schools, such maps would be indispensable. In the Appendix to their Report, the Royal Commissioners have printed a scheme of this kind. A good deal of the preliminary work necessary for the construction of such maps was actually done, but the Treasury did not consider it advisable to go to the expense of their preparation.

In the absence of School Maps, Table XVI. has been prepared, in order that the actual distribution of schools, with reference to area and the necessities of the children of "School Age," may be the more readily and the better understood, and to serve as an illustration of the scheme of School Districts above mentioned, and assist in making it more intelligible.

Table XVI. gives for every county and province in Ireland the Land Area, the total Population, as it stood in 1861, the Population in that year of "School Age," that is, the number of children between five and fifteen years of age; the number of schools returned by the Constabulary and Police; the number of children actually found present in those schools on the 25th of June, 1868; the average number of children of "School Age" upon each square mile; the per-centage which the children of "School Age" form of the whole population; the average area in square miles to each existing school; the proportion between the population of "School Age" and the existing school accommodation, that is, the number of children of "School Age" to each existing Primary School; the per-centage which the children actually present at school on the 25th of June, 1868, form of the total school population; and lastly, the average number of children found present on that day in each school.

This Table will also be found useful in connexion with the important question of "Payment by Results."

Errors in the Printed Census.—The printed Census, as has been stated, underwent three revisions :—First, a collation with the original District Returns; secondly, a careful reading during the preparation of the Summary and Analytical Tables; and thirdly, a thorough examination as to localities and description of schools, in preparing the Alphabetical Index of Schools. The errors made by the Constabulary in transferring the Local Returns to the large form or District Return, and the errors made in the office of the Commission in preparing the Returns for the press, and which were detected during the first two revisions, have been fully discussed in the preceding pages. The errors, whether of the Constabulary or of the office, which were detected during the third revision in preparing the Index, have now to be considered. The errors and omissions detected during this final revision are indicated for the most part in foot notes in the Alphabetical Index. Only those which affect in any way the Summary Tables, and the numbers quoted from them in the Report of the Commission, need be noticed here. These errors are as follows :—

I. Wrong Entry of the Religious Denominations of Children.

Aghagallon (Antrim) p. 11, No. 420. The children of this school, numbering seventy-three, were all Roman Catholics, and have been erroneously printed in the column for Presbyterians.

II. Wrong Entry of Attendance, e.g., such as putting that of one School for another.

The attendance of the Cabra Convent Schools, county of Dublin, has been incorrectly entered. It should have been as follows :—

No. 318,	Cabra Convent,	St. Mary's Poor, . . .	Boys, 30 ;	Girls, 100
„ 319,	Do.	St. Mary's Deaf and Dumb Institution,	—	„ 140
„ 320,	Do.	St. Mary's Boarding School, ...	—	„ 70

III. Schools connected with the National Board, which are described as not connected with that Body.

1. City of Cork, p. 173.

No. 32,	Great George's-street,	Presentation Monks, .	Total Number of Boys, 319
„ 40,	Douglas-street,	do. .	„ „ 453
„ 41,	Do.	(Convent) Presentation Nuns,	Total Number of Girls, 794

Or a total to be added to children in National Schools, and to be deducted from the total of non-National Schools—boys, 772, and girls, 794.

As these errors in the Printed Census were discovered after the preparation of the Summary and Analytical Tables, and the publication of the General Report of the Commissioners, in which those Tables are used, they could not be corrected in the Tables themselves without giving rise to great inconvenience and confusion; nor is it necessary to mention in detail the numbers in the Tables affected by those errors, which, except in one instance, are so small as to scarcely affect the total numbers, and do not sensibly alter the per-centages given in the General Report. It may, however, be useful to give in the following Tables the total numbers directly or indirectly used in the Report which require correction. Anyone using the Census for statistical purposes can readily make the necessary detailed corrections for each county and province affected by the errors.

NOTE.—In some cases where schools were found closed on the 25th June, the attendance of a previous day was given, and was included in the several Tables. In each of ten cases occurring in Sligo, Roscommon, and Tipperary, an average supplied by the Patron or Teacher was returned, and was made use of in the Tables of Mixed Schools, but was not used in making out the Table of Attendance. To this circumstance is due the difference in the number of "No Returns" in the various Tables.

EXPLANATION OF ABBREVIATIONS USED IN 8TH COLUMN OF EDUCATIONAL CENSUS RETURNS.

THE following is a list (arranged in alphabetical order) of the Abbreviations used in the Printed Census, to indicate the special description of the Societies or Bodies with which, according to the Constabulary, several of the Schools are connected. It is easy to perceive that, in some cases, the descriptions are not technically accurate, and that the same Society, or Body, has been designated by different descriptions. Thus—Presentation Nuns, Presentation Sisters, Presentation Convent, are all different ways of indicating the same religious Society. Similarly, the phrases, Wesleyan Methodists, Methodists, Wesleyan Body, Wesleyan Society, do not imply different Bodies.

But it was considered advisable in this matter, as in others, to adhere faithfully to the language employed by the Constabulary in their Returns, even with some sacrifice of technical accuracy. At the same time, as the examples given above show, the Constabulary descriptions are substantially correct, and quite sufficient for all who have any acquaintance with the subject.

* In this school Viscount De Vesci pays a teacher in winter for the benefit of his labourers, and any poor persons who may be able to attend at night.
† When the enumerator visited this school, he was told by the teacher that "he was expecting his visit." Knockardagur is in the same parish, and under the same patron. The teacher stated it was the priest told him.
‡ The parish priests are the patrons of the National schools, and few (if any) Protestants attend them.

* There is a wide tract of country between Crossmolina and Corick without a school, thickly inhabited both sides of the road; distance, 10 miles. No schools in Nephin or Bofinar, both districts thickly populated.

† This school was built by T. S. Carter, Esq., the landlord, for the benefit of the tenants' children, who subscribe towards its support. ‡ There was a Nat onal School convenient to this school, but was discontinued on account of bad house.

§ In the district of Louisburgh, the most central place for a school would be Derryheeagh, as it would give the people of surrounding townlands the benefit of school instruction, which they have not at present. The master of school held at Delphie attends at Bundorragha in the evening to instruct the Roman Catholic children in the neighbourhood. A school, as suggested above, would meet this want.

‖ Specially set apart for the tenants and those in employment of Captain Houston, of Delphie.

¶ Owing to the high state of the sea the constable could not be landed on the island to-day.

* There is no school from Newinn to Clonmel, eleven miles; nor from Clerehan to Ballingeary school—distance, seven miles.
† These three schools are convenient to each other. The teacher of the boys' school gives literary instruction to the pupils of the Model School.
‡ The Marchioness of Ormond allows a house and small farm to the teacher of this school, for giving instruction to the children of tenants on this part of the Ormond estate some of whom pay a small fee.

NOTE.—There is a large tract of mountain lying between Sixmilebridge, in this county, and the city of Limerick, where no school is now in operation. It is a district capable of improvement, and there is an excellent road through it; several farms have been reclaimed, but no schools have been opened. A better class of houses than those now used for schools is much needed, both as to situation and accommodation, and that they should have some ground attached. A great want of personal cleanliness is observable in some teachers in the country districts. The salaries of respectable teachers are too small, particularly for those who have families, and they cannot appear as respectably clothed as they would wish.

* Several of the children from this school were at religious instruction to-day.

† There is an agricultural class taught at this school. There is also some land attached for the practical training of the pupils.

And we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, ordain, declare, and direct that whenever the said Commissioners, or either or any of them, or any other person or persons to be appointed in their place or in succession to them, or any of them, shall by death, resignation, removal, or otherwise, cease to be a Commissioner or Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, then and in every such case it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being, by warrant under hand and seal, to appoint one other person in the place and stead of any such person so ceasing to be such Commissioner respectively, and any such person so to be appointed shall accordingly be and become one of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, and member of the corporation hereby constituted. And we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, grant, declare, and appoint that it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant, or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being, if it shall appear fit to him or them respectively, to increase the number of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland: provided, however, that the whole number of persons intended by virtue of these presents to be incorporated, as aforesaid, do not at any time exceed fifteen, but may consist of any less number. Lastly, we do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, grant unto the said body corporate, by the name of 'The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland,' and to their successors, that these, our letters patent, or the enrolment hereof, shall be in and by all things good, firm, valid, sufficient, and effectual in the law, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, and shall be taken, construed, and adjudged, in the most favourable and beneficial sense, for the best advantage of the said body corporate, and their successors, as well in all courts of records as elsewhere, and by all and singular the officers and ministers whomsoever and wheresoever of us, our heirs and successors. And whereas, in order further to promote the welfare by providing for the education of the poor of Ireland, it appears to us expedient that the number of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland should be increased, so that the persons constituting the said body corporate and politic should not at any time exceed twenty, of whom ten and not more than ten shall be Protestants, and ten and not more than ten shall be Roman Catholics, but that the said persons constituting the said body corporate and politic may consist at any time of a less number than twenty. And further, that to make up the number of said Commissioners to twenty, as aforesaid, the persons next hereinafter named shall be forthwith created members of the said body corporate and politic, in conjunction with the present members thereof hereinbefore set forth—that is to say, the Right Honorable Edwin Richard Windham, Earl of Dunraven; the Right Honorable James Henry Monahan, Lord Chief Justice of our Common Pleas in Ireland; the Right Honorable David Richard Pigot, Lord Chief Baron of our Exchequer in Ireland; James Anthony Lawson, esq., LL.D., our Solicitor-General in Ireland; the Rev. John Hall; Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq., and John O'Hagan, esq., be the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland; and all and every other person and persons who shall from time to time be appointed a Commissioner or Commissioners of National Education in Ireland by the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being (the said Commissioners. and all and every other person and persons so appointed by the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being, to be removable at his or their pleasure), to be for ever hereafter one body corporate and politic, in deed and in name, and that the said body corporate shall be called "The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland," and them by the name of "The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland," into one body corporate and politic, in deed, fact, and name, for ever, for us, our heirs and successors, to direct, constitute, establish, confirm, and declare; and that the said Commissioners of National Education in Ireland shall exercise and enjoy all and singular the gifts, grants, liberties, privileges, and immunities, possessions, real and personal, whatsoever, by any Act or Acts of Parliament, or by the said recited Letters Patent, or by any Letters Patent granted and confirmed unto, and lawfully acquired by the said body corporate and politic, or which might be exercised and enjoyed by them as members for the time being of the said corporation, and not hereby altered or amended. And we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, ordain, declare, and direct, that when the said Commissioners, or either or any of them, or any other person or persons to be appointed in their place or in succession to them or any of them, shall by death, resignation, removal, or otherwise, cease to be a Commissioner or Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, that then and in every such case it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant, or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being, by warrant, under hand and seal, to appoint one other person in the place and stead of any such person so ceasing to be such Commissioner respectively, so, however, that in case at the time of such appointment the minority in number of the members of the said body corporate and politic shall be Protestants, the person so to be appointed shall be a Protestant, and in case at the time of such appointment the minority in number of the members of the said body corporate and politic shall be Roman Catholics, the person so to be appointed shall be a Roman Catholic; it being our intention that as far as practicable, one-half of the members of said body corporate and politic shall always be Protestants, and the other half Roman Catholics; and every such person so to be appointed shall accordingly be and become one of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, and member of the corporation by the said recited Letters Patent, and by these our Letters Patent to be constituted. And we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, grant, declare, and affirm, that it shall and may be lawful for the said Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being, if it shall appear fit to him or them respectively, to keep up the full number of twenty persons as Commissioners of National Education in Ireland; and that at all times, so long as the said full number of twenty persons shall be kept up, ten and not more than ten of such persons shall be persons professing the Roman Catholic religion: provided, however, that the whole number of persons intended by virtue of such Letters Patent to be incorporated as aforesaid do not at any time exceed twenty, but may consist of any less number. And further, we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, grant, declare, and appoint, that the said recited Letters Patent, dated the twenty-sixth day of August, in the ninth year of our reign, are to be in all respects confirmed, save as to so much thereof as relates to the names, number, and religious profession of the persons as aforesaid hereafter to constitute the members of the said Corporation, and the appointments to be from time to time made in future of the persons to fill the place of members ceasing to be Commissioners as aforesaid. And lastly, we do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, grant unto the said body corporate, by the name of "The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland," and to their successors, that these our Letters Patent, or the enrolment hereof, shall be in and by all things good, firm, valid, sufficient, and effectual in the law, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, and shall be taken, construed, and adjudged in the most favourable and beneficial sense, for the best advantage of the said body corporate and their successors, as well in all courts of records as elsewhere, and by all and singular the officers and ministers whomsoever and wheresoever of us, our heirs and successors: provided always, that these our Letters Patent be enrolled in the Rolls of our High Court of Chancery in Ireland, within the space of six calendar months next ensuing the date hereof.—In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Witness, George William Frederick, Earl of Carlisle, our Lieutenant-General and General Governor of Ireland, at Dublin, the eleventh day of March, in the twenty-fourth year of our reign.

MINUTE of BOARD, April 5, 1832.

Resolved, that in pursuance of the Resolution of the 6th March ult., the following letter, signed by the Commissioners, be addressed and forwarded to the Right Hon. E. J. Stanley.

" Inasmuch as the Regulation of the Board which requires that in all schools a Register be kept, in which shall be entered the attendance or non-attendance of each child on Divine Worship on Sunday, has been objected to from different quarters, and that the rescinding of it may dispose many persons at present opposed to the system of education committed to us, to support and promote it; and as it appears to us the rule is one which may be abandoned without any departure from the general principle of Mr. Stanley's original letter to the Duke of Leinster, we beg leave to suggest to His Majesty's Government the expediency of rescinding it." Fifth Change.—MINUTE of BOARD, Feb. 26, 1846.

The Secretary lays before the Commissioners revised proof of the Rules, and of the new form of Lease.

Sixth Change.—MINUTE of BOARD, Nov. 18, 1847.

Letter 5,056, S. from the Rev. A. Ellis is again brought up, and the Commissioners are informed by the Secretaries that they had of late been frequently consulted, both personally and by letter, as to the true meaning of the following portion of Section II. paragraph 3, of the Rules of the Board, with reference to Religious Instruction :—" That due regard be had to parental right and authority, that accordingly no child be compelled to receive, or be present at, any religious instruction to which its parents or guardians object;" and they deem it desirable that the Board should supply them with an authoritative answer to such questions.

The Commissioners direct the Secretaries to state—

I. That the true interpretation of the words in question clearly is, that no child be compelled to receive or to be present at any religious instruction to which his parents or guardians object; and that the Rule (in conjunction with the notification in the school-room of the arrangement for giving religious instruction by Rule 9, Section II.) has hitherto been found amply sufficient for the full enforcement of parental authority.

MINUTE of BOARD, January 20, 1848.

The Secretary brings under the notice of the Commissioners the portion of Section II. paragraph 3, of the existing Rules commencing with " That due regard be had," &c., the words of which do not precisely agree with those sanctioned by a Minute of November 18, and ordered to be used in future, as conveying more clearly the true interpretation of that part of the rule in question.

Ordered, that a new Edition of the Rules be printed containing the alterations in the wording of the Rule in question, in accordance with the Minute of the Board of November 18; and that the phraseology in the new form of Lease be made to correspond therewith.—(See document No. 7.)

Seventh Change.—MINUTE of BOARD, Feb. 14, 1850.

The Commissioners take into consideration a suggestion for carrying out more effectively the Rule of the Board, Section II. paragraph 9, which requires that whatever arrangement is made in any school for giving religious instruction, must be publicly notified in the school-room, in order that those children, and those only may be present whose parents or guardians allow them.

Ordered, that this suggestion be approved, and that a copy of the Form proposed for carrying it into effect, as now read, be sent to each of the Commissioners, and further deliberated upon at their meeting next Thursday.

MINUTE OF BOARD, February 21, 1850.

Read Form of proposed addition to Rule 9, Section II, as to the notification of religious instruction in National schools.

Ordered, the Commissioners approve of this Form, with some verbal alterations, and they direct that it be submitted to them at their next meeting, for their final decision thereon, and, also, that they take into consideration, at the same time, whether any and what alteration is required in Rule 8, Section II., as to the use of the Scripture Lessons.

MINUTE OF BOARD, February 28, 1850.

The Commissioners take into further consideration the draft of a proposed addition to Rule 9, Section II., respecting the notification of the time for giving religious instruction in National schools.

Ordered, that this addition to the Rules be approved, and that it be printed in the form of a circular for distribution amongst the managers of National schools, a proof of which is to be submitted to the Commissioners at their next meeting for their final decision thereon.

MINUTE OF BOARD, March 7, 1850.

The Commissioners take into final consideration a proposed addition to Rule 9, Section II., respecting the notification of religious instruction in National schools as now prepared.

Ordered, that it be finally approved, and a copy thereof be sent to the manager of each National school. Ordered, also, that a new edition of the "Time Table" be prepared, in which a larger space is to be allowed for the insertion of the arrangements for "Religious Instruction," and that a pasteboard card, with the words "Religious Instruction" printed on it, in large characters, be supplied to every National school now under the Board, and to every new school that may hereafter be brought into connexion with it.—(See document No. 8.)

Eighth Change.—See Return to an Order of the Honourable House of Commons, dated August 9, 1853.—(See document No. 9.)

Ninth Change.—MINUTE OF BOARD, September 26, 1854.

The Secretary lays before the Commissioners the suggestions forwarded for their consideration by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, in letter of the 2nd September, from the Under-Secretary—amongst which are the following:—

(1). That the Rules of the Board shall be revised with a view of rendering them perfectly clear, full and explicit, on the fundamental principles of the system; and the Commissioners should submit to the Lord Lieutenant, for his sanction, the alterations, omissions, and additions which may appear to be necessary.

(2). That all religious instruction, whether denominational or general given in the National schools, and not contained in the National school books, must be given at a separate hour, and publicly notified in the Time Table, under the head of Religious Instruction.

3. That whenever religious instruction or religious exercises, including prayer, take place at an intermediate time during school hours, they must take place at the most only once, and must be so arranged as not to impede the secular instruction.

4. That the patron or manager is not bound by the rules to exclude from the religious instruction given in the school any child whose parent does not take the necessary steps to prevent his child from attending such religious instruction.

5. That religious rites must not be performed in the school-rooms.

6. That no emblems of a denominational character shall be exhibited in the school-rooms during the hours set apart for united instruction.

7. That the Commissioners permit the patrons of non-vested schools to employ them for the purpose of Sunday schools, upon the understanding that nothing shall take place in them leading to contention, and that they shall not be converted into places of public worship.

8. That any book of a religious character having been once unanimously adopted by the Commissioners shall not be withdrawn from the schools, or essentially altered without the sanction of the Lord Lieutenant; nor shall any change be made in any fundamental rule of the Board without his approval; and that a statement of the grounds upon which the Commissioners may deem any alterations or additions necessary shall be embodied in the minutes.

9. That the clauses in the lease and other deeds of vested schools shall be in strict conformity with the present rules of religious instruction.

10. That objections having been made by many Protestants to the form of the Ten Commandments used in the National schools, it should be distinctly stated in the rules that it is not obligatory upon patrons to employ them in their schools if they conscientiously object thereto.

11. That the rule of the Commissioners requiring all schools which they contribute to build to be vested in them in their corporate capacity shall be modified, so that the patrons shall have the option of vesting them in trustees or in the Board, whichever they prefer; the latter class only to be kept in repair at the public expense; and, with respect to the former, that a stringent covenant shall be inserted in the lease to trustees, binding them to defray the cost of repairs under particular conditions, and that the Commissioners be instructed to see that such covenant is strictly fulfilled.

12. That the ladies or others who have the management of convent schools shall be required to enforce strictly all the rules of the Board; and that the Inspectors shall be required in their reports upon convent schools to make minute inquiries on such points as the Commissioners may deem necessary.

13. That the Commissioners should withdraw their grants of salary and books, after due notice, from such of the non-vested schools as are not attended by a sufficient number of children—as are not adequately supplied with furniture, apparatus, and books; and that all needless multiplication of schools shall be avoided.

14. That premiums should be given to teachers who succeed in keeping up a numerous and regular attendance in their schools; and some inducement should be given to the pupils to remain in the schools a sufficient time to obtain a tolerable amount of good secular education.

15. Before a school is received into connexion, a moderate sum should be required by the Commissioners to be laid out by the manager, in books, maps, black boards, &c., the amount to be regulated by the average daily attendance of pupils.

16. That a sufficient increase should be made to the District Inspectors, to enable them to make at least three or four inspections of the schools under their care; that they should be divided into three classes, and be paid according to a graduated scale; that before this increase is made, the Commissioners should carefully consider the qualifications of all existing In- spectors, with the view of removing such of them as are incompetent for the discharge of the very important duties necessarily confided to them.

17. That the Commissioners should be permitted to expend a certain sum annually in gratuities to old and infirm teachers, who shall be required to vacate their situations, and that young and efficient teachers shall be appointed in their places.

18. That the salaries of the teachers belonging to each class, and to each division of a class, should be further augmented.

19. That the number of pupil-teachers and paid monitors is not adequate, and ought to be largely increased.

20. That the Commissioners shall appoint two additional agricultural Sub-Inspectors.

The Commissioners proceed to consider these suggestions.

Ordered with reference to No. 1, that a Committee of the Board, consisting of six members, be appointed to collect and examine the rules of the Board, with liberty to offer any suggestions they should think proper to propose, or any additions or explanations which they may consider necessary, in order to prevent ambiguity; also to consider such of the suggestions of the Lord Lieutenant as may be referred to them by the General Board, with instructions to make a report of their whole proceedings.

That the following members compose the Committee:—1. Rev. Dr. Henry; 2. Robert Andrews, esq.; 3. James Gibson, esq.; 4. James O'Ferrall, esq.; 5. M. Longfield, esq.; 6. Right. Hon. A. Macdonnell.

That the other members of the Board be apprized of this Committee; and be at liberty to attend the meetings whenever they see fit.

MINUTE of BOARD, January 12, 1855.

The Secretary informs the Commissioners that the special Committee appointed on the 26th September last, to collect and examine the rules of the Board, and to consider the suggestions forwarded by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, have brought their labours to a close.

Ordered, that a special general meeting of the Board be summoned for Wednesday, the 24th inst., at twelve o'clock, to receive the report of the Committee, and that the Commissioners shall meet from day to day, until the business shall have been finally disposed of, in order that the recommendations of the Committee, if approved of, may be submitted to His Excellency, it being indispensable that, if alterations or corrections be made in the rules or regulations, they should appear in the forthcoming report to Parliament.

Ordered further, that a copy of the recommendations of the Committee, with regard both to the rules and to the suggestions, be printed and transmitted to each Commissioner as early as practicable before the meeting of the 24th instant.

MINUTE of BOARD, April 20, 1855.

The Secretary reports that the General Rules of the Board, comprising Parts I. and II., are now printed with all the alterations approved of at various meetings of the Board; and that the third part, consisting of mere matters of detail, is in progress.

Ordered, that Mr. Macdonnell be requested to lay before the Lord Lieutenant copies of the old, and of the revised rules, also the suggestions forwarded to the Commissioners by Colonel Larcom, at the instance of Her Majesty's Government; and to afford His Excellency such explanations as may appear necessary to enable him to form an opinion of the nature of the modifications and changes in the rules which the Board have adopted.

Ordered further, that when His Excellency shall have had sufficient time to consider the various matters referred to him, he be requested to receive a deputation from the Commissioners with reference thereto.

MINUTE of BOARD, May 18, 1855.

The Secretary lays before the Commissioners a letter from Colonel Larcom, Under Secretary, (3,606/55), conveying the Lord Lieutenant's approval of the revised rules and regulations.

Ordered, that Parts I. and II. of the revised rules be embodied in the forthcoming report, and the entire rules, including Part III., printed in the appendix thereto.

Ordered further, that copies of the old and revised rules, with an explanation as to the nature and extent of the alterations and additions made therein, be forwarded, confidentially, to Earl Granville, Earl St. Germans, Lord Monteagle, and the Marquess of Lansdowne; and that they be also furnished with a copy of the suggestions from the Government, arising out of the Parliamentary Inquiry of 1854, with a memorandum showing how each has been disposed of.—(See documents Nos. 10 and 11.)

Tenth Change—MINUTE of BOARD, November 14, 1862.

The Commissioners proceed to consider the new form in which it is proposed to issue the Board's rules, and the Secretary explains that, in the new form, the rules are—firstly, recast, as to the order of arrangement in regard to "headings;" secondly, in some cases, individual rules are placed in a different context from what they had before; thirdly, the language in some places is modified, but without any material change of meaning; fourthly, rules and orders, not in the old form, but which have had the sanction of the Board, and which have been long acted on, are added.

Ordered, that before coming to any decision, the Secretary be instructed to have the proposed rules printed in such a manner as to show exactly what are the omissions from, additions to, or alterations in the former rules, which are suggested to be made in the new form.

MINUTE of BOARD, February 13, 1863.

The Secretary brings under the notice of the Board the question as to appointing a sub-committee of its own members to consider the rules as now arranged.

Ordered, that the consideration of this matter be deferred.

MINUTE of BOARD, March 27, 1863.

The Secretary lays before the Board a proof of the rules and regulations, in the new form, in which it is proposed that they should be issued.

Ordered, that the consideration of this matter be postponed until such time as the Rev. Dr. Henry shall attend.

MINUTE of BOARD, April 10, 1863.

Ordered, that a proof of the rules and regulations, in the new form in which it is proposed to issue them, be laid before the Board at a meeting to be convened for the 15th May, 1863, to consider that business only.

MINUTE of BOARD, May 8, 1863.

Ordered, that the consideration of the rules, as rearranged, be postponed to 12th June.

MINUTE of BOARD, June 12, 1863.

Pursuant to the minute of the Board of the 8th May, the Commissioners proceed to consider the rules and regulations as proposed to be re-arranged; and the Secretary reads a letter, No. 2,739/63, from James Gibson, esq., objecting to certain changes proposed to be made in some of the rules, viz., Rule IX., second section, Part II., page 15, and page 16, amended rule, section 3.

Ordered, that the consideration of the rules, as rearranged, together with Mr. Gibson's letter (2,739/63) be postponed to such time as Parliament shall be prorogued.

MINTUTE of BOARD, November 6, 1863.

The Secretary again submits the rules and regulations of the Board, as proposed to be re-arranged, and a letter is read (2,739/63) from James Gibson, esq., enclosing a statement of his objections to the several matters particularly referred to therein.

The Lord Bishop of Derry also read a memorandum (8,781½/63), expressing his opinion that, for reasons mentioned, any revision or alteration of the rules and regulations of 1855 is inexpedient, particularly any change in the rules relating to grants to Convent schools, and the payment of pupil teachers therein. And further, recording his objection to the new insertion No. 9, page 17, as unnecessary, and detrimental to the general training already established.

Ordered, that the consideration of this subject be further postponed to the meeting on the 20th.

MINUTE of BOARD, November 20, 1863.

Pursuant to the Minute of the Board of the 6th inst., the Commissioners proceed to consider the Rules and Regulations, as proposed to be re-arranged, and Mr. Gibson's letter (2,739/63) is read, enclosing a statement of his objections to the several matters particularly referred to therein.

Some amendments are made, including the insertion of the words "at any time previously" in the last line of Part IV., section I., paragraph 2.

Mr. Gibson protests against this.

Ordered, that the Commissioners meet again on tomorrow, Saturday, the 21st inst., to continue the consideration of the rules.

MINUTE of BOARD, November 21, 1863.

The Commissioners resume the consideration of the rules and regulations, as re-arranged; and some further verbal alterations and omissions are made.

Ordered, that the Rules, as now altered and arranged, be approved.

Mr. Gibson and the Rev. John Hall protest against the insertion of the new rule, Part IV., section V., paragraph 10, viz. :—In the case of a few very large and highly efficient schools, the Commissioners are prepared to appoint young persons of great merit to act as First-Class monitors, with a rate of salary somewhat higher than that of paid monitors of the above grades.

MINUTE of BOARD, January 22, 1864.

Read letter (430/64) from the Rev. John Rogers, Moderator of the General Assembly, Presbyterian Church, forwarding resolutions passed at a meeting of the Assembly's Elementary Education Committee, on the 8th December, 1863, with reference to a "recent regulation of the Commissioners of National Education, by which it is proposed to grant to a few very large and highly efficient schools the privilege of having pupil teachers—a privilege hitherto only enjoyed by Model schools"—and protesting "in the strongest terms against the proposed new regulation," for the reasons set forth in the resolutions.

Ordered, that a letter be addressed to the Rev. Mr. Rogers, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions in question, and stating that they have been submitted to the Board.

Ordered, also, that no further steps be taken in this matter at present, as the Commissioners await a communication from the Lord Lieutenant on the subject.

MINUTE of BOARD, January 29, 1864.

Read letter (834/64) from His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, addressed to the resident Commissioner, calling for information on the subject of alleged changes in the rules of the Board, respecting which a deputation waited on him, composed of the Bishop of Down and Connor, some Presbyterian clergymen of eminence, and others.

His Excellency encloses a copy of "Resolutions," placed in his hands by the deputation, also a Memorial from the Londonderry branch of the Ulster National Education Association.

The resident Commissioner read a paper, drawn up by the Hon. Judge Longfield, in reference to the matters alluded to in His Excellency's communication.

Ordered, that the Commissioners postpone to the 5th February their final decision as to the answer to be given to the Lord Lieutenant's letter, and that, in the meantime, a copy of Judge Longfield's paper be furnished to each member of the Board.

MINUTE of BOARD, February 5, 1864.

Read letter (988/64) from the Rev. Dr. Henry, requesting that his name shall be recorded on the Minutes, as indicative of his dissent from the recent changes in the rules of the Board in regard to Conventual schools. Also, that a copy of his letter may be appended to any official communication to the Government, explanatory of the grounds which induced a majority of the Board to adopt these alterations, his name being also attached to such communication as dissenting from the decision.

Ordered, that the fact of this letter having been received and read at Board, be recorded on the Minutes.

Read letter (No. 1,176/64) from the Lord Bishop of Derry, stating his opinion of the Hon. Judge Longfield's proposed answer to the late communication from the Lord Lieutenant; and reiterating his dissent from any alteration being made in the rules as laid down and published in 1855.

Ordered, that the fact of this letter having been received and read, be recorded on the Minutes.

Read letter (1,074/64) addressed to the Right Hon. Alexander Macdonnell, by Sir Robert Peel, Bart., reminding the former, as Resident Commissioner, that the Board of Commissioners, as incorporated by Royal Charter, has no power to change any fundamental rule without the express permission of His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Ordered, that Sir Robert Peel be informed, that although it seems to the Commissioners that there is nothing in the Charter of Incorporation forbidding the change of any rule of the Board, they are aware that, according to the Regulations of 1855, they cannot change any fundamental rule without first obtaining the express permission of the Lord Lieutenant. They are of opinion that they have not departed from this regulation in the matter to which Sir Robert Peel is understood to refer; and they are disposed to think that the Lord Lieutenant, to whom they have sent a communication on the subject of the proposed new rules, will concur with them in this opinion.

The Commissioners consider that their fundamental rules, in none of which has any change been made, may be divided thus :—

1. Those rules which protect the children from interference with their religious opinions. On the faith of these rules, parents send their children to the National schools.

2. Those rules which entitle the Pastors to give religious instruction to children in vested schools.

3. Those rules which regulate and confirm the rights of the patron and the succession in case of a vacancy. The grant of land is often given on the faith of these rules.

4. Those rules which give to managers the right to use the schools, or to the public the right to visit them, to see that they are properly carried on.

On the other hand, nothing in the nature of an increase of salary or an expenditure of money can be considered as involving the change of a fundamental rule. Matters of this nature must be subject to frequent changes. They affect only the taxpayers, who are protected by the necessity, on the part of the Board, of obtaining the consent of the Treasury, and of the House of Commons, for any alteration in the expenditure.

To illustrate the case of the complaint respecting the creation of the postponed new class of monitors.

Suppose that a private person should bequeath £2,000 a year to be paid to first class monitors, aged from 17 to 19 years, in convent or other first class schools, should the Commissioners prohibit the schools from accepting the grant? Surely not—although the same apprehended evils would result (except the expenditure of public money), which would follow from a grant by the Board. But if the existence of these monitors was inconsistent with the fundamental rules, such a class of monitors ought not to be allowed, no matter from what quarter the money might come for their maintenance.

A copy of the revised rules is to be sent to Sir R. Peel, and his attention to be called to Rule 10, Section V., at foot of page 17, in which, and which alone, it is alleged that any fundamental change in the National system has been contemplated. On perusal of this, it is expected that he will clearly perceive that no change of any fundamental principle of the National system will be effected by the new rule, if carried into operation, or can have been contemplated by the Commissioners when they framed the proposed regulations.

Ordered, that a copy of the foregoing letter to Sir Robert Peel be sent to the Lord Lieutenant.

Agreeably to the minute of the Board dated the 29th January, the Commissioners now proceed to decide finally as to the answer to be sent to the Lord Lieutenant's letter (834/64) calling for information on the subject of alleged changes in the rules of the Board, respecting which a deputation waited on him, composed of the Bishop of Down and Connor, some Presbyterian clergymen of eminence, and others—also enclosing copy of resolutions placed in his hands by the deputation and a memorial from the Londonderry Branch of the Ulster National Education Association.

The proposed reply to His Excellency's communication, as drawn up by Judge Longfield, (and a copy of which is annexed to letter 834/64,) is again considered.

Ordered, that the draft reply be approved, and that a copy be sent for the Lord Lieutenant's consideration; also, that His Excellency be informed that although the Londonderry memorial alone is explicitly referred to, the Commissioners hope that he will find in this explanatory document an answer to all the allegations contained in the Belfast memorial.

Mr. Gibson read a paper expressing his dissent from the foregoing order, and his reasons therefor.

MINUTE of BOARD, July 22, 1864.

The Commissioners consider the propriety of now authorizing the issue to the public of the revised rules and regulations, as approved of by Board on the 21st November, 1863.

Ordered, that the rules, as revised, be now issued to the public.—(See document No. 11.)

Eleventh Change, MINUTE of BOARD, May 8, 1866.

Pursuant to notice, the Marquess of Kildare moves the adoption by the Board of the following rule:—

"No pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a member of the Established Church, as a Presbyterian, or as belonging to any other Protestant denomination, is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher is a Roman Catholic; and no pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Roman Catholic, is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher is not a Roman Catholic. And further, no pupil is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of any religious instruction to which its parents or guardians object.

"A parent or guardian may, however, at the time or times of registration, require the teacher to record the nature of the religious instruction which the child is to receive, as well as the creed which it is to profess."

Ordered, that the further consideration of the question be adjourned to next meeting, when the Commissioners are to resume their deliberation of the subject.

MINUTE of BOARD, May 15, 1866.

The Commissioners resume the consideration of the Marquess of Kildare's proposal for the alteration of the Rule 2, Part I., Section IV., which was under discussion at the last meeting of the Board.

The Secretary reads a letter, 4,316/66, from the Lord Bishop of Derry, dissenting from the change of rule as proposed by Lord Kildare, and suggesting the following rule for adoption, viz.:—"Religious instruction must be so arranged that each school shall be open to children of all communions; that due regard be had to parental right and authority; and accordingly, no child shall be present at any religious instruction without the express sanction of its parents or guardians, and that the time for giving it be so fixed, that no child shall be thereby, in effect, excluded, directly or indirectly, from the other advantages which the school affords."

The Resident Commissioner states that he has received a letter from Judge Fitzgerald, approving of the change of rule proposed by the Marquess of Kildare.

The Lord Chancellor suggests that the resolution should be introduced by the following words:—"It appearing from a return furnished to the House of Commons, that a large number of children are in the habit of attending religious instruction given by teachers of a creed different from that of the children themselves, the Commissioners, under these circumstances, have felt themselves called upon to reconsider their rules regarding religious instruction."

The Commissioners approve of this suggestion.

Judge O'Hagan proposes, as an amendment, that instead of the resolution proposed by the Marquess of Kildare, the following rule, prefaced by the words suggested by the Lord Chancellor be adopted by the Board: "No pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Protestant is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher giving such instruction is a Roman Catholic.

"And no pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Roman Catholic is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the tracher giving such instruction is not a Roman Catholic. And further, no pupil is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of any religious instruction to which its parents or guardians object."

Judge O'Hagan's amendment is carried, the following members voting in favor of it: Lord Bellew, Marquess of Kildare, the Lord Chancellor, Judge Longfield, Mr. Waldron, Judge O'Hagan, Lord Dunraven, Judge Monaghan, Mr. Lentaigne, Mr. O'Hagan, and Mr. Macdonnell.

The following three Commissioners vote against the amendment: Rev. Dr. Henry, Mr. Gibson, and Rev. Dr. Hall, who protested against the change of rule.

The Commissioners approve of the following changes and omissions being made in the existing rules, consequent on the adoption of the new rule, as set forth in Judge O'Hagan's amendment.

Part I., Section IV., Rule 2, instead of "no child shall be compelled to receive," &c., read "no child shall receive," &c.

Rules 14, 15, 16 and 17, of the same section to be omitted, and Judge O'Hagan's amendment of the rule proposed by Lord Kildare to be placed after the present Rule 18.

In the note after Rule 13, instead of "children whose parents," &c., read "children who, according to these rules, should not be present thereat."

Ordered, that application be made to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, for his sanction of the foregoing proposed alterations and amendment in the rules.

MINUTE OF BOARD, May 29, 1866.

Judge Longfield gives notice that, at the meeting of the Board on June 5, he will propose the repeal of the 14th Rule on the classification of teachers, page 16, which enacts—No teachers can be raised to any division of the First Class, unless they shall have been trained at the Normal School of the Commissioners.

MINUTE OF BOARD, June 22, 1866.

Read letter (No. 5,164/66) from the Right Hon. C. S. Fortescue, Chief Secretary for Ireland, stating that the Lord Lieutenant would be prepared to sanction the change of rule regarding religious instruction, as conveyed in the Secretary's letter of May 23, if a "Proviso" in some such form as follows, be appended to new rule.

"Provided, however, that in case any parent or guardian shall express his desire that his child should receive any particular religious instruction, and shall record such desire in a book to be provided in the school, when necessary, for that purpose, this prohibition shall not apply. The entry in the book shall be signed with the name or mark of the parent or guardian, and the book shall be submitted to the Inspector so often as he visits the school."

Read, also, letter (No. 5,448½/66) from the Rev. Dr. Henry, expressing his opinion that the above proviso will have a beneficial effect, and that it should be adopted by the Board.

Ordered, that the words of the proviso submitted by the Chief Secretary be approved—inserting after the word "apply" (7th line) the following words:—"To the time during which such religious instruction only is given;" and with a note as follows:—"Such expression of desire may, at any time, be revoked by the parent or guardian, and shall thereupon become inoperative."

Ordered, further, that the Lord Lieutenant be informed that the Commissioners have passed the following resolution in connexion with the question under consideration:—

"That whilst the rule adopted by the Board appears to the Commissioners to furnish the most efficient means for guarding from the suspicion of proselytism, a system of separate religious and combined secular instruction, the Commissioners accept, in deference to the wishes of the Lord Lieutenant, the 'Proviso' suggested in the Chief Secretary's letter, in the hope that it will not interfere with the practical operation of the rule. The Commissioners, however, will feel it to be their duty to propose the repeal of the proviso, if the rule, so modified, should prove in any manner inadequate to the accomplishment of its object."

MINUTE of BOARD, July 3, 1866.

Read letter (No. 5,598/66) from the Right Hon. C. S. Fortescue, Chief Secretary for Ireland, conveying the Lord Lieutenant's approval of the new rule in regard to religious instruction with the proviso, as suggested by His Excellency, and the addition suggested by the Commissioners.

Ordered, that the rules, so altered (and omitting Paragraph 14, Part IV., Section III., repealed by Board's order of the 5th June), be printed for distribution.—(See document, No. 12).

DOCUMENTS referred to in PRECEDING MINUTES.

[THE COMMISSIONERS OF NATIONAL EDUCATION transmitted, at this point of the Returns, a collection of printed documents, being the twelve successive editions of the Rules, since the establishment of the system, extracted from their Annual Reports. This collection of Rules has been edited, so as to set forth clearly the successive alterations which have been made from time to time; and will be found, together with the Abstracts of the Leases for vested schools, annexed to the General Report of the Royal Commissioners.]

PARAGRAPH 11.—RETURN of all Motions on which Divisions took place, with the Names of those voting on each side on questions relating to rules or general policy of the National Board, including cases in which a protest or protests against a decision has been recorded by one or more Members.

BOARD (SPECIAL), Thursday, 24th December, 1846.

Present—The Archbishop of Dublin, the Provost, Archbishop Murray, the Marquis of Kildare, Robert Holmes, esq.; J. R. Corballis, esq.; Right Hon. Alex. Macdonnell.

The Archbishop of Dublin lays before the Commissioners a letter from the Rev. Dr. Henry signifying his approval of the proposed application to Government for the payment of chaplains, for giving religious instruction to the teachers in training, and to the children attending the model schools. * * *

The Commissioners take into consideration the special business for which they were summoned to meet this day.

Ordered, that application be made to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant requesting the sanction of Government to the payment of chaplains for the purpose of giving religious instruction to the Protestants of the Established Church, Roman Catholic and Presbyterian teachers in training, and to the children of those persuasions in attendance at the model schools of this establishment; and also requesting to know whether, in the event of Government approving of this arrangement, they will undertake to pay the requisite salaries, or whether they should be paid by the Commissioners out of the public fund placed at their disposal.

Robert Holmes, esq., expressed his dissent to the above Order.

BOARD (SPECIAL), Friday, 3rd December, 1852.

The Secretary reads a letter from the Right Hon. F. Blackburne, addressed to the Right Hon. Alexander Macdonnell, acquainting him, for the information of the other Commissioners, that he, the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, and Baron Greene, will be unable to attend the present meeting of the Board owing to an important engagement elsewhere, and requesting that the discussion on the resolution of which he has given notice, relative to the Scripture Lessons, &c., be postponed until Friday, the 29th inst.

Ordered, that this request be complied with, and that a special meeting of the Board be summoned for the day specified.

Present—Right Rev. Bishop Denvir, Very Rev. Dean Meyler, Rev. Dr. Henry, Right Hon. M. Brady (Lord Chancellor), Right Hon. Francis Blackburne, Marquis of Kildare, Right Hon. Baron Greene, James Gibson, esq.; Robert Andrews, esq.; James O'Ferrall, esq.; J. J. Murphy, esq.; Right Hon. Lord Bellew, Right Hon. Alex. Macdonnell.

In pursuance of the minute of the Board of the 1st April, the Right Hon. F. Blackburne submits the resolution proposed by him on the 24th March last, relative to the introduction of the "Scripture Lessons," "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity," and book of "Sacred Poetry" into the Gormanstown Model Agricultural School (literary department), substituting the word "published" for "recommended," the resolution with this alteration being as follows :—

"That the Inspector and teachers in charge of the Literary and Model Agricultural School at Gormanstown be directed to introduce and use in that school the 'Scripture Lessons,' 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity,' and 'Sacred Poetry' (published by the Board for the purpose of being used in schools receiving aid from this institution), but that they are not to be read by any children whose parents or guardians object to their being read by them, and that those books shall be read before the beginning or after the close of the mere secular instruction, or both."

After some discussion, the Right Hon. Baron Greene proposes the following amendment to the foregoing resolution :—

"The Commissioners do not insist on the 'Scripture Extracts,' 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity,' or book of 'Sacred Poetry,' being read in any of the National schools, nor do they allow them to be read as part of the ordinary school business (during which all children, of whatever denomination they may be, are required to attend) in any school attended by children whose parents or guardians object to their being read by their children. In such case the Commissioners prohibit the use of these books, except at times set apart for the purpose, either before or after the ordinary school business, and under the following conditions :—

"1st. That no child whose parent or guardian objects shall be required, directly or indirectly, to be present at such reading.

"2nd. That in order that no child whose parent or guardian objects may be present at the reading of the books above specified, public notification of the time set apart for such reading shall be inserted in large letters in the time-table of the school ; that there shall be a sufficient interval between the conclusion of the ordinary school business and the commencement of such reading, and that the teacher shall immediately before its commencement announce distinctly to the pupils that any child whose parent or guardian so desires may then retire.

"3rd. That in every such case there shall be, exclusive of the time set apart for such reading, sufficient time devoted each day to the ordinary school business, in order that those children who do not join in the reading of the books may enjoy ample means of literary instruction in the school-room."

This amendment having been considered, the Right Hon. Mr. Blackburne withdraws his resolution and proposes that Baron Greene's amendment be considered as a substantive motion.

The Commissioners approve of Mr. Blackburne's suggestion, and thereupon the following amendments to it are proposed :—

No. 1. By J. O'Ferrall, esq.—"That the first condition be in the following words :—

"1st. That no child shall be allowed to be present at such reading unless his parent or guardian shall signify his assent thereto to the teacher or patron of the school.

"2nd. That in the last line of the second condition the word 'shall' be substituted for the word 'may.'

"3rd. That in addition to the conditions so amended the following condition be added :—

"That no teacher who, after his or her appointment to a model or other school of which the Board is the patron, shall express a conscientious objection to the use of these books, shall be required to superintend or take part in the reading of them, and that in such case this duty shall be performed by such other person as may be appointed thereto and approved of by those parents and guardians who shall have directed their children to read them."

No. 2. By J. J. Murphy, esq.—"1. That the 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity' be omitted from the foregoing resolution (of Baron Greene)."

The Commissioners direct that a special meeting of the Board be summoned for Friday the 6th May next, at two o'clock, to consider the above resolution and amendments.

The Secretary reads a letter (3,754) addressed by the Lord Lieutenant to the Resident Commissioner, dated the 13th May, intimating the wish of His Excellency to be made acquainted with the decision of the Board on the resolution proposed by Baron Greene.

The Secretary reads a letter, dated the 11th June (4,552) from Baron Greene, stating that he cannot attend the meeting of the Board; but that, after mature consideration of the amendments proposed to the resolution submitted by him, he cannot concur in either of them, and that he continues of opinion that the minute suggested by him would be a proper one.

The Secretary also reads a letter (4,656) from the Marquis of Kildare, dated the 15th June, in which he states:—"I approve of Baron Greene's resolution, and will also consent to adopt Master Murphy's first amendment if it is thought necessary by the majority of the Commissioners."

The Secretary then reads Baron Greene's resolution and the amendments proposed by Master Murphy, as follows:—

Baron Greene's resolution:—"The Commissioners do not insist on the 'Scripture Extracts,' 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity,' or book of 'Sacred Poetry' being read in any of the National schools, nor do they allow them to be read as part of the ordinary school business (during which all children of whatever denomination they may be, are required to attend) in any school attended by children whose parents or guardians object to their being read by their children. In such case the Commissioners prohibit the use of these books, except at times set apart for the purpose, either before or after the ordinary school business, and under the following conditions:—

"1st. That no child whose parent or guardian objects shall be required, directly or indirectly, to be present at such reading.

"2nd. That, in order that no child whose parent or guardian objects may be present at the reading of the books above specified, public notification of the time set apart for such reading shall be inserted in large letters in the time table of the school; that there shall be a sufficient interval between the conclusion of the ordinary school business and the commencement of such reading; and that the teacher shall immediately before its commencement announce distinctly to the pupils that any child whose parent or guardian so desires may then retire.

"3rd. That in every such case there shall be, exclusive of the time set apart for such reading, sufficient time devoted each day to the ordinary school business, in order that those children who do not join in the reading of the books may enjoy ample means of literary instruction in the school-room."

Master Murphy's amendments:—"No. I. That the 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity' be omitted from the foregoing resolution.

"No. II. That the 'Lessons on Christian Evidences' be omitted from the list of books not published, but sanctioned by the Commissioners of National Education."

After some discussion Master Murphy withdraws his first amendment and substitutes the following:—

"That the Lessons on the Truth of Christianity be omitted from the list of books published by the Board."

The Commissioners proceed to consider Master Murphy's two amendments in connexion with Baron Greene's resolution.

The Commissioners determine not to come to a final decision on the whole question, but to ascertain and to record the opinion of each member present with regard to Baron Greene's resolution and the two amendments thereto, as proposed by Master Murphy. Each Commissioner then states his opinion as follows:—

1st. In favour of both amendments, should Baron Greene's resolution be passed:—1. Right Rev. Bishop Denvir; 2. Right Hon. M. Brady (Lord Chancellor); 3. Sir T. N. Redington, K.C.B.; 4. Very Rev. Dean Meyler, D.D.; 5. Right Hon. A. Macdonnell; 6. J. J. Murphy, esq.; 7. James O'Ferrall, esq.

2nd. Against both amendments:—Right Hon. F. Blackburne.

3rd. Against the first amendment, i.e., against the proposition that the "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity" be omitted from the list of books published by the Board:—1. Rev. Dr. Henry; 2. James Gibson, esq.; 3. R. Andrews, esq.

4th. In favour of amendment No. 2, i.e., for the withdrawal of the "Easy Lessons on Christian Evidences" from the list of books sanctioned, but not published, by the Board:—All the Commissioners present with the exception of the Right Hon. F. Blackburne.

5th. In favour of Baron Greene's resolution:—1. Right Hon. M. Brady (Lord Chancellor); 2. Right Hon. F. Blackburne; 3. Rev. Dr. Henry; 4. Right Hon. A. Macdonnell; 5. James Gibson, esq.; 6. James O'Ferrall, esq.; 7. Robert Andrews, esq.

Note.—Of the above seven, one alone, Mr. Blackburne, supported the resolution unconditionally. Of the remainder, some supported it on condition that one of the books on Christian evidences, others that both of the books, should be removed from the list of books published, or sanctioned by the Board.

6th. Against Baron Greene's resolution:—1. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir; 2. Very Rev. Dean Meyler; 3. Sir T. N. Redington; 4. J. J. Murphy, esq.

Note.—These four opposed the resolution whether either or both books were withdrawn from the list or not.

7th. In case both the books referred to in the amendments be retained on the list of books which may be used in a National school, all the Commissioners present, with the exception of Mr. Blackburne, are of opinion that no alteration should be made in Rule 8 with regard to the use of the Scripture Lessons as at present worded.

The following members are absent:—His Grace the Archbishop of Dublin, Baron Greene, the Marquis of Kildare, and the Right Hon. Lord Bellew. Lord Bellew did not communicate his opinion.

Ordered, that Mr. Cross, secretary, forward to the Lord Lieutenant, and also to the Archbishop of Dublin, a statement of this day's proceedings.

Read letter No. 4,780, from the Rev. W. Fitzgerald, for the Archbishop of Dublin, acknowledging receipt of the statement of the proceedings of the Board of the 17th inst., with reference to the use of the "Scripture Lessons," "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity," &c., expressing His Grace's entire dissent from the conclusion to which the majority of the Commissioners have arrived, his unfeigned wonder and surprise at their decision, and his determination not to be a party to any such decision being made or acted upon.

BOARD, Friday, 8th July, 1853.

Present.—Rev. Dr. Henry, Right Hon. M. Brady (Lord Chancellor), Right Hon. F. Blackburne, Robert Andrews, esq., James O'Ferrall, esq., J. J. Murphy, esq., Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The secretary reads a letter (No. 5,162, '53) from the Right Rev. Bishop Denvir, stating that he is unable to attend the present meeting, but that he continues to hold the opinion expressed by him on the 17th June with reference to the resolution of Baron Greene as to the use of "Scripture Lessons," &c. The secretary also reads a letter (5,150, '53) from J. Gibson, esq., stating that he is unable to attend the meeting, and requesting that the consideration of the question for which the Board is this day summoned may be postponed to the 15th.

The Commissioners refer to and take into consideration the proceedings of the special meeting held on the 17th June, 1853, with reference to Rule 8, sec. ii., as to the use of the "Scripture Lessons," "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity," and the book of "Sacred Poetry."

Ordered,—1. That, in accordance with the opinion expressed on that occasion by seven members out of eleven present, the "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity" be withdrawn from the list of books published by direction of the Commissioners.

2. That, in accordance with the opinion expressed by ten members, the "Introductory Lessons on Christian Evidences" be also withdrawn from the list of books not published, but sanctioned, by the Commissioners.

3. That, in accordance with the opinion expressed by seven members, the Rule 8., sec. ii. (which is as follows) be rescinded:—"The Commissioners do not insist on the 'Scripture Lessons,' 'Lessons on the Truth of Christianity,' or book of 'Sacred Poetry,' being read in any of the National schools, nor do they allow them to be read during the time of secular or literary instruction in any school attended by children whose parents or guardians object to their being so read. In such case the Commissioners prohibit the use of them, except at the times of religious instruction, when the persons giving it may use these books or not as they think proper."

And that the resolution proposed by the Right Hon. Baron Greene, and quoted in the minutes of the 17th June, be substituted, omitting the words "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity," and referring only to the "Scripture Lessons" and the book of "Sacred Poetry."

Ordered, that the foregoing resolution take effect from the present date.

Ordered, that the forthcoming report (19th) of the Commissioners be prepared and submitted for their consideration at the earliest practicable period, and that there be embodied therein a statement of the course now adopted with reference to rule 8, and to the "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity," and the "Lessons on Christian Evidences."

Ordered, that copies of the foregoing proceedings be transmitted to the Lord Lieutenant, also to the Archbishop of Dublin, and to the members of the Board not present at this meeting.

James O'Ferrall, esq., withdraws his amendment to the resolution proposed by the Right Honorable Baron Greene.

Master Murphy reiterates the statement made by him at the meeting of the 17th June, that if Rule 8 underwent no alteration he was satisfied that the "Lessons on the Truth of Christianity" and the "Lessons on Christian Evidences" should remain on the list of books published or sanctioned by the Board.

Board, Friday, 12th August, 1853.

Present—Very Rev. Dean Meyler, Rev. Dr. Henry, Marquis of Kildare, James Gibson, esq., Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 6,111 from Major Larcom, Under Secretary, forwarding copy of an order of the House of Lords, dated the 4th instant, directing that there be laid before their Lordships—

1. Copy of correspondence between the Commissioners and Mr. N. L. Tottenham, which took place in 1840, relative to the use of the "Scripture Lessons."

2. Return of books in use in each of the several district model schools.

3. Memorandums addressed to the Board by the Archbishop of Dublin, "complaining of the innovations introduced in some of the model schools, without the sanction of the Commissioners; the answers thereto, and his Grace's replies to the defence of the irregularity, together with his notice of withdrawal from the Board."

Ordered, that this return be prepared, and that, in addition to the information called for, the following be given to make the return more intelligible and complete:—

1. Letters to the four Head Inspectors, and their replies.

2. Sir T. N. Redington's resolution, passed the 3rd December, 1852.

3. Right Hon. Mr. Blackburne's resolution, passed the 14th January, 1853.

4. Proceedings of the Board of the 17th June and 8th July, 1853, and

5. Amendment to the resolution of Baron Greene, proposed by James O'Ferrall, esq., at meeting of the Board of the 29th April, but withdrawn at the meeting of 8th July.

The Secretary calls the particular attention of the Board to that portion of the order of the House of Lords above quoted, calling for the answers to the memorandums of his Grace the Archbishop of Dublin, complaining of innovations introduced into some of the model schools without the sanction of the Board.

Ordered, that, in reference thereto, the following minute be inserted in the return:—"That there are no answers on the official records to the memorandums of the Archbishop of Dublin, the Commissioners having, after full consideration, declined entering into a written correspondence on the various points contained in these documents, though at all times ready to discuss the questions with him at the meetings of the Board, had his Grace thought it right to attend."

Ordered, that the following minute relative to the letter of the Archbishop of Dublin to the Lord Lieutenant, intimating that his Grace has ceased to be a member of the Board, be adopted and included in the return now called for, and also in the return to an anticipated order of the House of Commons:—

"In reference to the letter of the Archbishop of Dublin, addressed to the Lord Lieutenant, communicating his Grace's withdrawal from the Board, and sent by his Grace to the Commissioners, though it was laid before them, they had not thought it right to place it on their minutes, as such official recognition of it would have led them, with pain, to express their deep regret that his Grace had used language (which, as the document is now made a public one) they are compelled to pronounce unjustifiable and unbecoming."

Board (Special), Friday, 8th June, 1855.

Present—Right Hon. M. Brady, Lord Chancellor, Robert Andrews, esq., James Gibson, esq., J. J. Murphy, esq., Rev. Dr. Henry, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 4100, from J. J. Murphy, esq., Commissioner of National Education, renewing the protest read at the meeting of the Board of the 1st instant, against the rule as to the withdrawal of books being printed in capital letters in the 21st Report, and also to the paragraph in that document with reference to the intention of the Commissioners to take steps for securing a larger amount of local contribution towards the teachers' salaries. Master Murphy states that he would not now renew this protest were he not apprehensive that his having received a letter from the Secretaries, dated the 2nd instant, apprizing him of what had been done, without replying to it, might be deemed an acquiescence in the report as it now stands.

The Secretary lays before the Commissioners proof of the selections from the rules bearing on the subject of religious instruction intended for insertion in the lesson books of the Board.

Ordered, that it be approved—the heading to stand thus :—"Selections from the Rules and Regulations of the Commissioners of National Education, Ireland, bearing on the subject of religious instruction, for the information of the parents of the children attending National schools."

Read letter No. 7441, from J. Gibson, esq., expressing his opinion that the omission from the selections from the rules of par. 5, sec. 6, relative to the use of the general lesson, will give rise to a suspicion of an intention on the part of the Commissioners to discountenance the use of the lesson in their schools.

Ordered, that no alteration be made, as regards the rule in question, it appearing to the Commissioners that it is intended more for the information of managers than parents.

Board, Friday, 13th February, 1857 (special).

Present—The Right Hon. A. Macdonnell, James Gibson, esq.; James O'Ferrall, esq.; J. J. Murphy, esq., M.C.; Right Hon. J. Hatchell, Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.

Read letter No. 6, from Mr. Carlile, Inspector of District No. 4, stating, in reply to the Board's order of the 23rd January, relative to the proposal to transfer the Ballymena Female (vested) National School to the trustees of Guy's Free Schools on the repayment of the Board's grant of £78, that the transfer would be satisfactory to all parties interested.

Ordered, that, as requested, the Ballymena Female National School be handed over to the trustees of Guy's Charity, by whom the lease to the Commissioners was originally made, on their paying back £78, the sum granted by the Commissioners towards building and fitting up the house, leaving it open to the parties interested to take any steps they may think fit to enforce the trusts on which the lease was granted.

Mr. Gibson requests that his protest against this decision of the Commissioners may be recorded on the minutes.

Board, Friday, 20th February, 1857.

Present—Right Hon. A. Macdonnell, Rev. Dr. Henry, James Gibson, esq.

Read letter No. 1286/57, from James Gibson, esq., forwarding, as promised, his protest against the decision of the Board of last day, surrendering the Ballymena Female (vested) National School to the trustees of Guy's Charity.

Ordered, that this protest be inserted on the minutes.

"Protest.—I beg respectfully to protest against the decision, inasmuch as,

"1. It involves a breach of the trusts upon which the premises were originally taken, and for the purposes of which the sum raised by private subscription was contributed.

"2. It establishes a precedent, the effect of which will be to facilitate the transfer of vested National schools to the patrons of non-vested schools, and to deprive the community of the special advantages which, according to the original theory of the National system, the vested schools, as contradistinguished from the non-vested schools, were intended to confer."

The Commissioners consider the several clauses in the draft lease for vesting school-houses in trustees.

Ordered, that the clause proposed by Mr. Gibson to be inserted, binding the parties to such further and other rules as may be framed in strict accordance with the fundamental principles of the system, be omitted.

Mr. Gibson directs that his dissent from the above resolution be recorded.

Present—James Gibson, esq.; The Lord Bishop of Derry, Right Hon. the Attorney-General (O'Hagan), The Solicitor-General (Lawson), Rev. John Hall, L. Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 7909, '61, from the Rev. John Burke, Manager of Cratloe National School, co. Clare, complaining that, on the occasion of Mr. O'Callaghan's visit of inspection to that school on the 31st October, he went to the houses of parents of Protestant children, pupils of the female school, for the purpose of inquiring whether it was with the parents' knowledge and consent that the children remained in school during the time of religious instruction for Roman Catholics, and whether they (the parents) had received the "Notice" required to be sent under Rule 16, par. 1, sec. 4. Also asking whether it is the duty of an Inspector to make such inquiries outside the school he visits.

Read also letter No. 158, from Mr. O'Callaghan, Inspector, District No. 51, explaining the part which he took in the transaction complained of, and his reason, namely, that he had grounds for thinking that, although the "Notice" was directed to the parents of the pupils alluded to, it might not have really reached them.

Ordered, that the Rev. Mr. Burke be informed that the Commissioners having had his letter before them and the Inspector's explanation, are satisfied that the latter did not exceed his duty.

Mr. Gibson directs that his dissent from the above be recorded.

Present—James Gibson, esq.; The Earl of Dunraven, Rev. John Hall, Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 27, from Head Inspector Sheridan, stating in reply to the question put to him by Board's order of the 11th instant, regarding the proposed consolidation of the preparatory and girls' departments of the Dunmanway Model National School, that, in his opinion, the preparatory school might be conducted very efficiently by two well-qualified assistants and two or more paid monitors under the superintendence of the head mistress of the girls' school. Ordered, that the Commissioners approve of the infants' department of Dunmanway Model School being considered as a branch of the girls' school, under the general supervision of the mistress of the latter, and that two assistants and two monitresses be appointed to conduct the infant school, as suggested by the Head Inspector.

Ordered, further, that the latter be called upon to send up the names of the persons whom he recommends for those situations, specifying the religious denomination of each.

N.B.—Mr. Gibson objects to the decision made in this case, and states the ground of his dissent.

BOARD, Friday, 17th October, 1862.

Present—Rev. Dr. Henry, James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, L. Waldron, esq., M.P.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 8,065, '62, from the Rev. Dr. Butcher to the Resident Commissioner, detailing the particulars of a grievance complained of by one of his Protestant parishioners named William Milner, who is married to a Roman Catholic, and whose children, contrary to his declared wish and directions given to the teachers (but with the approval of the children's mother, as alleged) have been received and are retained as pupils at the Ballynacarriga National School, under the management of the Rev. John Hurley, P.P. of Dunmanway.

Dr. Butcher asks whether the Commissioners "hold that a father has a right to prohibit his children from attending a National school if he thinks fit to do so, and if he has, whether the manager is at liberty to receive them as pupils in defiance of his commands to the contrary, and to retain them as pupils every time they come to the school, unless on each occasion the father himself come and take them away."

In connexion with Dr. Butcher's communication letters are read (Nos. 153 and 159) from Mr. Philip O'Connell, Inspector of District No. 59, reporting the result of the inquiry which he was directed to make into the circumstances under which the children in question were admitted to the school, and the other particulars bearing on the case.

Ordered, that Dr. Butcher be informed that, in the case he has brought under notice, the teachers are not at liberty to receive the children as pupils, the father having notified to the master and mistress his desire that his children should not attend the Ballynacarriga School.

Ordered, that a communication be addressed to the manager, the Rev. J. Hurley, in accordance with the foregoing decision.

N.B.—Mr. Gibson desires that his dissent from the above resolution be recorded, and assigns as his reason that he does not consider that, in such a case, the Commissioners should give any instructions to the teacher, inasmuch as the father is to be presumed capable of enforcing his parental authority so as to restrain the disobedience of his child.

BOARD, Friday, 12th June, 1863.

Present—Rev. Dr. Henry, Marquis of Kildare; Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor (Brady), Robert Andrews, esq., LL.D.; James Gibson, esq.; the Lord Bishop of Derry, Hon. Judge Longfield, Chief Justice Monahan, the Lord Chief Baron (Pigot), the Solicitor-General (Lawson), Rev. John Hall, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Pursuant to the minute of the Board of the 21st May, the Commissioners proceed to appoint a secretary in place of Mr. Cross, resigned.

The Secretary reads letter (4,037, '63) from the Lord Bishop of Derry entering his "protest against the election of any one to fill that office who is not a member of the Established Church;" and applications for the situation are submitted.

The Commissioners having fully considered the Bishop of Derry's letter, and also the claims of the several persons proposed for, or who have applied for the office.

Ordered, that Mr. William M'Creedy, Chief of Inspection, be appointed Joint Secretary at a salary of £600 a-year, to increase according to the scale approved by the Treasury for the office. The appointment to take effect from this date.

Pursuant to the minute of the Board of the 8th May, the Commissioners proceed to consider the rules and regulations as proposed to be re-arranged; and the Secretary reads a letter (No. 2739, '63) from James Gibson, esq., objecting to certain changes proposed to be made in some of the rules—viz., Rule 9, 2nd sec., Part II., page 15; and page 16, amended rule, sec. 3.

Ordered, that the consideration of the rules as re-arranged, together with Mr. Gibson's letter (2739, '63) be postponed to such time as Parliament shall be prorogued.

BOARD, Friday, 18th September, 1863.

Present—Marquis of Kildare, James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, Rev. John Hall, Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Secretary lays before the Commissioners the following report of the committee appointed on the 4th instant, to consider the proposal to do away with the Triennial Grants of "Free Stock," and to make certain changes in regard to the present system of giving first stocks.

REPORT, dated 17th September, 1863.

Present—Hon. Judge Longfield, James Gibson, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

1. The Committee recommend the abolition of Triennial Grants of "Free Stock."

2. The Committee also recommend that the first Grant of Free Stock made to schools on first coming into connexion be limited to such articles as are required for collective teaching.

3. They further recommend that on schools being first taken into connexion by the Board, the managers thereof be required:—(1), to supply an adequate stock of books, and other school requisites at reduced prices for sale to the pupils; and that (2) they be also required to keep up an adequate stock of such school requisites at all times in their schools. The latter condition to apply to all schools now in connexion as well.

4. It is further recommended that when, in the case of new schools the condition of providing the required amount of sale stock is not observed by the managers, the assigned value of such stock be deducted from the first payment of the teacher's salary, and books, &c., to the said value forwarded to the schools, and the like rule to apply to all schools where an adequate supply of sale stock fails to be kept up.

5. When the sale stock is purchased by the teacher a reasonable per-centage, say ten, fifteen, or twenty per cent. is recommended to be allowed as commission.

As a provision against any abuse, on the part of the teachers, in regard to this last arrangement, if adopted, the Inspectors are to be instructed to make inquiry as to the disposal of such sale stock, with the view of preventing any part of it being sold to any but the proper pupils of the school. The teachers also to be required to keep a register of the sales made by them, including the dates of sale, the items sold, and the names of the pupils purchasing.

6. It is recommended that the foregoing rules shall not apply to schools taken into connexion under the scheme of modified grants, and which are not placed in receipt of salary for their teachers or to such other schools in poor localities as the Inspectors shall recommend for exemption, on the ground of the poverty of the parents of the pupils.

N.B.—Mr. Gibson objects, on several grounds, to any change being made in the present arrangements.

Ordered, that the recommendations contained in the foregoing report be approved, as to their general purport. But that the secretaries be instructed to draw up a scheme setting forth in detail how the recommendations may be best practically carried out. The whole question to be again submitted to the Board at the first meeting in November.

BOARD, Friday, 30th October, 1863.

Present—Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor; Robert Andrews, esq., Q.C.; the Lord Bishop of Derry; Right Hon. the Attorney-General (O'Hagan); Rev. John Hall; John Lentaigne, esq.; Right Hon. Alexander Macdonnell.

Pursuant to the Minute of the Board of the 16th inst., the secretary again brings under notice the inquiry made by Mr. Rodgers, District Inspector, on behalf of Lady Louisa Tenison, whether, in the event of her applying to the Board for a grant towards the erection of a school-house, the Commissioners would consent to the insertion in the lease of a clause of surrender, on repayment of the amount of the Board's grant, and the law adviser's opinion on the matter is read, as follows:—

"The clause proposed on the part of Mr. Tenison cannot, in my opinion, be adopted in cases where the sums contributed in aid are raised by local subscription, for the effect might be to enable the grantors to obtain possession of premises that had been built in great part by others. However, in the present case the school will probably be erected at the joint expense of the Commissioners and of Mr. Tenison, and if so the covenant as altered by me may be adopted. The form of lease provides for a similar result (as a penalty) in case of default."

The secretary also reads a letter (8558, '63) from James Gibson, esq., Commissioner of National Education, recording his objection to any clause of surrender proposed to be introduced into the lease to be made consequent on the grant applied for by Lady Louisa Tenison which shall not be in the same terms expressly as that which is contained in the general form of lease to trustees named by parties applying for building grants, which, some time since, was sanctioned by the Board.

Ordered, that the Commissioners will not object to the introduction of a clause for resumption as proposed—provided the local funds in aid of the Board's grant shall have been subscribed by Mr. Tenison, the grantor.

BOARD, Friday, 20th November, 1863.

Present—Right Hon. Lord Bellew; Marquis of Kildare; Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor; James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield; Right Hon. the Attorney-General (O'Hagan); Right Hon. the Earl of Dunraven; Chief Justice Monahan; the Solicitor-General (Lawson); Rev. John Hall; Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Pursuant to the Minute of the Board of the 6th inst., the Commissioners proceed to consider the rules and regulations, as proposed to be re-arranged, and Mr. Gibson's letter (2739, '63) is read, enclosing a statement of his objections to the several matters particularly referred to therein. Some amendments are made, including the insertion of the words "at any time previously" in the last line of Part IV., Sec. I., paragraph 2.

Mr. Gibson protests against this.

Ordered, that the Commissioners meet again on to-morrow, Saturday the 21st inst., to continue the consideration of the rules.

21, 11, '63.

Present,—Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor; James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield; Right Hon. the Attorney-General (O'Hagan); Right Hon. the Earl of Dunraven; Chief Justice Monahan; the Solicitor-General (Lawson); Rev. John Hall; Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners resume the consideration of the rules and regulations as re-arranged, and some further verbal alterations and omissions are made.

Ordered, that the rules as now altered and arranged be approved.

Mr. Gibson and the Rev. John Hall protest against the insertion of the new rule, Part IV., Sec. V., paragraph 10, viz.—"In the case of a few very large and highly efficient schools, the Commissioners are prepared to appoint young persons of great merit to act as first-class monitors with a rate of salary somewhat higher than that of paid monitors of the above grades."

5, 2, '64.

BOARD, Friday, 5 February, 1864.

Present,—Marquis of Kildare, James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, Chief Justice Monahan, Rev. John Hall, Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter No. 988, '64 from the Rev. Dr. Henry, requesting that his name shall be recorded on the minutes as indicative of his dissent from the recent changes in the rules of the Board in regard to conventual schools. Also that a copy of his letter may be appended to any official communication to the Government explanatory of the grounds which induced a majority of the Board to adopt these alterations—his name being also attached to such communication as dissenting from the decision.

Ordered, that the fact of this letter having been received, and read at Board, be recorded on the minutes.

Read letter No. 1176, '64 from the Lord Bishop of Derry stating his opinion of the Hon. Judge Longfield's proposed answer to the late communication from the Lord Lieutenant; and reiterating his dissent from any alterations being made in the rules as laid down and published in 1855.

Ordered, that the fact of this letter having been received and read be recorded on the minutes.

Agreeably to the minute of the Board, dated the 29th January, the Commissioners now proceed to decide finally as to the answer to be sent to the Lord Lieutenant's letter (834, '64), calling for information on the subject of alleged changes in the rules of the Board, respecting which a deputation waited on him composed of the Bishop of Down and Connor, some Presbyterian clergymen of eminence, and others. Also enclosing copy of resolutions placed in his hands by the deputation, and a memorial from the Londonderry Branch of the Ulster National Education Association.

The proposed reply to his Excellency's communication, as drawn up by Judge Longfield (and a copy of which is annexed to letter 834, '64) is again considered.

Ordered, that the draft reply be approved, and that a copy be sent for the Lord Lieutenant's consideration. Also, that his Excellency be informed that, although the Londonderry memorial alone is explicitly referred to, the Commissioners hope that he will find in this explanatory document an answer to all the allegations contained in the Belfast memorial.

Mr. Gibson reads a paper expressing his dissent from the foregoing order, and his reasons therefor.

Present—Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, Robert Andrews, esq., LL.D.; James Gibson, esq.; Chief Justice Monahan, Rev. John Hall, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Secretary lays before the Board an application from the Rev. Richard Mulreany, C.C. of Donegal, for a grant of salary and books to a second female school in that town, and the Commissioners take the case into special consideration for the following reasons:—

Lord Arran, sole proprietor of the town of Donegal and patron of the existing (vested) schools there, is strenuously opposed to the Rev. Mr. Mulreany's application, on the (alleged) grounds that the existing schools are sufficient for the locality, that they completely exemplify and fulfil all the objects for which the National system was founded; and further, that the new female school has been opened solely for denominational purposes, and with the express object of injuring the vested schools.

The Protestant clergy of different denominations in the town and neighbourhood join in Lord Arran's opposition, namely, Rev. Wm. Ewing, rector of Donegal; Rev. W. Hughes, rector of Killyward; Rev. Dr. Niblock, Presbyterian minister; Rev. J. C. Storey, Wesleyan minister, and a number of others whose names are signed to the letter 2870, '64. On the other hand, the Rev. Mr. Mulreany's application is supported by the Right Rev. Dr. M'Gettigan, Roman Catholic Bishop; Rev. E. M'Cafferty, P.P., and the Rev. Thomas M'Gettigan, P.P., and the principal grounds on which they base the claims of the new school for aid are—1. That some of the people require a higher standard of education than what is afforded in the existing school. 2. That the Roman Catholics of Donegal have not a sufficient share of the teaching allowed by the Board, Lord Arran's teachers being of a different faith. 3. That the existing school affords inadequate accommodation for the number of children in the town and neighbourhood, and that the attendance at it will not be affected by the new school.

The Secretary submits the District Inspector's report on the case; also special reports by Head Inspector Fleming and by Dr. Newell, Chief of Inspection, dated respectively the 14th and 16th May, enlarging on the different points as above, and, in addition to other matters favourable to the Rev. Mr. Mulreany's case, bearing very satisfactory testimony to the literary qualifications of his teacher, Mary Clarke, as contrasted with Mrs. Hunter, teacher of Lord Arran's school.

The Commissioners have also before them letters from the Lord Bishop of Derry (3167 and 3473, '64), expressing his disapproval of the desired grant being made, on the ground that, in his opinion, it would be a perversion of the National system.

Ordered, that the Board is of opinion, having regard to the population and circumstances of the town of Donegal, that aid may properly be given to a second female school there. But as the present applicant school has been in operation only since the 1st of March last, the Commissioners postpone their final decision on the case for a period of two months from this date, in order to ascertain whether the proposed school shall have at that time attained a permanent character.

Ordered, that this decision be made known to Lord Arran, the Rev. Mr. Mulreany, and the Bishop of Derry.

The Commissioners refer to their minute of the 14th October, when, on the resolution of Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P., a committee was appointed for the purpose of "inquiring into the course pursued in the agricultural branch of the Board's system, and to report if any and what changes may advantageously be effected in it, and what the qualifications should be for the successor of Dr. Kirkpatrick." And the Secretary lays on the table a statement of the proceedings of this committee, which met on the 17th, 19th, 20th, 24th, 26th, and 28th October, and the 1st November last. The Commissioners further refer to their minute of the 4th November, and to a report which was then submitted to them from the Hon. Judge Longfield, consequent on the foregoing proceedings, as well as a separate report drawn up by Mr. Waldron on the same subject, and a memorandum subsequently prepared by him (dated 15th November) explaining the mode in which he thinks his views might be carried into effect.

Reference is also made to the minutes of the Board of the 11th instant, when a statement was submitted of the duties assigned to the late Agricultural Inspector, Dr. Kirkpatrick, and to the chief officers who acted under him—namely, Messrs. Brogan, Baldwin, and Boyle; and also a paper by the Hon. Judge Longfield, containing proposals for the future arrangement of the agricultural department.

The Commissioners proceed to consider what changes (if any) it is advisable to make in this branch of their system including the Albert model farm. Also to determine the character, &c., of the person to be charged with the chief superintendence of the latter, and to decide how such person is to be selected.

Agreeably to his notice Mr. Waldron moves the following resolutions:

1. That the agricultural department of the Board—as at present managed—having lost the confidence of Parliament, of the landed proprietors, and of the agricultural classes, it would place in jeopardy the whole department and the large interests depending on it, to attempt to carry it on with the present staff.

2. That to depart from the established usage of the Board and to proceed to the election of so important an officer as the head of the agricultural department, without advertising the public of the vacancy and inviting competent persons to offer for it, would give just grounds for the suspicion and distrust under which this department labours; and,

3. (If the Board shall decide not to open the appointment to public competition,) that according to the invariable practice of the Board, in similar cases, the Agricultural Sub-Inspector having shown himself a most efficient officer, is entitled, as of right, to the promotion.

With the concurrence of Mr. Waldron, the 2nd and 3rd of the foregoing resolutions are amended and appear as follows:—

2. That the public be advertised of the vacancy caused by Dr. Kirkpatrick's retirement, and that persons competent to fill the office be invited to offer for it.

3. That the Agricultural Sub-Inspector, having shown himself a most efficient officer, is deserving of promotion on the present occasion.

The Commissioners present divide on the foregoing resolutions and vote as follows:

Resolution No. 1.—For it, Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.

Against it, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell; Hon. Judge Longfield; Right Hon. J. D. Fitzgerald; Right

Hon. the Attorney-General; John Lentaigne, esq.; J. Gibson, esq.; J. O'Hagan, esq.; Rev. Dr. Henry; Chief Justice Monahan; the Solicitor-General, and Chief Baron Pigot.

Resolution, No. 2.—For it, Laurence Waldron, esq., M.P.; and James Gibson, esq.

Against it, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell; Hon. Judge Longfield; Right Hon. J. D. Fitzgerald; the Attorney-General; J. Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Rev. Dr. Henry; Chief Justice Monahan; the Solicitor-General; Chief Baron Pigot.

Resolution, No. 3.—Agreed to by all the Commissioners present. (N.B.—The Right Hon. Lord Bellew, the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, and Rev. J. Hall had retired previous to the moving of the above resolutions.)

The Secretary again reads the paper drawn up by the Hon. Judge Longfield, and containing the following suggestions, viz.:

"I propose that Mr. Baldwin shall be the Superintendent of the Agricultural Department, and shall discharge the following duties:—

"1. The general superintendence of the discipline of the Glasnevin establishment.

"2. The examination of candidates for Glasnevin, and of the pupils and male teachers who require agricultural certificates.

"3. The arrangement and supervision of the course of agricultural instruction.

"4. The delivery of at least thirty lectures each session, viz.: twelve to the pupils at Glasnevin, twelve to the male teachers in Marlborough-street, and six to the female teachers. The last to be on poultry and dairy management chiefly. It will be his duty in those lectures, to show the pupils how to turn to practical account the instruction they receive at Glasnevin, and to explain to the teachers the proper organization and management of school gardens and farms.

"5. Conjointly with the Inspector to make an annual valuation of each of the Board's farms and the stock, plant, &c., to receive and revise the balance sheet for each farm, and the agriculturist's plan and estimate of the expense of carrying on the farm, and to submit the accounts, plans, and estimates to the Agricultural Committee.

"6. It will be his duty to attend all the meetings of the Agricultural Committees, to make weekly reports of the condition of the Glasnevin establishment according to forms to be supplied by the Board; to note all letters and reports received in relation to the agricultural schools, and to make an annual report on the general condition and progress of the agricultural department.

"7. He will also conduct such investigations and perform such other duties as may be occasionally required by the Board. As his duties and responsibility will be greatly increased by the proposed arrangements, it will be fair to increase his salary from its present rate of £200 to £250, to be increased by £10 each year until it amounts to £300.

"Mr. Brogan may be appointed Inspector of Agricultural schools. He should make an inspection and report of each of the agricultural schools three times a year. He should act jointly with the superintendent in article No. 5 of the superintendent's duties. He should make an annual report of the state of the agricultural schools and farms attached to them, and make such inquiries as may, from time to time, be required from the Board. On this increase of rank his salary may be raised from £150 to £200. Indeed he would probably have been already in receipt of the larger salary if he had not been removed to the agricultural department.

"Mr. Boyle may be appointed agriculturist at Glasnevin.

"1. It will be his duty to take charge of the spade farm and the twenty-five acre farm.

"2. To give daily practical lectures to the pupils in agriculture, and to examine them two or three times a week in the afternoon, in order to ascertain how far they understand the lectures and the operations of the farm.

"3. To give three lectures a week during the season to the male teachers in training at Marlborough-street, and on Saturday to give the same teachers a lecture at one of the farms at Glasnevin, to illustrate and explain the actual management.

"4. To keep the accounts of the farm at Glasnevin, and to make monthly reports to the superintendent of the attendance and progress of the pupils and teachers in training, and of the condition of the farms at Glasnevin. His present salary is £150. It may be increased to £200.

"It will be necessary to appoint a steward to take charge of the large farm, to allot their respective tasks to the men and the working pupils, and to take care that they work skilfully and diligently during the hours in which their work is required by the superintendent, and to see that the implements and machinery are kept in good working order, that they are used in a proper manner, and that they are returned to their proper places when not in immediate use. He will perform the general duties of a farm-steward, and should be specially careful to inculcate and explain the advantages of order, tidiness, and regularity. His salary may be £60 a year, to be increased by £5 a year until it amounts to £100.

"The gardener should give lectures in horticulture to the pupils and teachers in training. He should take charge of the kitchen-garden and ornamental grounds. He should give the pupils practical instruction in the various horticultural operations, such as grafting, budding, transplanting, and by frequent questions and explanations, ensure that the pupil shall be able to distinguish and form a judgment on the several seeds and vegetables in ordinary use, in the various stages of their growth, and know when and how to perform the operations necessary to their successful cultivation.

"The age and infirmity of the present herd make it necessary to appoint a yardsman, or assistant herd. His duty will be to take charge of the cattle in the yard and stalls, to see that the pupils give them their food at the proper time and in the proper manner, and to remain in the yard all night whenever it is likely that any of the cattle may require his assistance."

Ordered, that the plan proposed by the Hon. Judge Longfield be approved and be carried into effect, with the addition that Mr. Baldwin, superintendent of the agricultural department, shall deliver a more extended course of lectures, including in it some on the subject of "Agricultural Chemistry."

Present—Marquess of Kildare, Hon. Judge Longfield, Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan, Rev. John Hall, John Lentaigne, esq.; Hon. Thomas Preston, J. W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Secretary again submits the different papers in the case of the Wexford Convent National school, the manager of which has applied for certain liberty in regard to the imparting of religious instruction, as follows:—Letters 1,034, '65, and 1,506, '65, from Mrs. Walsh—the first asking permission "to take a class into an adjoining room, off the school, for religious instruction at the time that secular instruction is going on in the school, and when the latter is not in the least interfered with;" and the subsequent letter, dated 10th February, explaining (on the permission being refused by the Board's order of the 3rd February) that the liberty sought is only intended to be used "occasionally."

Also, letter dated the 24th February, from Head Inspector Patterson and District Inspector Dugan, reporting that, as directed by Board's order of the 17th February, they waited on Mrs. Walsh, from whom they obtained the following explanation as to the precise nature of the privilege she seeks, its extent, when, on what occasions, and in what way she means to exercise it—viz., I. Mrs. Walsh seeks the privilege of giving special religious instruction to some of the pupils, when the rest are engaged at secular instruction. in addition to the religious instruction given to all the pupils under the arrangement hitherto existing.

II. This special religious instruction is to be restricted to those pupils who, being most backward in religious knowledge, require special preparation for the Sacraments of their Church, and is to occupy from twenty to thirty minutes two or three days weekly, not more than three nor less than two months of the year.

III. The time for it is to be from 11 to 11.20 or 11.30 o'clock.

IV. The occasions being the preparation for confirmation or other Sacrament.

V. The special religious instruction is to be given in an apartment quite separate from those in which the secular instruction will be at the same time communicated.

The Secretary further submits letters No. 2,458, 2,469, and 4,826, '65, from the Bishop of Derry, the Attorney-General, and Mr. Gibson, respectively, setting forth the reasons why, in their opinion, the permission requested by Mrs. Walsh should be refused.

The Resident Commissioner moves that the applicant be informed "that there is nothing in her proposal of the 10th February, as now presented, at variance with the rules or the spirit of the National system, provided that the following cautions are observed:—1. The right must be so exercised as not to impede materially the secular education of the school. 2. That the secular education must, in all such cases, be regularly carried on in the school-room for the benefit of such children as are not partakers of the extern religious instruction. 3. That the teacher must not permit on such occasions any child to absent itself from the secular instruction who is not of the same faith as the person who is giving that extern religious instruction to the children of his own Church."

The Rev. John Hall proposes as an amendment to the foregoing, that Mrs. Walsh be referred to the secretary's letter of the 6th February, conveying the order of the Board of the 3rd February, and be informed that the Commissioners adhere to that decision.

Mr. Hall's amendment is not seconded. The motion of the Resident Commissioner is accordingly carried.

BOARD, Tuesday, 8th May, 1866.

Pursuant to notice, the Marquess of Kildare moves the adoption by the Board of the following rule:—

"No pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a member of the Established Church, as a Presbyterian, or as belonging to any other Protestant denomination, is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher is a Roman Catholic; and no pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Roman Catholic is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher is not a Roman Catholic. And further, no pupil is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of any religious instruction to which its parents or guardians object.

"A parent or guardian may, however, at the time or times of registration require the teacher to record the nature of the religious instruction which the child is to receive, as well as the creed which it is to profess."

Ordered, that the further consideration of the question be adjourned to the next meeting, when the Commissioners are to resume their deliberation of the subject.

BOARD, Tuesday, 15th May, 1866.

Present—Right Hon. Lord Bellew, Rev. Dr. Henry, the Marquess of Kildare, Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, Laurence Waldron, esq.; Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan, Right Hon. the Earl of Dunraven, Chief Justice Monahan, Rev. John Hall, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners resume the consideration of the Marquess of Kildare's proposal for the alteration of the Rule 2, Part I., Sec. iv., which was under discussion at the last meeting of the Board. The Secretary reads a letter (4,316, '66) from the Lord Bishop of Derry, dissenting from the change of rule as proposed by Lord Kildare, and suggesting the following rule for adoption, viz.:—

"Religious instruction must be so arranged that each school shall be open to children of all communions; that due regard be had to parental right and authority; and accordingly no child shall be present at any religious instruction without the express sanction of its parents or guardians, and that the time for giving it be so fixed that no child shall be thereby, in effect, excluded, directly or indirectly from the other advantages which the school affords."

The Resident Commissioner states that he has received a letter from Judge Fitzgerald approving of the change of rule proposed by the Marquess of Kildare. The Lord Chancellor suggests that the resolution should be introduced by the following words:—

"It appearing from a return furnished to the House of Commons that a large number of children are in the habit of attending religious instruction given by teachers of a creed different from that of the children themselves, the Commissioners, under these circumstances, have felt themselves called upon to reconsider their rules regarding religious instruction."

The Commissioners approve of this suggestion.

Judge O'Hagan proposes, as an amendment, that instead of the resolution proposed by the Marquess of Kildare, the following rule, prefaced by the words suggested by the Lord Chancellor, be adopted by the Board:—

"No pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Protestant is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction in case the teacher giving such instruction is a Roman Catholic. And no pupil who is registered by its parents or guardians as a Roman Catholic is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of religious instruction, in case the teacher giving such instruction is not a Roman Catholic. And further, no pupil is to be permitted to remain in attendance during the time of any religious instruction to which its parents or guardians object."

Judge O'Hagan's amendment is carried, the following members voting in favour of it:—Lord Bellew, Marquess of Kildare, Lord Chancellor, Judge Longfield

Mr. Waldron, Judge O'Hagan, Lord Dunraven, Judge Monahan, Mr. Lentaigne, Mr. O'Hagan, and Mr. Macdonnell.

The following three Commissioners vote against the amendment :—Rev. Dr. Henry, Mr. Gibson, and the Rev. Dr. Hall, who protest against the change of rule. The Commissioners approve of the following changes and omissions being made in the existing rules, consequent on the adoption of the new rule as set forth in Judge O'Hagan's amendment.

Part I., section iv., rule 2, instead of "no child shall be compelled to receive," &c., read "no child shall receive," &c. Rules 14, 15, 16, and 17 of the same section to be omitted, and Judge O'Hagan's amendment of the rule proposed by Lord Kildare to be placed after the present rule 18. In the note after rule 13, instead of "children whose parents," &c., read "children who, according to these rules should not be present thereat."

Ordered, that application be made to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant for his sanction of the foregoing proposed alterations and amendment in the rules.

Present—Marquess of Kildare; Hon. Judge Longfield; Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan; Chief Justice Monahan; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; J.W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Pursuant to the notice given on the last day of meeting, Judge Longfield moves the repeal of the 14th rule, on the classification of teachers, page 16, which enacts—"No teachers can be raised to any division of the 1st class unless they shall have been trained at the normal school of the Commissioners."

Ordered, that the rule in question be repealed. Read letter, 4,888, '66, from James Gibson, esq., communicating his dissent from Judge Longfield's motion, and requesting that, in event of the motion being affirmed by the majority of the Commissioners present, his dissent may be entered on the minutes.

Ordered, that Mr. Gibson's dissent be recorded on the minutes.

BOARD (SPECIAL), Friday, 22nd June, 1866.

Present—Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor; Hon. Judge Longfield; the Lord Chief Baron; Laurence Waldron, esq.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; John W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter, No. 5,133, '66, from the Bishop of Derry, requesting that a copy of his letter of the 12th May last may be sent with the return to the order of the House of Commons calling for the new rule respecting religious instruction.

Ordered, that the Bishop of Derry be informed that the Commissioners regret they are prevented by the terms of the order of the House of Commons from sending his letter of the 12th May; but that a note has been appended to the names of the Commissioners who protested against the change of rule, as follows:—

"Note.—The Bishop of Derry, in a letter addressed by him to the Board, expressed himself prepared to accede to a change of the rule, and with that view his Lordship submitted a proposition, which, however, was not adopted by the Commissioners."

13, 11, '66.

BOARD, Tuesday, 13th November, 1866.

The Resident Commissioner brings under the notice of the Board that the time has arrived for the preparation of the estimate for 1867–8, and asks if it is to be prepared with relation to the letter of the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, late Chief Secretary for Ireland, which was laid before the Commissioners on the 30th June last.

Ordered, that provision be made in the estimate for the several matters proposed in Mr. Fortescue's letter, with the exception of "payment by results," which is to remain for future consideration.

Present—Hon. Judge Longfield, Chief Baron Pigot, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq., Q.C.; J. W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letter from the Lord Bishop of Derry (10,150) placing on record his dissent from making provision in the estimate for the several matters proposed in the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue's letter of the 19th June last (which was taken into consideration by Board on the 13th instant), and stating his opinion that it is highly inexpedient that matters of so much importance, "not on the programme," should have been brought forward and decided upon, without due notice having been given.

Ordered, that in consideration of the foregoing letter, the question as to whether the estimate for 1867–8 shall be prepared so as to provide for the several matters suggested in the Right Hon. Mr. Fortescue's letter of the 19th June be brought before the Board at its next meeting. The usual notice to be given on the programme.

BOARD (ADJOURNED MEETING), Friday, 30th November, 1866.

Present—Right Hon. M. Brady, James Gibson, esq.; the Lord Chief Baron (Pigot); Rev. John Hall, D.D.; John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. Judge Fitzgerald, J. W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners proceed to consider the subjects contained in Mr. Fortescue's letter which were not decided on at the Board of the 27th instant.—1st, As to whether provision should be made in the additional estimate to be sent forward for the erection of vested model schools under local management; and, 2nd, Maintenance of model schools under local management (non-vested).

The Commissioners being divided in opinion on these points, the question is put to the vote, when the following members vote in favour of provision being made in the additional estimate for the above :—

For—The Lord Chief Baron, Right Hon. M. Brady, Right Hon. Judge Fitzgerald, John Lentaigne, esq.; J. O'Hagan, esq.; and Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Against—Rev. J. Hall, D.D.; J. Gibson, esq.; and J. W. Murland, esq.

Ordered, that provision be made in the estimate of £5,000 for the former service, and £6,000 for the latter.

Present—Marquess of Kildare, Laurence Waldron, esq.; James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, Right Hon. J. A. Lawson, M.P.; Rev. John Hall,

Read letter, No. 10,455 '66, from the Rev. Dr. M'Ivor, forwarding a memorial from the inhabitants of Newtownstewart and its vicinity, praying the Board to permit Classics and French to be taught in the Newtownstewart or any other National school, vested or non-vested, where it may be desirable, and that such instruction may be paid for by the Board on about the same scale as drawing, music, physical science, &c.

Ordered that the Rev. Dr. M'Ivor be informed that the Commissioners approve of the general principle of placing the attainment of a knowledge of Classics and French within the reach of the poorer classes, provided it can be done without injury to the Primary Instruction given in the "National schools."

Mr. Waldron records his dissent from this decision.

Present—Marquess of Kildare, Right Hon. M. Brady, Laurence Waldron, esq.; James Gibson, esq.; Hon. Judge Longfield, Rev. John Hall, D.D.; James W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Read letters 986 and 1,662, '67 from William Miller, esq., of Ahoghill, asking is the new rule with reference to religious instruction to have respect only to the distinction between Protestant and Roman Catholic children; or whether certificates must be procured from Protestant parents of any denomination different from that of the teacher, when the latter is a Protestant.

Ordered, that Mr. Miller be informed that the object of the rule is more fully to carry out the general principle of the Board, that no child is to receive any religious instruction contrary to the wishes of its parent.

Accordingly the rule first provides for the case where the teacher is a Protestant, and the child a Roman Catholic, or vice versa. In this case the dissent of the parent is implied, and no religious instruction can be given to a child by a teacher of the different creed unless the parent expressly requests it.

But where the teacher and the child are both Protestants, whether of the same, or of a different denomination, the dissent of the parent will not be implied. In this case religious instruction may be given to the child unless the parent expressly forbids it.

In each case, however, the assent or dissent, whether implied or expressed, may be modified by an entry duly signed by the parent in the Certificate Book of religious instruction.

Cases may occur in which the conduct of the teacher, although not coming within the strict letter of the new rule is obviously contrary to the general spirit of the National system—as, for instance, if instruction should be given in the catechism or creed of a different persuasion from that of the child.

Mr. Gibson records his dissent from the explanation of the rule given by the Board, as set forth in the minute on Mr. Miller's letter (No. 986, '67).

BOARD, Tuesday, 28th May, 1867.

The Resident Commissioner again submits his memorandum, modified in some particulars regarding the introduction of classics into the "model" and "ordinary" National schools, and the consideration of which was postponed on the 14th inst.

Ordered, that the Board approve of this Memorandum, and that a letter be written to the Lord Lieutenant informing him thereof, and applying for the means to carry out the proposed plan in the existing National schools in connexion with the Board, expressing at the same time the opinion of the Commissioners that it would be also desirable that the plan should be carried out in connexion with the establishment of model schools under the terms of the letter of the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue of the 19th June, 1866, which has already been approved of by the Board.

The letter to the Lord Lieutenant to be submitted to the Commissioners for approval at their next meeting.

BOARD, Tuesday, 4th June, 1867.

Present—Laurence Waldron, esq.; James Gibson, esq.; Right Hon. M. Longfield, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners postpone to the 18th inst. the consideration of the draft letter to be sent to the Lord Lieutenant with the memorandum regarding the introduction of classics into the "National schools."

Letters are read from the Rev. Dr. Henry (5,620, '67) and the Bishop of Derry (5,620, '67), expressing their dissent from the terms of the resolution of the last Board, on the subject of the introduction of classics.

Present—Right Hon. M. Brady, James Gibson, esq.; Right Hon. M. Longfield, Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Hon. Thomas Preston, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners proceed to the consideration of the draft letter proposed to be sent to the Lord Lieutenant, with the memorandum regarding the introduction of classics into the National schools, and the Board's resolution thereon, dated the 28th May, 1867.

Read letter from the Rev. Dr. Henry (6,112, '67), stating that he adheres to the views set forth in his letter of the 3rd inst. on this question (5,620, '67).

Ordered, that the letter of which the following is a copy, be approved and be forwarded to Lord Naas, viz.:

"Office of National Education.

"MY LORD,—We have the honour, by direction of the Commissioners of National Education, to transmit for the information and approval of His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of a resolution on the subject of the introduction of classics into the National schools, agreed to at two meetings of the Board, held on the 28th May and 4th June inst., and also a copy of a memorandum setting forth the details of the plan proposed for carrying out this measure.

"This question of the introduction of classics into elementary schools has been brought under the notice of the Commissioners at various times, and has been most fully and carefully considered. To the enclosed memorandum we attach an estimate of the probable cost of carrying out the scheme for the year 1867–8, the proposed expenditure being a little over £1,000. We are further instructed to observe that although there is no direct connexion between classical instruction and the alterations suggested by the Right Hon. Mr. Fortescue's letter, the Commissioners think it desirable that both should be included in the same supplemental estimate, and that, although good measures taken separately, they are much better when taken together. One reason for adopting both together is, that the class which will derive the most advantage from one alteration will be least pleased with the other. If both proposals should be adopted there will not be the slightest grounds for insinuating that any alteration was made with exclusive deference to the desires of any portion of the population.

"In our letter of the 4th December last we had the honour to forward to your lordship a statement in the form of a supplemental estimate, setting forth the cost of carrying out the proposals in the Right Hon. Mr. Fortescue's letter for the financial year 1867–68.

"We have the honour to be, &c., &c."

Copy of Memorandum and Estimate referred to in the foregoing Letter.

The Classical and French course, which will consist of portions of the works of the authors named below, to be agreed upon by the Commissioners, will embrace a period of three years, viz. :—

First Year.—Latin—Grammar, Delectus, Cæsar. French—Grammar, translation of French to English.

Second Year.—Latin—Sallust, Virgil. Greek—Grammar, Delectus, Xenophon's Anabasis. French—Translation from English to French.

Third Year.—Latin—Horace, Cicero, Livy. Greek—Lucian, Homer, &c., &c. French—The language generally.

No languages' department is to be recognised in a school unless at least six pupils, who have each made 150 attendances in the year, satisfactorily pass their examination. For every pupil of the languages' class who has made the necessary attendance, and who passes a satisfactory examination in the course prescribed for his year—

In Greek, 10*s.*, „ „
In French, 5*s.*, „ „ „

If a pupil passes his examination in one language, such pupil counts as one who "satisfactorily passes his examination." But if that pupil pass in two or three languages he yet counts as one only.

A pupil can be presented only once for the course of each year.

No pupil is to be admitted into the languages' class who is not qualified for the fourth class, or who has been at any school excepting a "National school" during the year immediately preceding his admission to the languages' class.

The manager and teacher may determine on the fees payable by the pupils for instruction in the languages. It is suggested that the fee for instruction in languages should be twice the amount of the fee paid for literary instruction; e.g., if the fee for literary instruction be 5*s.* a quarter, that for languages would be 10*s.* a quarter; if the fee for literary instruction be only 1*s.*, then the fee for "languages" would be 2*s.*, &c. The pupil's fee for one language is to be the same as for two or three languages.

When the teacher of the languages' class is also the literary teacher, principal or assistant of the school, he is not to occupy more than one hour of the regular school hours in the tuition of the languages' class.

But when the teacher is solely employed in giving instruction in Classics and French, the tuition of the languages' classes may be proceeded with throughout the day generally.

The pupils of the languages' class are, however, to continue to attend the ordinary instruction of the school, and wherever there is not a separate teacher for the Classics and French, the payment for giving instruction in the languages' class will be made dependent on the general proficiency of the pupils of the school in English and elementary education.

Where the teacher of the languages' class is either the principal or assistant teacher of the school and, as such, is paid his class salary by the Board, his remuneration for the tuition of the languages' class is to consist of the "results' fees" to be awarded by the Board and the pupils' fees.

But when the teacher has in the languages' class at least thirty pupils in daily average attendance and is solely employed for four hours daily in giving instruction in Classics and French to such pupils, his remuneration will consist of a class salary to be paid by the Board (as if he were an ordinary literary teacher of a National school) besides the "results' fees" and the fees of the pupils.

A teacher who is solely occupied as teacher of the languages' class, and who claims class salary, must be qualified to teach Latin, Greek, and French.

As already laid down, a languages' department cannot be recognised in a school unless at least six pupils who have each made 150 attendances in the year, satisfactorily pass their examination. But should a teacher, before or after school hours, choose to instruct one or more pupils in Latin, Greek, or French, and that such pupil or pupils make 150 attendances in the year and satisfactorily pass the examination, the Commissioners will be prepared to award the results' fees just as in the case of pupils of a regular languages' class, taught during one of the school-hours.

Estimate.

It is estimated that, for the year ending the 31st March, 1868, there will be required class salary for three teachers to be solely employed as teachers of Classics and French, £156; results' fees, £885; total £1,041.

19, 11, '67.

Board, Tuesday, 19th November, 1867.

Present—James Gibson, esq.; Laurence Waldron, esq.; Right Hon. M. Longfield, Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan, James W. Murland, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

Brought up Report of the Book Committee, which met at 4.45 o'clock.

Report.

Present—Right Hon. M. Longfield, James Gibson, esq.; Laurence Waldron, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell; Dr. Newell, secretary.

Read letter No. 10,722, '67, from Mr. Gibson, in which he states—

"I have to request that you will lay before the Committee at its next meeting the expression of my very strong disapproval of many of the pieces included in the 'Poetical Selections' now under consideration, as calculated to excite feelings and convey opinions to which, in my humble opinion, the teachers of youth should be no party. I also object altogether to the issue, in this compilation, of three plays of Shakespeare, which, independently of many passages in the plays which are of a character unsuitable to be brought before young persons of both sexes, I cannot but consider as a waste of public money, as the entire works of Shakespeare can now be had for one shilling, a price which brings them within the reach of most of the classes for whom this selection is intended. I therefore venture respectfully to express a hope that the Commissioners will not record their approval of this compilation, to which I entertain the most decided objection, the grounds of which I am prepared to state more fully if necessary."

Read also letter from the Rev. Dr. Henry stating—

"I hope the 'Poetical Selections,' vol. i., may not be accepted by the Commissioners. I have very strong objections to it, and as I do not know who the compiler is, I shall have the less difficulty in expressing them during the week. I believe that the advanced pupils of the National schools will, many of them, learn love songs soon enough, and extensively enough, without the proposed sanction of Her Majesty's Commissioners of Education. The range of English literature ought to have presented unobjectionable and profitable matters. If I were opposed to the National system, I would not desire a better argument than could be drawn from these 'Poetic Selections.'"

The Secretary, Dr. Newell, mentions that Mr. Lentaigne—whose letter (10,541, '67) was read to the Committee on the 5th instant—has signified his approval of any course pursued by the Resident Commissioner.

Proposed by Mr. Macdonnell—That the present volume, so far as it contains three plays of Shakespeare, and the selections from Shakespeare, together with Ben Jonson's poem to the memory of Shakespeare, be approved, and that a new proof containing these poems only shall be struck off, and a copy sent to each Commissioner before next Board day.

Judge Longfield and Mr. Waldron approve; Mr. Gibson dissents.

Ordered, that the foregoing report be approved.

BOARD, Tuesday, 5th May, 1868.

Present—Laurence Waldron, esq.; Right Hon. M. Brady, James Gibson, esq.; Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan, Right Hon. the Earl of Dunraven, John Lentaigne, esq.; Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Secretary submits for the Commissioners' final sanction a revised proof of the new "Poetic Selections," vol. i.

Ordered—That the volume now presented be sanctioned and placed on the Board's list.

Mr. Gibson reiterates his objections, and directs attention to his former letter on the subject (10,722, '67), as set forth in the minutes of the Board of the 19th November last.

Present—Rev. Dr. Henry, Right Hon. Sir M. Brady, Bart.; James Gibson, esq.; Right Hon. M. Longfield, Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor (O'Hagan), Right Hon. Chief Justice Monahan, Chief Baron Pigot, Right Hon. Judge Lawson, John Lentaigne, esq.; John O'Hagan, esq.; Right Hon. Judge Fitzgerald, Right Hon. Judge Morris, Rev. C. L. Morell, Rev. J. H. Jellett, Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice Monahan and the Right Hon. Judge Morris bring forward their motions regarding the promotion of Inspectors, of which they gave notice at the meeting on the 13th instant.

The Commissioners having discussed first the proposition of Judge Morris, "that the promotion from class to class amongst the District Inspectors should be by seniority, provided the senior candidate be decidedly competent."

It was moved as an amendment by the Right Hon. J. D. Fitzgerald, and seconded by the Lord Chancellor (O'Hagan), "That, having regard to the satisfactory results arising from the previous practice of the Board, it is inexpedient to consider the proposed resolution." This amendment having been put from the chair by Sir M. Brady, Bart., was declared carried.

The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice Monahan next put his proposition, "That, in promoting Inspectors from a lower to a higher class, promotion be made according to seniority in the class, unless there be some decided superiority in the case of a candidate not the senior."

The foregoing amendment was also proposed in relation to this proposition, and carried as before.

PARAGRAPH 6.—MODIFICATIONS or CHANGES in the requirements for admission to the TRAINING DEPARTMENT introduced since 1861.

There have been no modifications or changes in the requirements for admission to the Training Department since 1861.

The forms of old and new summons attached.

To the condition that each teacher should produce a certificate of good character from the officiating clergyman of the communion to which he belonged, some exceptions were made from the beginning. These exceptional cases have in recent years been more numerous, but the Commissioners have always had ample evidence of the teacher's good character.

* See Table No. 4. † See Table No. 5.

There have been five departments in the male school and four in the female school since the year 1861. The average ages of pupils of these departments have been calculated separately for each year; and as an average of these would not be the real average age of the pupils at the schools for the years referred to, it is not given in the foregoing tables. The actual average age for each of the five departments in the male school, and of the four in the female school, is given separately in the following tables:—

No. 1.—Copy of Letter, dated 19th June, 1866, from the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, M.P., Chief Secretary for Ireland, to the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland.

Irish Office, 19 June, 1866.

My Lords and Gentlemen,—I am desired by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant to inform you that Her Majesty's Government have had under their careful consideration several important questions connected with the operation of the National system of education in Ireland, to which they desire to call the attention of the Commissioners, with a view to the adoption of certain alterations which they believe would produce great public advantage.

The first point which they request the Board to consider is that of the training of teachers in model schools.

It was originally laid down by Lord Derby as a condition of the employment of teachers, that they should have received previous instruction in a model school, which was accordingly opened in Dublin in 1833.

But the Commissioners of Education having thus one normal school only, and having a large and increasing number of teachers to train, were forced to adopt a very limited course of instruction, a course which at first was spread over three months only, and which has never exceeded five months; and notwithstanding this effort to extend, however imperfectly, the influences of training as widely as possible, it appears that there are still in the National schools 4,309 untrained teachers out of a total number of 7,472.

It is of course known to the Government that the district model schools assist in supplying competent teachers. But the number which they are able to send out does not, it appears, exceed 90 annually, while in 34 out of 60 school districts into which the country has been divided, no model school has been established. It is accordingly ascertained that between the training school in Dublin and the district model schools in the country, the number of persons prepared annually for the office of teacher is only about 400, whereas the number of new teachers, principals, or assistants, annually required is about 900.

The Government view this state of things with much concern, and are anxious to apply a remedy to the incompleteness and inadequacy of the present training system; but considering the hostility felt and expressed in some quarters, and especially in the Roman Catholic community, to the principle of exclusive State management in the case of model and training schools, they are not prepared to undertake the extension of such schools under such exclusive management. The Government prefer to stimulate private enterprise and private zeal to supply the wants which exist, and they therefore propose to encourage the establishment of model schools under local management.

The following is the outline of the plan which the Government would propose for the consideration of the Board.

A model school, under local management, would consist of two parts:—

1st. The domestic establishment, which should have accommodation for at least 15 resident pupils, and which should in every respect be suitable to its purpose as a part of a training institution.

2nd. The school-house, which should be of a superior character, and be capable of accommodating at least 150 pupils.

The domestic establishment should be erected from funds derived from private sources.

The school-house may be built either from private funds, as in the case of ordinary non-vested National schools, or partly from private funds, and partly from the Parliamentary grant, as in the case of vested National schools. In the former instance, the school would be called a non-vested model school; in the latter instance, a vested model school.

To the erection of a vested model school-house the Commissioners would contribute in the same proportion of expense as in the case of ordinary schools. The management and general direction of a vested model school would be vested in trustees, who, subject to the Board's approval, would appoint the teachers, and would have the absolute power of dismissing them.

The heads of the school should exhibit qualifications for the proper training of students in the art of teaching, and the organization of schools.

The day-school must be open to pupils of all denominations, and must be conducted exactly upon the principle of an ordinary National school: a course of study by students in training would be laid down by the Board. For each student who should pass a satisfactory examination a grant should be made by the Board. The Government would look to the Board for advice as to the amount of such grant, and also for the suggestion of all regulations of detail necessary to carry into effect the plan which I have described.

Her Majesty's Government, in the next place, strongly recommend a revision of the arrangements for the reception of teachers in training, in force in the normal establishment in Dublin, with the view of providing, if possible, an ampler and more practical course of instruction for a larger number of teachers. They desire also to observe, that there is a marked distinction between the position of students residing for a considerable time as boarders in a training institute or model school and that of day-scholars attending an ordinary school; a distinction which accounts for the fact that objections are often entertained, especially by the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church, against sending teachers or pupil teachers to an institution where their domestic life is not based, like the family life of a home, upon identity of religious belief.

It appears to the Government that the double object of meeting such objections, and of providing the means of retaining a larger number of teachers for a longer period in training, might to a great extent be attained by permitting teachers or pupil teachers, at their own desire, or that of the managers of schools by whom they are sent up for training, to board and lodge out of the official establishment. In such cases teachers and pupil teachers should receive an allowance in lieu of board and lodging, and arrangements could be readily made for their reception in private boarding-houses sanctioned by the Commissioners. If a precedent were needed for such an arrangement, I find that in the Scotch Presbyterian training colleges there are no official residences for the teachers in training, who, by means of an allowance from the college, provide board and lodging for themselves.

The Government are further of opinion that, considering the nature of these institutions, in which the Commissioners stand, to a great extent, towards the teachers in loco parentis, and in which large number of children of different religious denominations are drawn together without that local supervision, either lay or clerical, which the patron or manager affords to an ordinary National school, some special provision should be made for the religious instruction and supervision of the inmates, and with this view they recommend the appointment of chaplains in connexion with the central training and district model schools, upon the following conditions:—

The Commissioners, upon the recommendation of the bishop or other authority of the Church to which they belong, should appoint as chaplains resident clergymen of each denomination.

The chaplain should have control, subject to the rules of the Board, over the religious instruction of the teachers in training and pupils of his own denomination.

It would be especially his duty to watch over those teachers who, under the last proposal, should reside out of the official establishment.

The Commissioners should require his certificate as a condition of granting or continuing their licence to a boarding-house for the use of teachers of his own denomination.

He should be remunerated by a capitation grant for the teachers in training and the pupils belonging to his own Church, his total income not, however, exceeding some fixed amount.

Every teacher of a model school would, as at present, be appointed by the Commissioners, subject to the possession of a certificate as to faith and morals from the chaplain of his own religious denomination.

Finally, I am directed by his Excellency to inform you that Her Majesty's Government are desirous of drawing the attention of the Commissioners to the important principle upon which the remuneration of the teachers of schools supported by the State has with such marked success been recently regulated in England and Scotland; I refer to the principle of State payments being apportioned to the ascertained results of education.

The Government do not urge upon the Commissioners the general adoption of this principle as an immediate change in the Irish system. They propose its early introduction in certain cases where it might properly be tried at once, as in that of the model schools, to be followed by its gradual development, not necessarily in the precise form which it has assumed in England, but with such modifications and adaptations as the Commissioners, profiting by English experience, with their knowledge of the wants and circumstances of Ireland, may recommend. I may add that I should hope that, as one effect of the change, the incomes of meritorious teachers would thereby be improved.

The Lord Lieutenant invites the immediate consideration of the Commissioners to the proposals herein contained, and requests to be favoured with their views thereon as soon as possible.

I have, &c.,

The Resident Commissioner explains that he has written to Lord Naas, apprising him that the Commissioners have received this letter from the Right Honorable C. P. Fortescue, and asking what he would wish should be done in reference to it.

The Secretary read letter, 6267/66, from the Bishop of Derry, stating that he is of opinion that no action should at present be taken by the Commissioners in reference to Mr. Fortescue's letter of the 19th June.

Ordered, That no action be taken until Lord Naas's answer shall have been received.

C. P. Fortescue, late Chief Secretary for Ireland, which was laid before the Commissioners on the 30th of June last.

Read letter from the Lord Bishop of Derry (10,150/66), placing on record his dissent from making provision in the estimate for the several matters proposed in the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue's letter of the 19th June last (which was taken into consideration by Board on the 13th instant), and stating his opinion that it is highly inexpedient that matters of so much importance, "not on the programme," should have been brought forward and decided upon without due notice having been given.

Ordered, That, in consideration of the foregoing letter, the question as to whether the estimate for 1867–8 shall be prepared, so as to provide for the several matters suggested in the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue's letter of the 19th June, be brought before the Board at its next meeting; the usual notice to be given on the "programme."

No. 9.—MINUTE of the 27th November, 1866.

A. Lawson, M.P., Rev. Dr. Hall, John Lentaigne, esq., Right Hon. Judge Fitzgerald, James W. Murland, esq., Right Hon. A. Macdonnell.

The Commissioners proceed to consider the question whether an additional estimate shall be prepared, so as to provide for the several matters (excepting the payment by results) suggested in the letter of the 19th June, 1866 (5456/66), from the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, late Chief Secretary for Ireland.

The Secretary reads the following paragraph in Mr. Fortescue's letter:—

"Her Majesty's Government, in the next place, strongly recommend a revision of the arrangements for the reception of teachers in training, in force in the Normal Establishment in Dublin, with the view of providing, if possible, an ample and more practical course of instruction for a larger number of teachers."

Ordered, That to defray the increased expense of the Normal Establishment under the new arrangement proposed, the sum of £3,090 be applied for, which is made up, as follows:—

The Commissioners propose to extend the period of training from five months to 44 weeks, and to increase the number of teachers in training from 200 to 300, for which purpose the present staff of two professors at £450 a year each, with two assistants at £300 each, and a lecturer on physical science at £360, must be increased to—

1. A professor of the English course, including reading, grammar, geography, &c.	450
2. A training master associated with him	100
3. A professor of arithmetic and mathematics	450

The increase consequent on the maintenance of 100 additional teachers residing out of the establishment for 44 weeks, at 12*s.* 6*d.* a week each	2,750
	£3,090

The Secretary next read the following paragraphs:

"The Government are further of opinion that, considering the nature of these institutions, in which the Commissioners stand, to a great extent, towards the teachers in loco parentis, and in which large number of children of different religious denominations are drawn together without that local supervision, either lay or clerical, which the patron or manager affords to an ordinary National school, some special provision should be made for the religious instruction and supervision of the inmates, and with this view they recommend the appointment of chaplains in connexion with the central training and district model schools, upon the following conditions:—

"The Commissioners, upon the recommendation of the Bishop or other authority of the Church to which they belong, should appoint as chaplains resident clergymen of each denomination.

"The chaplain should have control, subject to the rules of the Board, over the religious instruction of the teachers in training and pupils of his own denomination.

"It would be especially his duty to watch over those teachers who, under the last proposal, should reside out of the official establishment.

"The Commissioners should require his certificate as a condition of granting or continuing their licence to a boarding-house for the use of teachers of his own denomination.

"He should be remunerated by a capitation grant for the teachers in training and the pupils belonging to his own Church, his total income not, however, exceeding some fixed amount.

"Every teacher of a model school would, as at present, be appointed by the Commissioners, subject to the possession of a certificate as to faith and morals from the chaplain of his own religious denomination."

Ordered, That the sum of £5,800 be asked for the remuneration of chaplains, under the arrangement recommended above, this sum being calculated at an average per head of 10*s.* for each pupil and £1 for each teacher.

Ordered, further, That the details as to the appointment and powers of chaplains be hereafter determined.

Ordered, also, That an adjourned meeting for the consideration of the other subjects of Mr. Fortescue's letter, be summoned for Friday, the 30th instant, at half-past three o'clock.

No. 10.—MINUTE of the 30th November, 1866.

The Commissioners proceed to consider the subjects contained in Mr. Fortescue's letter which were not decided on at the Board of the 27th instant.

1st. As to whether provision should be made in the additional estimate to be sent forward, for the erection of vested model schools under local management; and,—

2nd. Maintenance of model schools under local management (non-vested).

The Commissioners being divided in opinion on these points, the question is put to the vote, when the following members vote in favour of provision being made in the additional estimate for the above:

Against—Rev. John Hall, D.D.; James Gibson, esq.; James W. Murland, esq.

Ordered, That provision be made in the estimate, £5,000 for the former service, and £6,000 for the latter.

On the subject of payment of teachers by ascertained results of education—

Resolved, That it is not necessary to provide, at present, for this service until the Commissioners shall have been enabled to mature a scheme for the purpose.

Ordered, That the estimate be prepared and forwarded to the Government for approval.

COPY "of a STATEMENT issued by the ELEMENTARY EDUCATION COMMITTEE of the GENERAL ASSEMBLY, in reply to the LETTER of the Right Honorable C. P. Fortescue, M.P., on the Organization and Government of MODEL SCHOOLS," &c.

STATEMENT in reply to the LETTER of the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, M.P., on the Organization and Government of MODEL SCHOOLS, &c.

The Elementary Education Committee of the General Assembly have had their attention directed to a letter, dated 19th June, 1866, addressed by the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, late Chief Secretary for Ireland, to the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland. This letter was printed in return to an Order of the House of Commons, dated 19th July, 1866. It deals with the subject of the Organization and Government of training and model schools, and with the principle upon which the remuneration of teachers of schools supported by the State ought to be regulated.

The Commissioners, in their reply, dated 2 July, 1866, "without binding themselves to the adoption of any particular details," "express their general approval of the proposals made, and their readiness to co-operate with the Government in carrying them into practical effect." The Assembly's Committee are deeply impressed with a sense of the importance of the subjects referred to in this correspondence, and of their bearing upon the educational interests of the country, and they feel it incumbent upon them to lay their views before both the Government and the public.

The first point to which, in this letter, the attention of the Commissioners is called is the training of teachers in model schools. They are reminded that "it was originally laid down by Lord Derby, as a condition of the employment of teachers, that they should have received previous instruction in a model school," but now, after the lapse of 35 years, "there are still in the National schools," it is stated, "4,309 untrained teachers out of a total of 7,472." In this statement there is no distinction made between principal teachers and assistants. The principal teachers alone could be expected to have been trained. At the end of 1864 they numbered 5,863. A few of the assistants have been trained, but the mass of them are virtually in course of training, and many of them would afterwards find their way into the model schools. These assistants numbered, at the same date, 1,609 and should have been deducted from the total of untrained teachers, to give a fair view of what the normal and model schools have effected in this department.

* Note.—The Enclosure sent in the foregoing letter consisted of the Eight Minutes given in this Return (Nos. 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10.)

The letter proceeds to say that "it is, of course, known to the Government that the district model schools assist in supplying competent teachers, but the number they are able to send out does not, it appears, exceed 90 annually." On this point, the Committee observe, that if the statement here made be correct, a very remarkable change must have passed over the model schools since the date of the "explanatory paper" of the Commissioners (6th February, 1864). In that document, printed by order of the House of Commons, the Commissioners say, that "to keep up the requisite number of teachers, about 700 new teachers must be supplied every year, and of these the district model schools only furnish about 130." In 1864, these schools were said to furnish every year about 130 new teachers, and the Committee believe that even that statement greatly underrated their capacity; but, in 1866, "the number does not, it appears, exceed 90 annually." The explanation of this serious and sudden deterioration of the model schools is not far to seek. Toward the close of 1863, an order was issued by the Commissioners, which took effect early in the following year, directing a large reduction to be made on the staff of candidate teachers in all the model schools. This was accordingly done, and thus a large number of these young persons were sent to their homes, and all the sanguine hopes they had been induced to cherish cruelly extinguished. The amount thus saved went to the payment of first-class monitors, chiefly, if not exclusively, in convent schools, and when this policy of repression, as regards model schools, has produced its natural and inevitable results, the authors of it persuade the Government to complain that the model schools are doing, and can do, comparatively little for the training of teachers. The Commissioners labour to produce inefficiency and incompleteness, and, when they have done so most effectually, the Chief Secretary is instructed to mourn over the results.

In the letter of Mr. Fortescue, it is stated that, "between the training school in Dublin and the district model schools in the country, the number of persons prepared annually for the office of teacher is only about 400, whereas, the number of new teachers, principals, or assistants, annually required, is about 900." In 1864, according to the statement of the "explanatory paper," just quoted, "about 700 new teachers must be supplied every year," but here, in the letter of the Government, they rise to "about 900." And once more new teachers, principals, and assistants are most conveniently grouped together to magnify the want, and so to depreciate the capabilities of the normal and district schools to meet that want.

The Assembly's Committee are convinced that, with suitable encouragement, the Dublin model school could train 400 teachers annually, and the district model schools 300, the whole number actually required. Dr. Patten, Head Inspector, in his report for 1862, says, "During 1861, 33 males and 30 females left the Belfast Model School, prepared to take charge of schools as principal or assistant teachers; and, in 1862, the number was still larger, as many as 76 having left for a similar purpose." This is what one model was able to accomplish before the staff of its pupil teachers and monitors was reduced about one-third, and what, then, might have been accomplished by all the model schools of the Board?

But the Government view the state of things as represented to them "with much concern," and what do they propose? "In 34 out of 60 school districts, into which the country has been divided, no model school has been established," and what more simple or natural than that the Board should be asked to proceed to have model schools established in some of these districts, and thus larger provision made for the training of teachers? If the model school system be a good one, and the present number of these schools be insufficient, others ought to be erected. But nothing of the kind is proposed. "Considering the hostility felt and expressed in some quarters, and especially in the Roman Catholic community, to the principle of exclusive State management in the case of model and training schools, they are not prepared to undertake the extension of such schools under exclusive management." On this statement, the Assembly's Committee observe, that it has never yet been proved that the Roman Catholic people have any hostility to the model schools, and the education given therein. On the contrary, they have continued till the present hour, in the face of very great difficulties, to take advantage of this education for their children, and the hostility referred to is manifested mainly, if not exclusively, by those who hold that the Church, and not the State, has a right to the entire direction and control of the education of the people, and it is in the interests and at the bidding of these parties that the changes sought are being made. Protestants of all denominations are satisfied with the present model school system, and desire its extension. It follows that the plan now proposed can be meant only for the encouragement of conventual and monastic seminaries.

And what is this plan? The Government "prefer to stimulate private enterprise, and to encourage the establishment of model schools under local management." Such a model school, it is said, should have a domestic establishment with accommodation for 15 resident pupils, and a school-house capable of accommodating at least 150 pupils, the domestic establishment to be erected from funds derived from private sources, and the school-house from private funds, or in whole or in part, from a Parliamentary grant.

The Assembly's Committee view this proposed revolution in the model school system with most serious apprehension. If these proposals be carried out, they will be the destruction of united education in Ireland. Those making them may profess to maintain the principles of united education, but they are, in reality, doing all in their power to subvert them. The changes sketched in this letter are specially adapted, not to say designed, to convert the schools of the religious orders of the Church of Rome into training and model schools. In convents the domestic establishment stands ready for the purpose described, and also the school-house capable of accommodating 150 pupils. And can these convent schools ever become model schools in the proper sense of the term? "The chief objects of model schools," according to the statement of the Commissioners in their rules and regulations, "are to promote united education, to exhibit the most improved methods of literary and scientific instruction to the surrounding schools, and to train young persons for the office of teacher." These objects model schools under local management, and especially convent schools, cannot accomplish. Their teachers are exclusively of one denomination. In their very dress they represent sectarianism in its most distinctive forms. The schools are attended by Roman Catholic children alone. Roman Catholic teachers alone could be trained in them, whilst the teachers of these schools themselves are neither trained nor classed, and are, therefore, not competent to undertake the training of others.

On the other hand, in the administration of a mixed or non-sectarian plan of education, it is essential that teachers should have a considerable course of training in an institution where this system is to be found in its highest perfection. In the existing model schools, both teachers and pupils are of various religious denominations. The idea of united education is in them a pleasing reality. Young teachers of different denominations are for a considerable time trained together. Thus they imbibe principles of toleration, mutual forbearance, and respect. It is necessary in such a system that the training schools should be under the Commissioners' supervision and control. In no other way can that unity and uniformity in training be maintained which are essential to success. The model schools are under the charge of trained and classed teachers of known ability and tried excellence, and they are thus in every respect preferable to schools under local management as training institutions for young candidate teachers.

In any case, these "local model schools" would spring up, not where they are most wanted, but where they could most effectually damage existing institutions. The plan is virtually to set up rival schools, supported out of the public funds, and under exclusive and sectarian management; and when these would have impaired the usefulness of the present model schools, the injury done to the latter would be used as an argument for getting rid of them altogether.

The next point referred to in the letter of the late Chief Secretary is the necessity of a revision of the arrangements for the reception of teachers in training in the Normal Establishment in Dublin. It is recommended that teachers and pupil-teachers be permitted to board and lodge out of the official establishment, receiving an allowance in lieu of board and lodging, and that chaplains should be appointed in connexion with the central training and district model schools.

In regard to the former of these points, it is surely reasonable to ask, Why, after the country has been put to large expense in the erection of a boarding establishment, it should be given up as useless? Has any evil been proved to have arisen from united boarding and training? On the contrary, have not leading officials from time to time testified to its eminent advantages? In the report of the Commissioners for last year the following statement occurs:—"The establishments in which the teachers, both male and female, attending at our training institution are boarded and lodged, continue to be efficiently conducted. The inmates have been distinguished, as heretofore, for the general correctness of their conduct, for the maintenance of order and discipline, for the exercise of kindly feeling toward each other, and for the careful observance of their religious duties." Is the Government of the country prepared to undo a system working so admirably—to foster sectarian separations and animosities, and virtually to suggest measures for preventing the people, and especially the youthful teachers of the people, from having friendly and kind intercourse with each other? Any statesman who imagines that he will pacify this country by handing the youth of it over to be educated, and the candidate teachers in it to be boarded and lodged by the religious orders of the Church of Rome, makes, we believe, a most serious mistake; and it is manifest that, to board Roman Catholic teachers "out of the official establishment" just means to board them in convents and monasteries, and thereby to support these institutions at the public expense.

Reference is indeed made to the "Scotch Presbyterian training colleges, in which there are no official residences for the teachers in training," but these colleges are under a denominational and not a mixed system; and, in any case, the circumstances of the two countries are so different that institutions and arrangements well adapted to the one may be entirely unsuitable for the other. Besides, the proposed change will never remedy the supposed evil. The parties objecting to united boarding and lodging will object also to the teachers going to professors of other persuasions than their own, and to their sitting on the benches with Protestants, just as they object to pupils going to model schools. In fact, the objection is not against the teachers living together so much as against their being under professors appointed by the Commissioners and not by themselves.

With regard to the proposal to appoint "chaplains" for the central training and district model schools, the committee regard such appointment as wholly unnecessary, as likely, if carried out, to entail large expense upon the State, and as tending to the introduction of religious rivalries and animosities. To place the teachers in private houses, and to pay "chaplains" for them, would subject them to the control of the clergy and weaken the legitimate influence of the Commissioners and the professors, who are supposed to be preparing them for the public service, and not for the purposes of ecclesiastical domination. Farther, to insist, as is proposed, that "every teacher of a model school must possess a certificate as to faith and morals from the chaplain of his own religious denomination," is to give such chaplain a veto on all appointments, which he will take care so to exercise that none but parties subservient to his ends shall be employed as teachers. It is not enough that a man should be of irreproachable character, but he must be sound in the "faith," and so certified, not by a clergyman, but by "the chaplain of his own denomination"! This is a power so liable to be abused, and so tyrannical, that no man should be intrusted with it. Besides, the proposal is utterly inconsistent with a united non-sectarian system of education, such as Parliament professes to maintain in Ireland, and the practice, begun in model schools, must ultimately be extended to all the National schools throughout the kingdom.

The committee regard, with much concern, the proposal to change the principle upon which the remuneration of teachers in Ireland has hitherto been regulated. It is daily becoming more difficult to procure teachers for National schools. This arises chiefly from the fact that they are not sufficiently remunerated. Many of the present teachers have expended much time and labour in securing a high classification, and now to turn round upon them and to apportion their payments solely according to the "ascertained results of education" would be unfair, and calculated greatly to discourage a most deserving and important class of individuals. These "results" have all along been taken into account by Inspectors, but upon the "class" of the teacher the amount of his salary has mainly depended. To change this system would be to put the untrained and unclassed teacher, who has indolently declined the necessary study, on a level with the individual of highest qualification and class. The committee would gladly co-operate with the Government and the Commissioners in endeavouring to induce the people to contribute more liberally for the education of their children, and it is mainly, they consider, in this direction an improvement should be sought. Of the total sum of £39,135 18*s.* 2*d.* contributed, under the head of "payments by pupils," in National schools over Ireland during the past year, Ulster contributed £16,092 15*s.* 1*d.*, and the Assembly's Committee believe that that sum could and ought to be largely increased.

In conclusion, the committee express their decided conviction that if these changes, made and threatened, are permitted to be carried out, the destruction of the present system of united education in Ireland is inevitable. It is the best boon the Parliament of Great Britain ever conferred on this country, and it is earnestly hoped that neither Parliament nor the public will permit the system to be insidiously subverted by those who, at the same time, profess to keep always "in view the fundamental principles of united secular education."

MEMORANDUM by P. J. KEENAN, esq., Chief of Inspection, on a Statement issued by the Elementary Education Committee of the General Assembly, in reply to the letter dated 19 June, 1866, of the Right Hon. C. P. FORTESCUE, M.P., late Chief Secretary for Ireland.

MEMORANDUM.

My attention having been called to a Statement issued by the Elementary Education Committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in reply to the letter dated 19 June, 1866, of the Right Hon. C. P. Fortescue, M.P., late Chief Secretary for Ireland, I found that it contained a general repudiation of the facts and propositions of Mr. Fortescue's letter; and as, for obvious reasons, my duty called me to investigate the several allegations of the committee, I have now the honour to present to the Board of National Education this memorandum, as the result of my inquiries.

I have taken special care to limit my comments to the simple elucidation of truth, and to characterize my remarks by a respectful consideration for the influential source from which the document emanated.

In the accuracy of the statistical information contained in this memorandum, the Commissioners may have the most implicit confidence.

With the sanction of the Resident Commissioner, I caused a number of the clerks to undertake the compilation of the statistics necessary for my investigation, and I placed those clerks under the general superintendence of Mr. Daly (a Presbyterian), and Mr. Fitzsimon (a Roman Catholic). In the absence, for part of the time, of Mr. Daly, through illness, I caused Mr. Thomas Craig, also a Presbyterian, to perform the check work intrusted to Mr. Daly.

Besides, I required that the result of every individual clerk's share in the labour should be checked by another clerk, and I have now deposited in the office all the sheets of detail certified and checked by the various clerks engaged in the work.

I here take leave to express my obligations to the several clerks who took part in the statistical work referred to, especially as the heavy part of it was accomplished after office hours, during the prevalence of the severe weather of the past few weeks.

I should observe, that when the statistics for the annual report for any particular year, say, for example, the year 1865, were in course of preparation, all the documents of the year, documents relating to the appointment and dismissal of teachers and to sundry other particulars, could not, in the nature of ordinary official action, be at the disposal of the compiler of the report. Hence, an annual report is given only as the result of the information at hand at the time the report is compiled. But as the statistics set forth in the following pages mainly relate to 1865 and previous years, I had the advantage of having at my command all the documents and all the information necessary to make my representations complete. Accordingly, the returns herein made will be found to differ slightly from the numbers published in the annual reports, but with regard to accuracy, as I have already said, they may be entirely relied upon.

In the returns published in our reports, the class of teachers called "Junior Literary Assistants" has been always included under the same head as the workmistresses. In the returns from which the summaries in this memorandum are made, this class of teachers, 309 in number, is properly embraced under the general head "Assistant."

The first statement in the Committee's document is as follows:—

"The first point to which, in this letter, the attention of the Commissioners is called, is the training of teachers in model schools. They are reminded that 'it was originally laid down by Lord Derby, as a condition of the employment of teachers, that they should have received previous instruction in a model school;' but now, after the lapse of 35 years, 'there are still in the National schools,' it is stated, '4,309 untrained teachers, out of a total of 7,472. In this statement there is no distinction made between principal teachers and assistants. The principal teachers alone could be expected to have been trained. At the end of 1864 they numbered 5,863. A few of the assistants have been trained, but the mass of them are virtually in course of training, and many of them would afterwards find their way into the model schools. These assistants numbered, at the same date, 1,609, and should have been deducted from the total of untrained teachers, to give a fair view of what the normal and model schools have effected in this department."

In this passage it is objected, that no distinction is made when stating the number of untrained teachers, between principal teachers and assistant teachers. Here are the facts: on the 31st December, 1865, there were engaged in the teaching of National schools, 3,314 trained principals, and 324 trained assistants, or a total of 3,638 trained teachers; and there were similarly engaged at the same time, 2,661 untrained principals, and 1,833 untrained assistants, or a total of 4,494 untrained teachers.

The return of untrained teachers in Mr. Fortescue's letter was, accordingly, no exaggeration.

But the Committee appear to ignore, almost entirely, the training of assistant teachers; and they observe: "The principal teachers alone could be expected to have been trained."

I have now before me the names of all the persons who were trained in the normal establishment, Dublin, during the years 1863, 1864, 1865, and 1866. I refer, of course, to those persons only who, during their period of training, were boarded and lodged at the public expense.

The Professors, in those returns, describe the position occupied by each person on entering the training establishment, as "Principal," "Assistant," &c., &c.

In 1863 there were 325 persons trained, of whom only 146, or 45 per cent. were principal teachers.

In 1864, there were 306 persons trained, of whom only 118, or 38·7 per cent. were principal teachers.

In 1865, there were 308 persons trained, of whom only 135, or 43·8 per cent. were principal teachers.

And in 1866 there were 285 persons trained, of whom only 118, or 41·4 per cent. were principal teachers.

In brief, during those four years there were 1,223 persons trained, of whom only 517, or 42·3 per cent. were principal teachers. How, then, can it be maintained that "the principal teachers alone could be expected to have been "trained"?

Then, again, the Committee say, "a few of the assistants have been trained;" and "these assistants numbered, at the same date, 1,609, and should have been deducted from the total of untrained teachers, to give a fair view of what the normal and model schools have effected in this department."

I have already shown that on the 31st December, 1865, there were as many as 324 assistants who had been trained; and from the "training lists" before me, I find that during the past four years, 232 assistants were trained, or an average of 58 per annum; the average per annum of principal teachers for the same period being only 129, although they are nearly three times as numerous as the assistants.

But, besides the 232 assistants there were trained in the normal establishment during the past four years, 474 persons (or 118 per annum) of a still more junior character, namely: pupil teachers, paid monitors, and others, who, in many cases, upon the expiration of their training, become the recruits for the assistantships, as the assistants in turn form the great corps of recruits for the principalships.

It is clear, therefore, that the statement, "a few of the assistants have been trained" is an inadequate expression of the facts; and further, it is evident that to give a fair view of what the "normal and model schools have effected" in the department of training assistants must not be deducted from the total of untrained teachers.

The importance of the office of "assistant" is, I take leave to say, underrated by the Committee. A stranger to the National system or to the country might reasonably conclude, from the manner in which assistants are alluded to in the passage first quoted, that they are mere juveniles or pupil-teachers, or persons of that class.

"But the mass of them," the Committee say, "are virtually in course of training, and many of them would afterwards find their way into the model schools."

Whatever the meaning of this passage may be, it applies quite as truly and forcibly to the 2,661 untrained principal teachers as it does to the 1,833 untrained assistants; for the assistant teachers must be of the same minimum age as the principal teachers, and must pass the same examinations, identically, for classification.

And if it be, as it of course is, a lamentable circumstance, that there are 2,661 untrained principal teachers in charge of National schools, numbers of whom, from the accidents of age, marriage, &c., &c. are practically ineligible for training, it is a subject of much more serious concern to find in our schools 1,833 untrained assistants, persons who are rarely married, who are exactly of the age and temper for training, and who, if neglected, may pass away from the groove of teaching altogether.

The next point in the Committee's paper, is:—

"The letter proceeds to say, that 'it is, of course, known to the Government that the district model schools assist in supplying competent teachers; but the number they are able to send out does not, it appears, exceed 90 annually.' On this point the Committee observe, that if the statement here made be correct, a very remarkable change must have passed over the model schools since the date of the 'Explanatory Paper' of the Commissioners (6th February, 1864). In that document, printed by order of the House of Commons, the Commissioners say, that "to keep up the requisite number of teachers, about 700 new teachers must be supplied every year, and of these the district model schools only furnish about 130.' In 1864, these schools were said to furnish, every year, about 130 new teachers, and the Committee believe that even that statement greatly underrated their capacity, but, in 1866, 'the number does not, it appears, exceed 90 annually.'"

When the explanatory paper of 6th February, 1864, above referred to, was submitted to the Lord Lieutenant there were about 130 pupil teachers in the district and minor model schools throughout the country: and, as the period of service of each pupil teacher, by the terms of his appointment, was one year, it was then correctly stated that the number of such persons issuing from the model schools, if each served the stipulated time, was, as represented, 130.

But it is now found that, with a view to their better education, the pupil teachers as a general rule, are retained for a second year, the effect of which practice is, of course, to reduce to nearly one-half the number of pupil teachers leaving the model schools annually.

Ninety, the number mentioned by Mr. Fortescue, is, in reality, in excess of the average number that left the model schools annually during the past three years, the average being only 76; but it was anticipated that, consequent upon the operation of the Cork school, recently opened, and of the Enniskillen school soon to be opened, the number might reasonably be set down as 90.

The Committee then say:

"The explanation of this serious and sudden deterioration of the model schools is not far to seek. Towards the close of 1863, an order was issued by the Commissioners which took effect early in the following year, directing a large reduction to be made on the staff of candidate teachers in all the model schools. This was accordingly done, and thus a large number of these young persons were sent to their homes, and all the sanguine hopes they had been induced to cherish cruelly extinguished. The amount thus saved went to the payment of first-class monitors, chiefly, if not exclusively, in convent schools; and when this policy of repression as regards model schools has produced its natural and inevitable results, the authors of it persuade the Government to complain that the model schools are doing, and can do, comparatively little for the training of teachers! The Commissioners labour to produce inefficiency and incompleteness, and when they have done so most effectually, the Chief Secretary is instructed to mourn over the results."

The order referred to as having been made in 1863 was not an order for reduction, it was an order for the rectification of the teaching and monitorial staff throughout the model schools generally. In some model schools it was observed that there was an excess of teaching power, or of the monitorial staff, whilst in other model schools the error lay in the opposite direction. The effect of the order upon all the model schools in operation in 1863 is as follows:—

A. Under the head of Retrenchment.	Principals,	0
	Assistant teachers,	4
	Pupil teachers,	29
	Monitors,	54
B. Under the head of Addition.	Principals,	1
	Assistant teachers,	6
	Pupil teachers,	18
	Monitors,	27
C. Result of Retrenchment and Addition.	Principals,	1 added.
	Assistants,	2 do.
	Pupil teachers,	11 deducted.
	Monitors,	27 do.

As to the statement of the Committee: "and thus a large number of those young persons were sent to their homes, and all the sanguine hopes they had been induced to cherish cruelly extinguished," I have simply to observe, that not a single pupil teacher throughout the length and breadth of the land was sent to his or her home or to any other place consequent upon the order in question.

To test whether any "of those young persons were sent to their homes," as alleged, I caused a circular to be recently issued, inquiring as to the facts in respect to every model school in the country, and the replies of the Inspectors were uniformly of the same tenor, that no such case ever occurred.

Not even a little monitor was ever sent away, under such circumstances, from any model school in the country, except, indeed, from the Clonmel School, where the Inspector, acting on a misconception of his orders, to which the attention of his Head Inspector, with a view to the correction of the mistake, was soon afterwards directed, removed two children (monitors) before the expiration of their full period of service. But, in respect to this solitary case, it is to be remarked that the children in question were not sent away from the model school to their homes, for they were living at their homes, as monitors generally are, and simply attending the model school like ordinary day scholars.

When a reduction of the staff was to be effected, consequent upon the process of rectification referred to, it was accomplished, not by a removal of persons before the expiration of their full period of service, but simply by leaving unfilled the vacancies, as from time to time they occurred.

After what has been just stated, the observation that "the amount thus saved went to the payment of first-class monitors, chiefly if not exclusively, in convent schools," needs but little remark.

The amount "thus saved" in the rectification of the staff of all the model schools was a mere trifle, about £300 a year; and it was applied to no special purpose, or special service, for the very good reason that Parliament was not invited by the Board to vote it again.

It would be quite as fair and logical to charge the Commissioners with applying this small saving to the increase of their grants to the schools of the town of Belfast, which, from £11,767 13*s.* 3*d.*, in 1853, became £12,032 11*s.* 2*d.* in 1865. Indeed there is something like a coincidence in amount between the increase in the latter case and the "saving," a few hundred pounds; but no coincidence is to be met with in the items the "saving" and the "vote for the support of the first-class monitors," the one being £300 and the other £2,000.

The observation which I have been examining, "The amount thus saved went to the payment of first-class monitors, chiefly, if not exclusively, in convent schools," requires further notice. It implies that the employment of first-class monitors is confined to the convent schools. Now, the number of first-class monitors in the National schools of the country on the 31st December last was 122, of whom 68 were in convent schools, one was in a monastic school, and 53 were in common National schools.

On the 31st December 1865 there were upwards of 74,000 children in the convent schools, and the monitorships were the only prizes open to those children so long as they remained in the convent schools.

In the common National schools persons eligible for first-class monitorships often float at once into the great channel of assistantships; 2,157 prizes, not one of which, by our rules, is obtainable in a convent school by a person who completes her ordinary monitorship and who desires to associate her future fortunes and labours, as a National teacher, with the place of her education, and with the nuns who have trained and nurtured her.

Hence the occurrence of a small majority of those first-class monitorships in the convent schools.

The Committee next say:—

"In the letter of Mr. Fortescue it is stated that, 'between the training school in Dublin and the district model schools in the country, the number of persons prepared annually for the office of teacher is only about 400, whereas the number of new teachers, principals or assistants, annually required is about 900.' In 1864, according to the statement of the 'Explanatory Paper,' just quoted, 'about 700 new teachers must be supplied every year;' but here, in the letter of the Government, they rise to 'about 900'! And once more new teachers, principals and assistants, are most conveniently grouped together to magnify the want, and so to depreciate the capabilities of the normal and district schools to meet that want!"

The correctness of the statement in the explanatory paper of February, 1864, and the accuracy of Mr. Fortescue's statement, appear to be alike impugned in the foregoing passage.

It is assumed that there were not as many as 700 new teachers wanted in 1864, or as many as 900 in 1866. Advisedly, the representations of 1864 and 1866 were understatements. They were based on averages of previous years. The following table shows the exact number of persons appointed for the first time to teacherships during the years 1863, 1864, and 1865:

Year.	Principals.	Assistants.	Total.
1863 . .	406	429	835
1864 . .	381	529	910
1865 . .	393	602	995

Note.—The above returns refer to persons who had never before served in the capacity of assistant or of principal in any National school in Ireland. Those returned as principals began their professional career as such, i.e., they had never previously acted as assistants.

The average number for the three years preceding 1866, when Mr. Fortescue announced the number of vacancies to be 900, is thus, it appears, 913. But, as I have said, and as those returns show, 900 is an understatement; for, strictly speaking, it is an average of the future or expected vacancies that ought to have been set forth, as it was in reference to such vacancies Mr. Fortescue was legislating. Similarly, it would have been quite legitimate for the Board, when drawing up the statement of February, 1864, to have set down the vacancies by an anticipation of what they were likely to be in the future, rather than by an average of what they had been a few years previously.

The grouping of principals and assistants in the return in no respect "magnifies the want," as is alleged by the Committee. Whether as principals or as assistants, 900 persons are required, annually, to recruit the ranks of our teachers, and whether as principals or as assistants they must be competent for their work.

Nor does the grouping of the assistants and the principals effect the object attributed by the Committee to Mr. Fortescue, i.e., "to depreciate the capabilities of the normal and district schools to meet that want;" for principals and assistants, as I have shown, alike avail themselves of "the capabilities of the normal schools" for the purposes of training.

Notwithstanding that Mr. Fortescue stated that the number of new teachers required for the National schools amounts to 900 annually, the Assembly's Committee, in the next sentence which I quote, lay it down that 700 teachers "is the whole number actually required."

(I take leave here to remind the Board, that in 1864 the occurrence of 700 vacancies was denied by those who opposed the views of the Commissioners at that time.)

The Committee proceed to say:—

"The Assembly's Committee are convinced that, with suitable encouragement, the Dublin Model School could train 400 teachers annually, and the district model schools 300; the whole number actually required. Dr. Patten, Head Inspector, in his Report for 1862, says: 'During 1861, 33 males and 30 females left the Belfast Model School, prepared to take charge of schools as principal or assistant teachers; and, in 1862, the number was still larger, as many as 76 having left for a similar purpose.' This is what one model was able to accomplish before the staff of its pupil teachers and monitors was reduced about one-third, and what, then, might have been accomplished by all the model schools of the Board?"

In the preceding passage the Committee say that, "with suitable encouragement, the Dublin Model School could train 400 teachers annually;" but they appear to overlook the fact that Mr. Fortescue recommended "suitable encouragement" to be given to the Dublin Model School, so that there might be provided, as he said, "an ampler and more practical course of instruction for a larger number of teachers."

In reference to the capabilities of the district and minor model schools to produce candidates for teacherships, comment has already been made in a previous part of this memorandum; but as regards the particular case quoted above by the Assembly's Committee, i.e., as to what one model school was able to accomplish, strict inquiry has been instituted, and it has been ascertained that the number of pupil teachers and paid monitors who left that model school and all the other model schools in the country, to become teachers or assistant teachers in National schools during the years 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, 1864, 1865, and 1866, was as follows:—

Pupil teachers,	49	38	39	49	45	39	34
Paid monitors,	21	32	32	15	21	28	21
Total,	70	70	71	64	66	67	55

In reference to the Belfast case, which the Committee refer to as an illustration of "what one model school was able to accomplish before the staff of its pupil teachers and monitors was reduced," it is left to be inferred (at all events it may be so inferred) that the 63 prepared for teaching purposes in 1861 had all been pupil teachers or monitors; and further, that they had all become principal teachers or assistant teachers in National schools. Now, the Committee overlook the fact that it was stated by Messrs. Patten and W. R. Molloy, in their report for 1861, page 132, that 19 of the number had been simply pupils in the school; and that in their report for 1863, in which they refer back to their returns for 1861 and 1862, they show that they count pupils who were promoted to mere monitorships as amongst the number "prepared for the office of teacher." They show that of the 54 "prepared," as they express it, "for the office of teacher" in 1863, 21 were mere pupils who became monitors only, 2 were mere pupils who became pupil teachers only, and 11 were mere pupils who became teachers; 5 only were monitors who became teachers, and 15 only were pupil-teachers who became teachers.

Messrs. Patten and Molloy pursued this system of reporting for three years, i.e., for 1861, 1862, and 1863.

For 1861 they returned 63 as the number of teachers produced; but I find that the number of persons who left the school to become teachers or assistant teachers in that year was only 37, the remainder having been mere pupils who became monitors, with the exception of two who became pupil-teachers.

In 1862 they returned 76 as the number prepared for the office of teacher; but Mr. W. R. Molloy (who conjointly reported with Dr. Patten, lately Head Inspector) shows, in a return he has furnished, that he included in the 76 so many as 33 mere pupils who became monitors only; 2 mere pupils who became pupil-teachers only; 18 mere pupils who became teachers; 6 monitors who were promoted to pupil-teacherships; and 17 monitors or pupil-teachers who left the school to become teachers.

I regret that Dr. Patten and Mr. W. R. Molloy should have entertained the opinion that the promotion of a child of 11 or 12 years of age to a monitorship was the accession of a teacher to the ranks of the National teachers, or that the engagement of mere pupils for teacherships had any connexion with the question of preparing persons for teachership through the agency of the monitorial or pupil teacher system; but I take the liberty of saying that the Committee, when quoting the figures 76 and 63, should have explained what Messrs. Patten and Molloy, as interpreted in their report for 1863, intended those figures to represent.

The Committee, further, leave it to be inferred that a satisfactory measure of success, consequent upon the recent action of the Board, has not been latterly experienced in the Belfast Model School. The following return for the year 1866 is the best answer to any such suggestion:—

No. of pupils who became monitors . .	24
No. of ditto who became teachers . .	4
No. of monitors who became teachers . .	6
No. of pupil teachers who became teachers .	12
Total . .	46

The last two items are the only ones which exhibit any success in the production of candidate teachers on any recognised or systematic course of instruction; but as Messrs. Patten and W. R. Molloy fallaciously (on what grounds I cannot understand) included for the three years 1861, 1862, and 1863 the other items, I have, for the purpose of comparison, inserted those items also.

The concluding sentence of the paragraph just quoted is: "This is what one model school was able to accomplish before the staff of its pupil-teachers and monitors was reduced about one-third; and what, then, might have been accomplished by all the model schools of the Board?"

When the rectification of the teaching staff in the model schools, already described at page 11, was under consideration in 1863, it was observed that there was one person occupying some teaching position, as teacher, pupil-teacher, or paid monitor, for every 10½ pupils in average attendance in the Belfast Model School; a state of things which was wholly indefensible. The rectification which took place left, I should add, a very liberal provision of teaching power; it left a teacher, pupil-teacher, or paid monitor for every 14½ pupils.

Staff in 1863.	Staff as Rectified.
3 Principal teachers .	. The same.
22 Assistant teachers .	. The same.
1 Singing master .	. The same.
1 Drawing master .	. The same.
1 Work mistress .	. The same.
1 Navigation master .	. The same.
27 Pupil-teachers . .	23 Pupil-teachers.
54 Paid monitors . .	27 Paid monitors.

The Committee then proceed to say:—

"But the Government view the state of things as represented to them 'with much concern,' and what do they propose? 'In 34 out of 60 school districts into which the country has been divided, no model school has been established,' and what more simple and natural than that the Board should be asked to proceed to have model schools established in some of these districts, and thus larger provision made for the training of teachers? If the model school system be a good one, and the present number of these schools be insufficient, others ought to be erected. But nothing of the kind is proposed. 'Considering the hostility felt and expressed in some quarters, and especially in the Roman Catholic community, to the principle of exclusive State management in the case of model and training schools, they are not prepared to undertake the extension of such schools under exclusive management.' On this statement the Assembly's Committee observe that it has never yet been proved that the Roman Catholic people have any hostility to the model schools, and the education given therein. On the contrary, they have continued till the present hour, in the face of very great difficulties, to take advantage of this education for their children; and the hostility referred to is manifested mainly, if not exclusively, by those who hold that the Church, and not the State, has a right to the entire direction and control of the education of the people; and it is in the interests and at the bidding of these parties that the changes sought are being made. Protestants of all denominations are satisfied with the present model school system, and desire its extension. It follows that the plan now proposed can be meant only for the encouragement of conventual and monastic seminaries."

No generalisation can so accurately express the different degrees of favour evinced from time to time by Roman Catholics towards the district and minor model schools, as a statement of the attendance at those schools since their first institution.

I have therefore prepared the following Table, from the information contained in the annual reports of the Commissioners, the first of the uniform returns referring to the year 1852:—

TABLE exhibiting the Attendance and the Religious Denominations of the Pupils of the District and Minor Model Schools, from the year 1852.

Year.	Number of Schools in Operation.	Number of Children on the Rolls.		Per-centage of Catholics.	Per centage of Protestants.

It may be added that the attendance of Roman Catholics at some of the model schools is practically nil. That at Derry, where there is a population of 12,036 Catholics, and at Sligo, where there is a population of 9,838 Catholics, there are in the model school of the former place only 10 Roman Catholics, whilst in the model school of Sligo there is not a single Roman Catholic in attendance.

For better comprehension of that part of the question relating to "the hostility felt and expressed in some quarters, and especially in the Roman Catholic community, to the principle of exclusive State management in the case of model and training schools," I beg to subjoin a statement of the religious denominations of the teachers, trained and untrained, in the National schools of Ireland.

On the 31st December, 1865 there were 6,316 Roman Catholic teachers, of whom 3,599, or 57 per cent., were untrained; and at the same time there were 1,816 Protestant teachers, of whom 895, or 49·3 per cent., were untrained.

Arranged in provinces, the Catholic teachers number:—

Province,	Untrained.	Trained.	Total.
Munster, . .	1,370	813	2,183
Leinster, . .	840	800	1,640
Connaught, . .	693	672	1,365
Ulster, . .	696	432	1,128
Total, . .	3,599	2,717	6,316

And similarly arranged, the Protestant teachers number :—

Province.	Untrained.	Trained.	Total.
Munster, . .	16	36	52
Leinster, . .	27	57	84
Connaught, . .	18	35	53
Ulster, . .	834	793	1,627
Total, . .	895	921	1,816

The preceding returns represent in provinces the number of the trained and the untrained; and in juxta-position with those returns I now give a table showing the distribution of the district and minor model schools of the country :—

Ulster, ...	14
Leinster, ...	5
Munster, ...	5
Connaught, ...	2

Total, 26 district and minor model schools.

In connexion with this part of the question, I beg to submit the following statistical facts :—

Roman Catholics.—There are 3,732 Roman Catholic male teachers, of whom 1,873, or 50· per cent., are trained; and there are 2,584 Roman Catholic female teachers, of whom only 844, or 32·6 per cent. are trained.

Established Church.—There are 304 Established Church male teachers, of whom 158, or 52· per cent. are trained; and there are 183 Established Church female teachers, of whom 97, or 53· per cent. are trained.

Presbyterians.—There are 742 Presbyterian male teachers, of whom 459, or 61·8 per cent. are trained; and there are 462 Presbyterian female teachers, of whom 173, or 37·4 per cent. are trained.

Other Protestants.—There are 67 male teachers of other Protestant denominations, of whom 24, or 35·8 per cent. are trained; and there are 58 female teachers of other Protestant denominations, of whom 10, or 17·2 per cent. are trained.

The Committeee then ask :—

"And what is this plan? The Government 'prefer to stimulate private enterprise, and to encourage the establishment of model schools under local management.' Such a model school, it is said, should have a domestic establishment with accommodation for fifteen resident pupils, and a school-house capable of accommodating at least 150 pupils, the domestic establishment to be erected from funds derived from private sources, and the school-house from private funds, or in whole or in part from a Parliamentary grant.

"The Assembly's Committee view this proposed revolution in the model school system with some serious apprehension. If these proposals be carried out, they will be the destruction of united education, but they are in reality doing all in their power to subvert them. The changes sketched in this letter are specially adapted, not to say designed, to convert the schools of the religious orders of the Church of Rome into training and model schools. In convents the domestic establishment stands ready for the purpose described, and also the school-house, capable of accommodating 150 pupils. And can these convent schools ever become model schools in the proper sense of the term? 'The chief objects of model schools,' according to the statement of the Commissioners in their rules and regulations, 'are to promote united education, to exhibit the most approved methods of literary and scientific instruction to the surrounding schools, and to train young persons for the office of teacher.' These objects model schools under local management, and especially convent schools, cannot accomplish. Their teachers are exclusively of one denomination. In their very dress they represent sectarianism in its most distinctive form. The schools are attended by Roman Catholic children alone. Roman Catholic teachers alone could be trained in them, whilst the teachers of these schools themselves are neither trained nor classed, and are, therefore, not competent to undertake the training of others."

Mr. Fortescue does not state that the school-house may be erected "in whole or in part" from a Parliamentary grant. What he does state is, that it may be built "partly from private funds, and partly from the Parliamentary grant."

Then it is stated in the foregoing paragraph that the changes sketched in the letter "are specially adapted, not to say designed, to convert the schools of the religious orders of the Church of Rome into training and model schools. In convents the domestic establishment stands ready for the purpose described, and also the school-house, capable of accommodating 150 pupils."

No one intimately acquainted with the economy of the Irish convents could say that in convents the "domestic establishment stands ready for the purpose described." In point of fact, there is in all Ireland only one convent in which the domestic establishment "stands ready" at present for the purposes of a training institution.

Most of the convents, to be sure, have the necessary school-house accommodation for 150 pupils; but, on the other hand, there were in 1865, exclusive of convent, model, evening, and workhouse schools, 132* school-houses, each of which, either in a single department or in the combined departments of boys and girls under the same roof, commanded an average attendance throughout the year of 150 pupils.

And as to the domestic establishment, Mr. Fortescue's plan, it is to be observed, does not exclude the use of any rented house capable of decently accommodating the minimum number of students.

It is not correct to say that the 140 convent schools are attended by Catholics only.

And it should be borne in mind that convent schools are to be found chiefly in towns and places where schools under Protestant management already exist, either under the Board or under Protestant societies—in towns and places where Protestant pupils have the option of attending schools taught by Protestant teachers. But, last year, notwithstanding those facts, 74 Protestants found in the convent schools the opportunities of a good secular education, without any interference with their religious convictions.

And, further, I submit it is not proper to suggest that the principles of the National system are not as honestly, as scrupulously, and as effectively carried out in those schools as in any schools under the management, for instance, of members of the General Assembly, some of whose schools are conducted in rooms under or adjacent to meeting-houses, in nearly all of whose schools Presbyterians are the sole teachers; and in 127 of whose schools in the counties of Antrim and Down alone, in the year 1865, Protestant pupils only were to be found in attendance.

Then, as regards, the observation of the committee, "whilst the teachers of these (convent) schools themselves are neither trained nor classed, and are therefore not competent to undertake the training of others"—I have simply to refer to the fruits of those convent schools, as described in the Inspectors' Reports, published by order of the House of Commons in June 1864. For special evidence of the competency of the nuns to prepare persons for the office of teacher, I refer particularly to the reports on the convent schools of Kinsale, St. Finbar's, Queenstown, Midletown, Fermoy, Doneraile, Kenmare, SS. Mary and Munchin, Kilkenny, Thurles, Carlow, Athy, Baggot-st., King's Inns-st., Rahoon, High-street (Newry), &c., &c. Mr. Robinson, a Protestant Inspector, in his report on the St. Catherine's Convent National school, county Limerick, says :—

1. "I find that the ladies are carefully examined at their noviciate, and that they are set apart for the work of teaching in accordance with their abilities and knowledge.

2. "That during the five years immediately after entering the convent, they are actually taught in class by the mistress of novices, and obliged to examine each other, and showed how to do it; and—

3. "That they are carefully taught the art of teaching, theoretically and practically, being assisted in this by a very excellent manuscript text-book." (Vide page 151 of the Parliamentary Return of June 1864.)

An examination of the volume of reports, to which I have referred, and of the reports received by the Commissioners since the publication of that volume, will show that the best monitors in the country are taught in those convent schools; that many of the best and most devoted teachers in the Board's service are produced in them; that there are in charge of those schools ladies who possess not only the necessary scholastic attainments, the necessary didactic ability, the necessary technical knowledge of the National system, and the necessary skill in the cultivation of human character to distinguish them as accomplished educationists, but who, besides, are so conversant with the polite arts, with general literature, and with the philosophy of method, that it becomes difficult to understand why the committee conclude that, because those ladies are "neither trained nor classed," they "are therefore not competent to undertake the training of others." Neither Lancaster nor Bell, neither Pestalozzi nor De La Salle was ever trained or classed; yet each successfully undertook "the training of others." Of our own professors, as of most of our Inspectors, the same may be said, they have been neither trained nor classed as teachers; yet the Inspectors undertake the "classification," and the professors both the "training" and the "classification" of others.

* Ulster, 38; Munster, 50; Leinster, 35; Connaught, 9; total 132.

Then the committee say;—

"On the other hand, in the administration of a mixed or non-sectarian plan of education, it is essential that teachers should have a considerable course of training in an institution where this system is to be found in its highest perfection. In the existing model schools, both teachers and pupils are of various religious denominations. The idea of united education is in them a pleasing reality. Young teachers of different denominations are for a considerable time trained together. Thus they imbibe principles of toleration, mutual forbearance, and respect. It is necessary in such a system that the training schools should be under the Commissioners' supervision and control. In no other way can that unity and uniformity in training be maintained which are essential to success. The model schools are under the charge of trained and classed teachers of known ability and tried excellence, and they are thus in every respect preferable to schools under local management as training institutions for young candidate teachers."

In reference to the preceding observations it needs only to be observed that there are, as I have shown, 4,494 teachers, 2,661 of whom have the principal charge of schools, who are altogether untrained: i.e. there are 55·3 per cent. of all the teachers in the country untrained; and if those teachers, as is now the case with hundreds of them, cannot be induced to come to Dublin for training, to an institution where the "system is to be found in its highest perfection," it would surely be desirable to find them disposed to go to other institutions where, even though the "system" might not "be found in its highest perfection," they would yet be trained in a course of study under the direction and control of the Board, and be exercised daily in a course of teaching in schools conducted, as Mr. Fortescue laid down, in every respect on the fundamental principles of the National system.

Year.	Established Church.	Presbyterians	Other Protestant Denominations.	Total of Protestants of all Denominations.	Roman Catholics.

NOTE.—It is to be observed that some who are returned in the above table as trained during the past few years, had been previously trained and included in the returns of former years.

The Committee then add:—

"In any case, these 'local model schools' would spring up, not where they are most wanted, but where they could most effectually damage existing institutions. The plan is virtually to set up rival schools, supported out of the public funds, and under exclusive and sectarian management; and when these would have impaired the usefulness of the present model schools, the injury done to the latter would be used as an argument for getting rid of them altogether."

It is submitted that the preceding statement is a mere speculation.

The Committee could not possibly have had any analogous case in view to enable them to come to such a conclusion; for, in point of fact, no model school for the training or preparation of teachers has ever been established in opposition to any of the Board's model schools; and the non-model schools which have hitherto been the greatest producers of teachers, such as those in Doneraile, Queenstown, Kinsale, Midleton, &c., are situated in towns where model schools do not exist.

Even the Kenmare convent school, opened so recently as the close of the year 1861, and which is far away in the remote wilds of Kerry, has already sent forth, through its monitorships, twelve competent, indeed accomplished, teachers, to do service in National schools; a number exactly equal to the aggregate number of female teachers that issued from the monitorships of the model schools of Londonderry, Omagh, Newtown Stewart, Newtownards, Lurgan, Sligo, Galway, Kilkenny, Enniscorthy, Waterford, Limerick and Cork, all of them taken together, during the last seven years.

That which is called the "policy of repression as regards model schools," is referred for its origin by the Committee of the General Assembly, to the close of the year 1863; but it is to be observed that eleven of the twelve model schools just named were in full operation before that time.

Then the Committee go on to remark:—

"The next point referred to in the letter of the late Chief Secretary, is the necessity of a revision of the arrangements for the reception of teachers in training in the normal establishment in Dublin. It is recommended that teachers and pupil-teachers be permitted to board and lodge out of the official establishment, receiving an allowance in lieu of board and lodging, and that chaplains should be appointed in connexion with the central training and district model schools.

"In regard to the former of these points, it is surely reasonable to ask, why, after the country has been put to large expense in the erection of a boarding establishment, it should be given up as useless? Has any evil been proved to have arisen from united boarding and training? On the contrary, have not leading officials from time to time testified to its eminent advantages? In the report of the Commissioners for last year the following statement occurs:—'The establishments in which the teachers, both male and female, attending at our training institutions are boarded and lodged, continue to be efficiently conducted. The inmates have been distinguished, as heretofore, for the general correctness of their conduct, for the maintenance of order and discipline, for the exercise of kindly feeling toward each other, and for the careful observance of their religious duties.' Is the Government of the country prepared to undo a system working so admirably, to foster sectarian separations and animosities, and virtually to suggest measures for preventing the people, and especially the youthful teachers of the people, from having friendly and kind intercourse with each other? Any statesman who imagines that he will pacify this country by handing the youth of it over to be educated, and the candidate teachers in it to be boarded and lodged by the religious orders of the Church of Rome, makes, we believe, a most serious mistake; and it is manifest that, to board Roman Catholic teachers 'out of the official establishment' just means to board them in convents and monasteries, and thereby to support these institutions at the public expense."

In reference to the first part of the foregoing passage it is only necessary to observe that it forms no part of Mr. Fortescue's scheme, and that it never was contemplated by the Commissioners to abandon the "boarding establishments" as useless.

It cannot, however, be affirmed that the system now works "admirably;" for the Commissioners have, in the course of the last few years, offered free places in the training establishment to the Catholic managers of hundreds of National schools for their teachers; and in most cases those managers have declined to avail themselves of the privileges thus offered to them.

Why the Committee, in the preceding statement, as in so many other statements, conclude that the direct object of Mr. Fortescue's scheme is to foster convents and monasteries, and support them at the public expense, I cannot, I am bound to say, conjecture.

The Committee, as a conclusion to the statement I have last quoted, then observe:—

"Reference is, indeed, made to the 'Scotch Presbyterian training colleges, in which there are no official residences for the teachers in training,' but these colleges are under a denominational and not a mixed system; and, in any case, the circumstances of the two countries are so different that institutions and arrangements well adapted to the one may be entirely unsuitable for the other. Besides, the proposed change will never remedy the supposed evil. The parties objecting to united boarding and lodging will object also to the teachers going to professors of other persuasions than their own, and to their sitting on the benches with Protestants, just as they object to pupils going to model schools. In fact, the objection is not against the teachers living together so much as against their being under professors appointed by the Commissioners and not by themselves."

As regards the above paragraph, and in connexion with that preceding it, I may remark that residence in an official establishment, even in the existing model schools throughout the country, has never in the case of female pupil-teachers been required, and has in no single instance been practised. No unsatisfactory results have ever been known to flow from the system pursued in respect to female pupil-teachers; no complaint has ever been made that any of those pupil-teachers failed, when placed in charge of schools, to evince a thoroughly earnest and comprehensive appreciation of their duties as National teachers.

Besides, in all the minor model schools, even the male pupil-teachers are externs, living where they choose, provided only the place of residence be regarded by the Inspector as decent, and as safe in respect to health and morals.

Then, again, it is overlooked by the Committee, that in the Central Training Establishment itself there is an "Extern Department," and that in it there always has been such a department, composed of persons who are able to maintain themselves, or of others who fail, from one cause or another, to secure free places in the "Intern Establishment."

And it should not be forgotten in this part of the case, that originally, and for many years, the Commissioners, acting on the Scottish principle (their training school at the time being directed by a distinguished Scotch educationist), had no resident students whatsoever; all the training students being externs.

In point of fact, the adoption of the intern system is mainly a question of economy; as in respect to education or training, it means but very little; for the professors lecture or teach only during the common school hours; and before or after those hours the teachers in training are mere students; such as they would, or might be in any other boarding or private establishment in the city.

The Committee next say:—

"With regard to the proposal to appoint 'chaplains' for the central training and district model schools, the Committee regard such appointment as wholly unnecessary, as likely, if carried out, to entail large expense upon the State, and as tending to the introduction of religious rivalries and animosities. To place the teachers in private houses, and to pay 'chaplains' for them would subject them to the control of the clergy and weaken the legitimate influence of the Commissioners and the professors, who are supposed to be preparing them for the public service, and not for the purposes of ecclesiastical domination. Further, to insist, as is proposed, that 'every teacher of a model school must possess a certificate as to faith and morals from the chaplain of his own religious denomination,' is to give such chaplain a veto on all appointments, which he will take care so to exercise that none but parties subservient to his ends shall be employed as teachers. It is not enough that a man should be of irreproachable character, but he must be sound in the 'faith,' and so certified, not by a clergyman, but by 'the chaplain of his own denomination.' This is a power so liable to be abused and so tyrannical, that no man should be intrusted with it. Besides, the proposal is utterly inconsistent with a united non-sectarian system of education, such as Parliament professes to maintain in Ireland, and the practice begun in model schools must ultimately be extended to all the National schools throughout the kingdom."

In reference to the preceding paragraph it is to be observed:—

(1.) That the question of paying the chaplains of model schools was first mooted twenty years ago.

(2.) That the existing system of unpaid chaplains is an utter failure, there being but one model school in the country, the Bailieboro' Model School, county Cavan, in which a Roman Catholic clergyman attends to give religious instruction to the Catholic pupils or pupil-teachers.

(3.) The objection to the condition, that every teacher should be appointed subject to the possession of a "certificate as to his faith and morals from the chaplain of his own religious denomination" should be considered in connexion with the provision for appointing teachers to ordinary National schools. In these schools the local patrons have the right of appointing the teachers, subject to the approval of the Board, and they have the absolute right of the dismissal of the teachers (Rule, Part 1, sec. 6, par. 12).

Now, the salaries of model school teachers, like the salaries of teachers of ordinary National schools, consist mainly of two parts; (1), that derived from the public funds; and (2), that derived from the fees of the pupils.

The teachers of model schools have, accordingly, a local as well as a central interest in their position, as have the teachers of common National schools.

But the model school teachers receive a local aid very much greater in amount than that received on the average by teachers of common schools; a circumstance which binds the model school teachers with all the more force and interest to local influences.

A model school teacher, therefore, should not be altogether independent of some local control, just as a common school teacher, in turn, is not independent of a central control.

The teacher of the common school is appointed subject to the satisfaction of the manager as to "faith and morals," and any other condition (not inconsistent with the Board's rules) the manager may choose to impose. This unqualified exersise of the manager's authority relates to nearly 8,000 teachers.

In the district and minor model schools, in which there are 190 teachers, 76 only of whom are Roman Catholics, this local power represented in the chaplain is to be exercised, not to the life-and-death degree enjoyed by the managers of the 8,000 teachers of common National schools, but simply in the manner proposed by Mr. Fortescue, as to the attestation which every honest teacher is prepared for, that in the profession of his faith he is sincere, and that in his morals he is pure.

I may add, that the Commissioners have required that every teacher presenting himself for training should possess a certificate of character from an officiating clergyman of the Church to which he belongs. The certificate of character from a clergyman, under such circumstances, applies of course to the "faith and morals" of the teacher; for it is presumed that a clergyman, when giving a certificate in his clerical capacity to a teacher, gives it in no other sense.

Then the Committee observe:—

"The Committee regard with much concern, the proposal to change the principle upon which the remuneration of teachers in Ireland has hitherto been regulated. It is daily becoming more difficult to procure teachers for National schools, this arises chiefly from the fact that they are not sufficiently remunerated. Many of the present teachers have expended much time and labour in securing a high classification, and to turn round upon them and to apportion their payments solely according to the 'ascertained results of education' would be unfair, and calculated greatly to discourage a most deserving and important class of individuals. These 'results' have all along been taken into account by inspectors, but upon the 'class' of the teacher the amount of his salary has mainly depended. To change this system would be to put the untrained and unclassed teacher, who has indolently declined the necessary study, on a level with the individual of highest qualification and class. The Committee would gladly co-operate with the Government and the Commissioners, in endeavouring to induce the people to contribute more liberally for the education of their children, and it is mainly, they consider, in this direction an improvement should be sought. Of the total sum of £39,135 18*s.* 2*d.*, contributed under the head of 'payment by pupils' in National schools over Ireland during the past year, Ulster contributed £16,092 15*s.* 1*d.*, and the Assembly's Committee believe that that sum could and ought to be largely increased."

The figures quoted by the Committee are incomplete. If they make inquiry in the interests of the teachers, they will find that each principal teacher in Munster, owing to the larger attendance at Munster schools, receives, on the average, a higher amount of fees than the teacher of an Ulster school.

On the objection of the Committee to payment by "results," it would, at present, be premature to make any detailed observations, as preparatory to the adoption of such a system a series of most important statistical investigations has been undertaken; and until the issue of those statistical investigations, as well as a full statement of the working of the system in England is before the Board, and a code of regulations laid down, it would be simply out of all propriety and reason to discuss the question.

The Committee, I may be permitted to remark, have not quoted the concluding sentence of Mr. Fortescue's letter on this subject; Mr. Fortescue said, "I may add, that I should hope that, as one effect of the change, the incomes of meritorious teachers would be thereby improved."

The Committee conclude as follows:—

"In conclusion, the Committee express their decided conviction that if these changes, made and threatened, are permitted to be carried out, the destruction of the present system of united education in Ireland is inevitable. It is the best boon the Parliament of Great Britain ever conferred on this country, and it is earnestly hoped that neither Parliament nor the public will permit the system to be insidiously subverted by those who, at the same time, profess to keep always 'in view the fundamental principles of united secular education.'"

Upon this passage I have, obviously, no occasion to make any observation.

Finally, I should remark that I have now given every line in the Committee's statement, excepting the few introductory sentences in which the Committee announce that "they feel it incumbent on them to lay their views before both the "Government and the public."

Paragraph 16.—Correspondence in the case of the Baggot-street Convent School, respecting a Grant for a Training School.

9989—63.

Copy of a Letter from Mrs. Norris, Superior of the Convent, Baggot-street, Dublin, to the Commissioners of National Education.

Baggot-street Convent,
21st December, 1863.

Gentlemen,—The reports of your Inspectors undoubtedly acquaint you with the fact, that, for several years past, there has been in operation, in connexion with the Baggot-street schools of the Sisters of Mercy, whose superior I am, a training department, in which, at present, are instructed and trained for the office of schoolmistress, and are boarded and lodged, forty young girls; while an equal number of others, who do not reside in the house connected with the schools, are trained in the same way.

That this institution is well suited as a training establishment for female teachers, is evident, for the following reasons:—

1st. The buildings, furniture, fittings, school apparatus, and sanitary circumstances of the establishment are unexceptionable.

2nd. The large number of model and practising schools of every degree in operation, in which girls of every age from infancy to adolescence, infants of each sex, and junior boys are taught.

3rd. The daily average attendance in all these schools, for the past year, has been 851 pupils; on some days the number in attendance exceeded 1,000, whilst the daily average number on roll during the year, was 1,285 children.

4th. The efficiency of the staff and the success of their labours are fully admitted by your Inspectors.

Eighty per cent. of the pupils, and about the same proportion of the teachers of the National schools being Catholics, and one-fifth of all the girls in the National schools alone being taught in schools under nuns, it follows that a Catholic training for teachers, such as is provided in Baggot-street, is necessary to satisfy the wants and the religious feelings of the general population of Ireland.

To what we have said about literary education, it is to be added that our institution in Baggot-street affords special facilities for instruction in every branch of female industry, manual and domestic, a large house of mercy for servants of good character attached to the convent, being an excellent industrial model school, to the inspection of which the young teachers may have access.

For the support of the forty young girls that we have in training for the office of schoolmistress we derive no assistance from the National Board.

The burden thus placed upon us forms a strong contrast with the advantages which Catholics enjoy in England.

Under the British plan there are thirty-nine training colleges, some for mistresses, in which about 3,000 students are instructed for periods of from one to three years each, and towards the support of which the Council on Education granted about one-eighth, viz., £103,105, out of £804,002 their whole Parliamentary Estimate for last year.

These training colleges in England are under the exclusive direction of the several religious bodies who founded them, the State having in many cases, aided their erection, besides contributing largely to their annual support.

The Catholics of England participate in these advantages in the Hammersmith (London) training college for masters, and in the Liverpool training college, conducted by nuns, for mistresses.

The pupil-teachers in the Catholic schools in connexion with the Government who have completed their apprenticeship, and certain other qualified candidates, obtain, by competitive examination, exhibitions, called Queen's Scholarships, which they hold for two years, and these enable them to meet the demands for residence and tuition in the training college. An annual grant (varying from £13 to £24 for young men, and two-thirds of those rates for young women) is also made directly to the college for each student that passes the Inspector's examination in the prescribed course of study; and both these aids contribute largely to support the training colleges.

I beg leave to submit to the Commissioners of National Education this statement, that they may consider the claims of the Training Institution in Baggot street to be allowed the same advantages as similar institutions in England, and to grant it subsidies proportioned to its merits, so often tested by examination of the teachers, under the official programme, by the Board's own Inspectors.

The principle of separate denominational halls or houses as residences for teachers in training has been fully admitted by the Right Honorable Mr. Cardwell, in the House of Commons, and we do not see why the promises held out by that statement should not be realized. A subsidy in our case would be a proof to the country that Government is disposed to grant to Ireland the same advantages which England has long enjoyed, that at length we may hope to see the reign of justice and fair play established.

Our community would be content with a capitation allowance for each teacher successfully trained, calculated on the average expense to the Commissioners for the travelling, board, establishment, charges, and other items connected with the support and tuition of each young woman sent out from Marlborough-street after the ordinary session.

Trusting that the Commissioners may practically recognise the just claims of the Catholics of Dublin and of Ireland to be admitted to advantages enjoyed by their fellow Catholics in England, the right to train the teachers for their own schools, and to be aided therein by the State.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) Margaret Norris, Superioress.

To the Secretaries for the Commissioners,
Education Office, Marlborough-street.

(9989—63. B. O. 31/12/63.)

Copy of a Letter from the Commissioners of National Education, in reply to the Application of Mrs. Norris.

Office of National Education,
4th January, 1864.

Madam,—We are directed by the Commissioners of National Education to inform you that they have read, with great respect, the letter addressed to them by you, on the 21st ultimo, requesting that a grant of the public money may be made by the Board for the maintenance of a training establishment for female teachers, in connexion with the convent in Baggot-street, of which you are the Superior,

And to state that it is entirely out of the power of the Commissioners to comply with your request.

(Signed) James Kelly, William M'Creedy, } Secretaries.

Mrs. Norris, Convent, Lower Baggot-street.
